

THE OREGON SENTINEL.

The Judge of a Western court recently decided a point adverse to a certain lawyer. The lawyer was stubborn, and insisted that the court was wrong.

The propriety of selecting officers of the same nationality to command troops, who do not fully understand our language, is fairly illustrated in the case of a German belonging to one of our regiments, who had been detailed to guard-duty.

The worthy Dr. Johnson, of Indiana, had an inveterate habit of interspersing his conversation with "of course." Coming in hastily, he began to enlighten the court.

A German of a Michigan regiment in the hospital at Washington, had his arm amputated. His description of the sensation he feels from his fingers, which lately belonged to his left arm, causes frequent bursts of merriment in the other patients in the ward.

The celebrated John Hunter is said to have made but one pain in his life, and that was when lecturing in the Westminster School of Medicine. In demonstrating the jawbone, he observed that the bone was known to abound in proportion to the want of brains.

THE OTHER NIGHT, a landlord, discovering one of his customers drunk, sloshing about in the mire, went to his assistance, and setting him up on his feet, inquired if he was sick, or what was the matter?

"Well, neighbor, what is the most Christian news this morning?" said a gentleman to his friend. "I have just bought a barrel of flour for a poor woman."

A sensible Manchester politician suggested to the Duke of Newcastle that it would be cheaper for the English Government to ship all the unemployed cotton factory hands to the south of Europe and feed them than to fight America.

An Irishman at work on a stone wall caught a small spotted animal, which he took to be a neighbor's kitten; but, dropping her almost instantly, he clapped both hands to his nose and exclaimed, "Howly mother! what's she been eating?"

The following is a copy of a letter sent to a parish church in Gloucester: "Mister, my wife is dead, and wants to be buried to-morrow at wunner clock. You knows where to dig it close to my other wife but let it be deep."

A brother had occasion to preach a discourse against the doctrine of immersion, but couldn't find the text, until, with great shrewdness and good sense, he hit upon this: "Be ware of divers!—and strange doctrines."

COLBRIDGE, who in his feelings was a thorough John Bull, speaking of the French, says "Frenchmen are like gunpowder; each individual grain is smutty and contemptible, but mass them together, and they are terrific."

A man can no more be a Christian without facing evil and conquering it than he can be a soldier without going to battle, facing the cannon's mouth, and encountering the enemy on the field.

The passing years drink a portion of the light from our eyes, and leave their traces on our cheeks, as birds that drink at lakes leave their footprints on the margin.
