

"TO THE EFFICACY AND PERMANENCY OF YOUR UNION, A GOVERNMENT FOR THE WHOLE IS INDISPENSABLE."—Washington.

Oregon.

Every paper that we receive from the Western States brings to us the gratifying intelligence that the overland migration to this State, this season, will be very large.

The gold mines on our eastern borders offer, to the restless and conquering energies of such a fine field for operation.

The gold mines on our eastern borders offer, to the restless and conquering energies of such a fine field for operation.

2d. Oregon, in the grandeur, beauty and variety of her scenery, is the Switzerland of America; in the salubrity and mildness of her climate, in the purity and transparent clearness of her air, the rival of the land of the Caesars.

The gratifying fact is thus clearly established that the population of Oregon is soon to be largely and permanently increased.

With these latter will come internal improvement, public enterprise, and everything else necessary to constitute a prosperous and powerful State.

McClellan, with his well-appointed and victorious army, is slowly but surely encircling the rebel Capital.

By last night's stage we learn that Memphis and Vicksburg have no doubt been surrendered, and that Charleston and Richmond are about to be attacked by powerful fleets of iron-clad gun and mortar boats.

With the prospect, then, that Oregon has of a rapidly increasing population, her future looks up bright and glorious.

OREGON MILL.—Wm. J. Allen, the pioneer miller of Rogue River Valley, has leased the flouring mill commonly known as the Hopwood Mill, put it in thorough repair, and is making a No. 1 flour.

The Victory.

From the comparatively few returns, which we publish to-day, it will appear that the Union ticket has swept the field by a triumphant and overwhelming majority.

Again: The result of this election is a withering condemnation of such men as Stark and our little Governor.

Many a would-be great man will ever regret the record that he has made at this election.

A Letter from Hibernia.

APPEALING, June 9th, 1862. "Breathes there a man with soul so lowly, Condemned to chains unholy; Who, could he burst his bonds at first, Would pine beneath them slowly?"

Mr. Editor.—The "Liberator of Ireland," the eloquent orator and unparelleled patriot, Daniel O'Connell, headed many a rousing letter to his countrymen with the above lines, by Tom Moore, for the purpose of simultaneous effort of the Irish voters to return one hundred and five Liberal members to the English Parliament, and by a united action on their part, in combination with English and Scotch Liberals, repeal the act of Union by which Ireland had her independence.

How joyful, then, ought the loyal citizens of Oregon feel, that by a united action on their part, at the ballot-box, they have constitutionally and peacefully sent into the walks of private life those dangerous and corrupt men who have tarnished our fair centennial, and under the guise of Democracy, were drifting our State into the damnable deeps of Secession, and made this last powerful and unprincipled attempt to obtain possession of our State Government.

The position taken by Judge Wait in the late canvass, namely, that he did not know of any Secessionists in the Democratic party, neither did he believe there were any, or words to that effect—must have emanated from either a very gullible or a very unprincipled man, and filled the loyal citizens of the Applegate precinct with surprise and indignation; but as I do not desire to be personal, I will confine myself to this fact, that on election day, two men, passing the house of Mr. Benedict, from which the flag of the United States was flying, one remarked to the other in a contemptuous tone, "Look at that damned Abolition flag!" and the man making the above traitorous remark voted for Judge Wait.

Sir, the different phases of the Secession party reminds me of a fable I read in a school-book when a little boy, and I now give it for the edification of the so-called Democratic candidates for Oregon.

A town [the Scotch] feared a siege, and held a consultation, Which was the best method of fortification; A grave, skillful man gave, in his opinion, That nothing but stone [let us alone] could secure the dominion;

Some men are true to their own private ends. The 'fao' to their country, religion and friend. Oh! traitorous, corrupt and selving men, you have seen the dragons teeth that have now sprung into armed warriors to confront you, and you are appalled at the sight.

IBERNIA. BONES.—Mr. Horace Root, Esq., one of the gentlemanly proprietors of the 49 mining claims, near Phoenix, in this county, has sent several sections of the backbone of the monster whose tail we gave an account of some few weeks ago.

FOURTH OF JULY.—We have been requested to say that there will be a meeting at the Court House, this evening at 7 1/2 o'clock, for the purpose of making arrangements to celebrate the coming anniversary. All our citizens are cordially invited to attend.
