Letter from Col. Mulligan.

Colonel Mulligan, the hero of Lexington, has addressed the following letter to a Catholic priest in Chicago, from the headquarters of his Irish brigade, under date of August 12th:

My Dear Father Dunn: By the Chicago papers of to-day I notice your promotion to the Colony of the "Dunn Legion." I bid you welcome to the new vocation. I shall your conversion from the breviary to the bayonet, from the canon law to the law of canons; from "taking Heaven by violence" to taking towns by storm. It is meet and just. Your biography will need a stirring chapter. Your history is too full of this "vale of tears;" this martyrdom of puritans; this lean look of Lent; how splendid will a chapter read with the caption, "Arma Virguncia Carol."

I need not tell you, Father Dunn, how intimately in all ecclesiastical history St. Peter and salpeter are blended, sheddest luster upon many a miter. The real orthodoxy of the times is not "Gahan's Sermons," but Hardee's Tactics. Men nowadays are saved by the doctrines of St. James, "by fire," and are brought to that state of grace by the "apostolic blows and knocks" of Hadibros. To be a priest according to the Order of Melchisedek is a great thing; but to be a Colonel according to the Act of Congress is speaking mildly, "bully."

But, joking aside, I have only a moment before going on dress parade. I seriously hope your good and patriotic effort to rouse our countrymen to their duty may be crowned with immediate success. Destroy this government, and what safety remains for our homes? What honor in our history? In the past is the memory of greatness; in the future, merely self-contempt and foreign scorn. Rather dare all now, preserve the government, vindicate its strength, and the Republic passed through this crisis will stand with such assured dignity and firmness through all the coming centuries, that no foe without, no Judas within, shall ever dare raise an armed hand against her. And history shall prove some of this grand balance to the account of you and your Legion.

How little, dear father, did we dream in our student days, as we sat under your professorship in the dear old halls of St. Mary, that these things should come upon us! Then we read of revolutions; now we fight them. I think of those times often amid the duties of camp and the labors and dangers of the march, with a relish that lightens the toll. Good bye! Success to the "Dunn Legion!" The Irish brigade of Mulligan from the fields of Virginia bids it God-speed. I recognize among the officers many of my best friends. Give them my best regards.

Your pupil and friend,
JAMES A. MULLIGAN.

REMOVING HONEY FROM HIVES.—A New York journal has the following account of an interesting honey experiment:

Two years ago we tried the following experiment on a hive of bees, from which it was desired to take the honey. Having bored a few small holes near the top of the hive, it was then inverted, and an empty box of the same size placed over it; both were then lifted into an empty tub, into which water was slowly poured, allowing time for the liquid to penetrate through the holes, but not too fast, in order to avoid drowning the bees. As the water rose among the combs, the bees found their way up into the empty box, which was then lifted off and placed on the best stand. The box full of water and combs, was then lifted gradually out of the tub, the water escaping by the holes through which it entered.

The whole operation occupied but a few minutes, and scarcely any bees were lost. The short time necessarily prevented the honey from becoming dissolved, and as the greater number of cells are sealed up, there is really little danger of such loss being sustained. After the water was drawn off, it was found to be only slightly sweet; the comb soon became dry, and the honey was in no way injured.

KNEW HOW TO SPELL.—A citizen who reads and has an acute sense of propriety as regards spelling, punctuation and so forth, left an order the other day with a sign painter at Philadelphia. The citizen in question is a daguerrean. He wanted painted over his door the words "Daguerreotype saloon." The master painter sent up to do the work a journeyman recently hired. The journeyman was fresh from London. He presented himself to the citizen, and asked for instructions. The citizen explained his wishes, and with a view to a sign correctly spelled, asked the journeyman to give the orthography of the word "Daguerrean."

This was done to the citizen's entire satisfaction.

"Now can you spell the word saloon?" was the next question.

"Certainly," said the cockney artist, with a look of triumph, "there's a 'less, and a 'hay, and a 'hell, and two 'oos and a 'hen."

The artist, it is only necessary to add, was set to work. By sawing the sign—boses, bens and hoes included—was not only finished, but placed in position.

SCOTCH MINSTERLY.—The following lines are taken from the Glasgow (Scotland) Examiner. We commend them to our readers, as displaying more knowledge of the chivalry than we are apt to credit foreign journals with:

"Neath a rugged Palmetto a Southerner sat,

A twisting the hand of his Panama hat;

And trying to lighten his mind of a load,

By humming the words of the following ode :

Oh! for a darkey, Oh! for a whip,

Oh! for a cocktail, and Oh! for a nip;

Oh! for a shot at old Greely and Beecher,

Oh! for a crust at a Yankee school-teacher;

Oh! for a Captain, and Oh! for a ship,

Oh! for a cargo of darkeys each trip.

And so he kept Oh-ing for what he had not,

Not content with owing for all that he'd got.

"Why, my dear Mrs. Smith, what have you done with your piano?"

"O! Mr. Smith insisted upon my disposing of it and buying instead a sewing machine for each of the girls. He says they will be much more useful and will make less noise."

ON THE PAMUNKEEY.—This is a sample of conversation between Colonel Marshall, of the 13th New York, and the rebels at Pamunkey:

Proprietor.—Col. Marshall, I believe?

Col. M.—You believe right, sir.

Proprietor.—Well, Colonel you have tramped down my clover field and completely destroyed it. Do you intend paying for it?

Col. M.—Well sir, are you loyal?

Proprietor.—Yes, sir.

Col. M.—Are you willing to take the oath of allegiance to the United States?

Proprietor.—No, sir.

Col. M.—Then get Jeff Davis to pay you, and get out of my tent, you infernal traitor.

DYING.—There is a dignity about that going away alone—we call dying—that wrapping the mantle of immortality about us; that putting aside with a pale hand the aure curias that are drawn around this cradle of a world; that venturing away from home for the first time in our lives—for we are not dead to speak of—and seeing foreign countries not laid down upon any maps we know about. There must be lovely lands somewhere starward, for none ever return that go thither, and we doubt very much if they would if they could.—B. E. Taylor.

MAKE home beautiful. Add to it some comfort, convenience and beauty. Make those who share it with you love it. Make your home an attractive one. No other spot on earth is more worthy of improvement, and none other will so richly repay a display of good taste and liberality, as the spot we call home.

At a late festival a pretty miss waited upon the editor with a pie of antique manufacture, in the center of which he espied the following couplet: "one sweet kiss is the price of this." This excited his feelings, and as soon as an opportunity presented itself, he motioned the young lady to his side, and pointing to the line, said: "Your pay is ready when you present your bill."

An Eastern exchange says: "The probability of draft has had a curious effect upon the age of many. Men who have been wearing wigs and dying their hair, and passing for thirty-eight or thirty-nine years of age, have suddenly opened up to forty-five; while young bucks who have passed with the girls for twenty have suddenly shrunk to the other side of eighteen."

WHEN THE Devil rebelled, God didn't swear him and ask him to give bonds.—Louisville Journal.

No; but he gave him a pass beyond the times to go south.—Nashville Union.

An Irishman coming from Boston to Lowell took the stage in preference to the railroad, because, as he said, he could ride four times as long as the same money.

A witness was asked if he was not a bus-husband, when he hesitated for a moment, then coolly replied, amid the laughter of the court: "No, sir, I am not married."

A FREE COUNTRY.—The Golden Age, published at Lewiston, W. T., says: "This is essentially a free country. Law is played out."

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a decree of the Circuit Court of the State of Oregon for Jackson county, at Chambers, August 18th, 1862, to enforce the mechanics' lien of Bremner & Linn & Granger Gunn, for the sums of $603.88 and $108.40 respectively, with interest and costs of suit, and wherein it was adjudged and decreed that CHARLES WILLIAMS pay the said liens and costs within ten days from the date thereof, and whereas payment has not been made according to the terms of the said decree; Now, therefore, to satisfy the said Mechanics' liens, I will, by virtue of the said decree, offer for sale, for cash, to the highest bidder, on the premises, on
