HEIMSTREET'S
Inimitable Hair Restorative.
IT IS NOT A DYE.
But restores gray hair to its original color, by supplying the capillary tubes with natural sustenance, impaired by age or disease. All instantaneous dyes are composed of lunar caustic, destroying the vitality and beauty of the hair, and afford of themselves no dressing. Heimstreet's inimitable coloring not only restores hair to its natural color by an easy process, but gives the hair a

Luxuriant Beauty,
promotes its growth, prevents its falling off, eradicates the dandruff, and imparts health and pleasantness to the head. It has stood the test of time, being the original hair-coloring, and is constantly increasing in favor. It is used by both gentlemen and ladies. It is sold by all respectable dealers, or can be procured by them of D. S. BARNESS, Proprietor, New York.

Oregon State Insane and Idiotic Asylum.
DRS. HAWTHORNE & LORRYEA,
Physicians and Proprietors.

IN pursuance of a law passed by the present Legislative Assembly, the Oregon State Insane and Idiotic Asylum is located in East Portland, in this county, Drs. Hawthorne and Loryea, Physicians and Proprietors. The proprietors of the above establishment will immediately make additions to their present buildings, in order to offer accommodations to all who are unfortunate enough to need the care and treatment of an Insane or Idiotic Asylum. It is especially requested on the part of County Judges, guardians and friends of this class of patients, to have them immediately conveyed to the Asylum, so that they may be properly cared for before the inclement weather sets in. The indigent will be supported at the expense of the State, and no record of debt made against them. For further particulars apply to National Union Anthem.

Sung by Mrs. W. J. Florence, on the occasion of the visit of B. I. Anderson, General (Corcoran to Wallace's Theatre, Sept. 4, 1862. Orchester Instrumentation by C. Koppits.

WRITTEN BY JAMES MORTIMER.
I
God save the Union!
Make her great and glorious!
Shield her defenders!
Send her arms victorious!
Bless her proud standard!
Strike, with thy thunder,
Base hands uplifted
To rend its folds asunder!
Chorus—God save the Union!
None its ties shall sever!
God save the Union!
ONE, now and forever!
II.
God save our Rulers!
Watch over, defend them!
Guide Thou their footsteps—
Strength and wisdom lend them!
Spirit of Justice!
Crush Treason's wild delusion!
Chastise all traitors—
O'erwhelm them with confusion!
Chorus—God save the Union, &c.
III.
Shades of our Fathers!—
Ye Sires of Revolution!
Founders of Freedom
And Freedom's Constitution!
Fear not! Your children
That priceless compact cherish!
Legions of Freemen
Have sworn it shall not perish!
Chorus—God save the Union, &c.

Scenes at the Battle of Corinth.

The correspondent of the N. Y. Tribune, writing from Cairo a description of the recent battle at Corinth, Mississippi, says of the hostile doings, on Saturday, Oct. 4th:
The morning wore on, and for a time there were no demonstrations on the part of the enemy—they remained altogether quiet in the angle of the woods near the railroad. Presently two lines were formed, one at right angles to the other—the one destined with its reserve to sweep over the railroad, through the abatis into the village—the other with its reserve to attack Battery Robinett, which was the key to the whole position. It once taken and held and Corinth was undeniably in rebel possession. The line destined for the occupation of the village came rapidly forward at a charge across the railroad, over the fallen timber, driving the Union line before them like chaff. All that grape and canister could do to impede their progress was attempted, but still their irresistible progress was not stayed. Batteries of light artillery played upon their front and left incessantly; their colors were thrice shot away; but they came still onward, nor halted until they reached the public square, and formed in line of battle directly opposite Gen. Halleck's old headquarters. Our line of battle was formed directly opposite, in the street leading past Rosekrans' headquarters.
The two armies advanced and engaged in a terrible hand-to-hand conflict, and for a time the destruction of the Union army seemed inevitable. Our army gradually yielded and fell back until the enemy had nearly reached the Corinth House. Here Gen. Rosekrans rode along the line, and in a few cheering words revived the drooping courage of the wearied soldiers. The enemy's reserve was at this time directly in range of the guns on the redoubts to the left, and huge shells began to drop into their midst, whose explosion in the solid masses began to create considerable confusion and loss of life. At the same time the order was given to "charge bayonets." At this command our brave soldiers sprang to their work with a will. They attacked vigorously, and soon the enemy was flying across the public square in wild confusion. The explosion of very missiles from the two batteries added haste to their movements, and by the time they reached the cover of the timber their retreat became a rout. By the time this line was driven back the other line with their reserves were well advanced in the direction of Battery Robinett.
During the period of seeming inaction, when the enemy had withdrawn to the cover of the timber, while preparing to make the two charges as recorded in the preceding narrative, Gen. Price and his principal officers held a consultation to devise ways and means to take the battery. The importance of its capture was admitted, and the risk and danger of the attempt thoroughly canvassed. Gen. Price would not undertake the responsibility of ordering the attack, but called for volunteers. Col. Rogers of Arkansas immediately tendered his brigade as the forlorn hope, and Col. Ross his brigade as a support. They massed their troops eight deep, and advanced under a heavy fire of double charges of grape and canister. A terrible enflaming and flanking fire was poured upon them from every battery bearing in that direction, aided by incessant volleys of musketry from the supports of the batteries, and the Union regiments drawn up in a line parallel with them. The first shell from Battery William exploded in the centre of the advancing column, sending thirty or forty to their long home. Every discharge caused huge gaps in their ranks. An eyewitness of that wonderful charge says he can compare the effect of our fire to nothing but the falling of grain before the scythe. This tremendous mortality did not effect their irresistible onward march. As soon as one man fell, his comrade stepped forward in his place. I doubt whether history has ever recorded a charge characterized by such determined valor and bravery. Twice did they approach almost to the outer works of the battery, and twice were they compelled to fall back. The third time they reached the battery, and planted their flag on the edge. It was shot down, raised again, and again shot down. They swarmed about the battery, they climbed over the parapets; they fired through the escarpments, and for a time it seemed as if they had secured the victory their valor had so richly earned. When they obtained the battery, our men who were working it fell back behind the projecting earthworks, out of reach from our shells, and immediately all the batteries bearing upon the position were turned upon Battery Robinett, and soon a shower of missiles were falling like hail upon the brave intruders. No mortal man could stand the fire, and they retreated. Slowly the brave remnant turned their unwilling steps towards the forest from which they started, when the order was given to the two regiments supporting the battery to charge. This order was splendidly executed. The miserable remnant of troops whom the batteries had nearly destroyed was now almost annihilated. A few scattering troops were all that remained of the column that so gallantly attacked the battery scarcely an hour before. The dead bodies of rebels were piled up in and about the intrenchments, in some places eight and ten deep. In one place directly in front of the point of assault, 216 dead bodies found within a space of 100 feet, among them the commanders of both brigades making the assault—Col. Rogers and Ross.

This was the termination of the engagement. The enemy withdrew to the timber, and shortly beat a retreat in the direction of Chevalina.

SANITARY FUND—AMOUNT REMITTED.
The following is a succinct statement of the amount raised in this county, by the different precinct agents, for the relief of the sick and wounded soldiers, and by them paid into C. C. Beckman, Esq., and by him remitted to Hon. A. Holbrook, agent for Oregon. It is an honorable and praiseworthy contribution. Man has no higher mission than assuaging a brother's woe, no nobler impulse than that of active benevolence for the relief of the afflicted.
