BURNSIDE AS A BOY AND AS A BUSINESS MAN.—The New York Evening Post says that when a member of the present Cabinet was in Congress, he received a letter from a boy, without any recommendation, asking for an appointment as cadet at West Point. The application was disregarded as probably the forwardness of a stripling, only anxious for an education at the public expense. Happening a short time afterwards to be in a little village out West where the letter was mailed, he remembered the incident, and, after inquiries, found the ambitious youth, in the form of a tailor's apprentice, in a shop in the outskirts of the town, sitting cross-legged up on a bench, mending a pair of pantaloons.
The account closes thus:

"Near by, on a small block of wood, rested a book of obtrusive science, to which he turned his eyes whenever they could be transferred from the work in his hands.
The member accosted him by the name given in the letter, and the lad replied: 'I am the person.' 'You wish then to be appointed a cadet at West Point?' 'I do,' he replied. 'Why?' asked the Congressman. 'Because,' answered the tailor youth, 'I feel that I was born for something better than mending old cloths.' The member talked further with him, and was so pleased with his frankness, his spirit, and the rare intelligence he evinced, that he procured him the appointment.
The member is now Secretary Smith of Indiana, and the youth General Burnside."

The story of Burnside's honorable dealings with his creditors, showing that the noble, ambitious lad was the father of the honest man, we find this in Harpers' Weekly:

In 1853 he resigned his rank in the army, and devoted his time and energy to the manufacture of the famous rifle which bears his name. When Buchanan was elected to the Presidency, his Secretary of War, Floyd, agreed with Burnside to arm a large portion of his army with his rifle, and induced him to establish extensive manufactories for its manufacture. The works were no sooner completed than another gunmaker offered Floyd pecuniary inducements to break his contract with Burnside, who was ruined in consequence.
Assigning all his property to his creditors, Burnside came to this city without a dollar, sold his sword and uniform in Charlam street, and went West in search of employment. He found it in the office of the Illinois Central Railroad, where, as soon as his energies and capacity became known, he received a salary of $2,000 a year. Of this sum he paid one-half regularly to his creditors, until by the help of a timely legacy, he was enabled to liquidate his debts in full.

A LONG LOOK AHEAD.—A young lady was engaged to be married to a gentleman of thirty-six. Her mother having noticed her low spirits for some time, inquired the reason. "Oh, dear, mamma," replied she, pettishly, "I was thinking about my husband being twice my age." "That's very true, but he's only thirty-six." "He's only thirty-six now, but when I'm sixty—" "Well?" "Oh, dear! why, then he'll be a hundred and twenty!"

POLITICS OF OUR GENERALS.—The Administration has certainly ignored partizanship in his military selections and arrangements. There are four Major-Generals of the regular army. Of these, Halleck, a Democrat, is Commander-in-Chief.
Wood and McClellan, Democrats, and Fremont, Republican, are retired from command. Burnside, Major General of Volunteers, and successor of McClellan, is a Democrat. Schenck, in command in Wool's stead at Baltimore, and Morris, who temporarily holds the position, are Democrats.
Dix, Commander of the Department of Eastern Virginia, is a Democrat. Hunter, just ordered back to the Department of the South, is a Democrat. Butler, who commands the Department of Louisiana, is a Democrat. Bull recently removed from the Cumberland Department, is a Democrat, and so also is Rosecrans, his successor.
Gen. McClelland, of the new Department of the Mississippi, is a Democrat.
Gen. Pope, of the Department of the Northwest, is a Democrat. This nearly "sweeps the deck." The only Departments of any consequence whatever in command of Republicans are the Department of Missouri, Gen. Curtis, and the Department of Tennessee, Gen. Grant.

SINGING BY YOUNG WOMEN.—It is the opinion of Dr. Rush that singing by young ladies, whom the customs of society debar from many other kinds of salubrious exercises, ought to be cultivated not only as an accomplishment but as the means of preserving health. He particularly insists that vocal music should never be neglected in the education of a young lady, and states that besides its salutary influence in soothing the cares of domestic life, it has a still more direct and important effect. In his remarks on this subject, the doctor introduces a fact which was suggested to him by his professional experience, which is, that the exercise of the chest by singing contributes very much to defend them from the diseases to which the climate and other causes expose them. The Germans, he continued, are seldom afflicted with consumption, nor has he ever known more than one instance of spitting blood among them. This he believes is in part occasioned by the strength which their lungs acquire by exercising them frequently in vocal music, which constitutes an essential branch in their education.

GOVERNOR CURTIN'S COUNTERMAND.— When the great excitement in Pennsylvania prevailed in the apprehended invasion by the rebels, every body shouldered arms and was ready to rush to the battle-field.
When the enthusiasm was at its height, Gen. McClellan had driven the enemy off, and Gov. Curtin recalled the troops. A young man who was deeply imbued with the spirit of patriotism and religion, was describing his own feelings during this period. He was slow in coming to his decision, he said, "I sought the direction of Heaven, and I heard a voice saying, unto me, 'Go,' and I was on the point of going, when Gov. Curtin countermanded the order!"

The following is a specimen of sharpshooting between a coquette and her lover:
"You men are angels when you woo the maid.
But devils when the marriage vow is paid." The lover, not to be outdone, replied as follows:
"To the change, dear girl, we are always driven;
For we find ourselves in Hell instead of Heaven."

A brother in a prayer-meeting prayed for President Lincoln that he might be as wise as a serpent and as harmless as a dove!
The pastor was overheard saying: "The Lord forbid, but give him grace to hurt somebody." That's it, the country don't want harmless commanders now.

"Merchants are shrewd men. A trader in modern Athens being asked the character of one given to poetry, described him as one of those men who have sonnets after the indefinite, and divines after the unfatomable, but never pay cash."

LEGAL TENDER.—Since the fifteenth of October over one hundred and sixty thousand dollars, in Legal Tender Notes, have been put in circulation, in Oregon and Washington Territory, by the Military.

SHORT.—D. O. McCarry, proprietor of the American Flag newspaper, shot and killed John Davis, in the Tuolumne Restaurant, Sonoma, on the 25th. Davis is the man who was tried at Marysville last fall as John Keiger.

He must be a person of very insignificant standing who is always standing upon his dignity.
