

"TO THE EFFICACY AND PERMANENCY OF YOUR UNION, A GOVERNMENT, AND THE WISDOM OF ITS INDISPENSABLE."

JACKSONVILLE, OREGON.

SATURDAY EVENING, MARCH 24, 1863.

THE WEATHER—Bright, beautiful, glorious!

A MISTAKE.—Captain Thompson has not resigned. He is still recruiting at Oregon City.

An Englishman named Joseph Jackson, lately committed suicide by drowning, in the Columbia river.

The Times of the 16th says: "Captain Noble's Company of Oregon Cavalry now numbers about sixty-four men, and we learn that the company will soon be on its way to the new Military Post, near Boise mines."

The Sheriff of Benton county has attached the office of the Corvallis Union for debt, compelling the suspension of its publication. Other papers of the same tenor are liable. Democratic stripes will soon follow in its wake.

MR. ALEX THAKREY, an old time resident of our town and fellow printer, paid us a visit, one day this week. After sojourning for a few days with his friends here, he started for his claims in the Northern mines. Good luck be with him.

An anonymous correspondent says Capt. Harris, Co. A. O. V., started, March 13th, with 24 picked men, upon an expedition against the Yakamaw Indians, who had been committing depredations near the falls on the upper Columbia. Captain Harris is in command of Fort Dalles.

ACCIDENT.—Robert, the son of W. Benfield, aged seven years, had his right leg broken just below the knee, at Hopkins' place, on Applegate, Monday last. The circumstances are as follows: The horses were geared to the wagon, near the house, and Robert and his younger brother were in the wagon waiting for their father to come. While there, a mule came running by, which frightened the horses, causing them to run away. They soon upset the wagon, and in the fall the box struck the boy's leg, breaking the same. The other boy was not injured.

QUARTZ.—Two rich nuggets of quartz, from Canyon Creek, John Day mines, were lately shown to the editor of the Oregonian, one weighing 16 ounces, nine-tenths gold; the other, 13 ounces, one-half gold. This is certainly good evidence of the mineral wealth of the Canyon Creek mines, but would scarcely be considered worthy of note if taken from a lead in Southern Oregon. No mines in the world have produced more valuable and beautiful specimens of quartz, than have been taken from the Gold Hill, Blackwell, Fowler, Jewett, and many other leads in this portion of the State.

The British vessel, Princess Royal, recently captured off Charleston, by the blockading fleet, was owned by a Mr. Lindsay, Member of the British Parliament, who all along has been intensely eager for the recognition of the rebels. The value of the cargo of the Princess Royal, in Charleston, would have been upwards of $1,000,000. The principal items in the assets of the firm of Lindsay & Co. was nearly $1,000,000 in confederate bonds. It is to be hoped Mr. Lindsay will make another venture to test the efficiency of the blockade.

The new advertisements in to-day's paper are of general interest to the readers of Southern Oregon. The U. S. Tax Collector is coming.

ON THE TREAD.—The ex-editor, that he might plunge deep in the mysteries of law, has vacated the editorial chair, made his retiring bow, and left to us the responsibility of sailing this flimsy craft as best we can. As the political waters are not now very boisterous, we think we can manage it. Our chief aim shall be to make the SENTINEL, the only medium through which the people of Southern Oregon, and Del Norte (Cal.) can receive the very latest war news. With the completion of the telegraph to Jacksonville, this can and will be done. We also hope, by the aid of friends in every part of the country, who promptly report to us whatever of interest transpires in their respective localities, to print a local paper as complete as to make it the duty, if not the pleasure, of every citizen of Southern Oregon to subscribe and pay for it.

The Oregonian remarks, in reference to the present transaction, that the public understands the whole subject, and a discussion of it with the SENTINEL would accomplish nothing. Yes, the public do understand the thing fully and clearly. When it turned out that the profits went to the influential patrons of the Oregonian, that paper, of course, is of the opinion that a discussion of the subject can accomplish nothing, and that there are no laurels to win, and there may be some weights to lose. Take it all in all, it was the most fearful and awful volcanic perturbation of mountain, to produce a hole for a ground squirrel, that has ever transpired! The Oregonian has run into it, and appropriately closed up the entrance by a seven-by-nine pun. There let him rest in his glory.

"THE UNION AS IT WAS."—One of the most eloquent speeches of the past session of Congress was that of Horace Maynard, of Tennessee, delivered in the House on the 7th of February.

But "the Union as it was" is the catchword of the hour. The Union as it was when? When Washington, to suppress rebellion, sent into Western Pennsylvania, fifteen thousand men, under the command of his neighbor and friend, General Lee, who, could he leave the abodes of glory, would smile and condescend his traitor son? When Webster and Clay rallied to the support of Jackson and sent treason, whipped and awarded to its lair? When Millard Fillmore, called to account for the disposition of his fleets in the harbor of Charleston, replied that he was not responsible for his official conduct to the Governor of South Carolina? Or as it was in the waxing and waning day of a later Administration, when treason sat

Squat like a toad at the senile ear of executive power, and hatching its mischievous plot in the very corridors of the Presidential mansion? As it was in the day of its glory or might, or as it was in the night of its weakness and shame? As it was when strong, honest men gave direction to its councils, or as it was when turpitude claimed and took precedence of despatch in the conduct of its affairs? For upon this inquiry must largely depend the real significance of this rallying cry—whether it means a re-establishment of the flag and a re-asserting of the national authority over every rood of our domain, or is but an empty formula, to be interpreted to suit any occasion.

The Union as it was! Say, rather, the Union as it will be, when the Constitution maintained in all its spirit and vigor—even its very forms preserved inviolate; peace restored on the very basis of our indivisibility; the self-protecting power of popular government asserted—our multiplied millions shall present to mankind an example of government mightier, freer and happier than the world ever seen. Then will be realized the conviction of a great English statesman, who, rising above the mist of prejudice and traditional enmity which have beclouded so many of his countrymen, has asserted the justice and hopefulness of our cause, in words contrasting most gratefully with the rancidity and cynicism by which we have been so constantly assailed:

"I cannot, myself believe in such a fate befalling that fair land; stricken though it now be by the hand of war, I cannot believe that civilization, in its journey with the sun, will sink into endless night to gratify the ambition of the leaders of this revolt, who seek to wade through slaughter to a throne, and shut the gates of mercy on mankind." I have another and far brighter vision before my gaze. It may be but a vision but I will cherish it. I see one vast confederation stretching from the frozen North, in one unbroken line, to the glowing South, and from the wild billows of the Atlantic to the calmer waters of the Pacific main, and see one people and one law and one language and one faith, and over all that wide continent, the home of freedom, and a refuge for the oppressed of every race."

WEST POINTERS.—More than six hundred and twenty of the West Point graduates have remained loyal, while but one hundred and ninety-seven, and those chiefly Southerners, resigned their commissions at the commencement of the rebellion.

COLONEL OF THE OREGON REGIMENT.—We have heard the names of several gentlemen mentioned in reference to this position, but suppose the selection will be between Lieut. Colonel Maury, of the Regiment, or Major Lugeneel, of the Regular Army.

We have a high respect for both these gentlemen, and doubt not the qualification of either, but we trust that we shall be excused for saying that when an officer has proved himself competent and faithful in a subordinate position, promotion belongs to him as a matter of right, and therefore we earnestly hope that Lieutenant Colonel Maury may receive the commission. His appointment would gratify his numerous friends, and while it will promote the welfare of the Regiment by giving general satisfaction to its officers and men, it cannot fail to be a public benefit, on account of his entire fitness and capacity.—Oregonian.

"As a general thing, the Democrats of the State have gone to the war."—Red Bluff Beacon.

The Beacon italicizes the word "Democrats," and by this means, we presume, Terry, late Chief Justice of California; Higley, late Surveyor General of California; Brooks, late Controller; Thornton, late a Senator from Sierra; Crittenden, late a Senator from El Dorado; Herbert, late a Member of Congress; Gwin, late a Senator in Congress; Smith, late Navy Agent; Benham, late U. S. District Attorney; Brent, late an Assemblyman from Los Angeles; Showalter, late an Assemblyman from Mariposa; Greenhaw, late a Senator from Nevada, and later still, Postmaster there; Moore, late an Assemblyman from Nevada, ex-Speaker of the Assembly, and who ran off with all he could obtain of other people's money; Fryer, an ex-Judge of Calaveras—and a thousand other such, ex-officials or otherwise; but if they have gone to the war they have gone to the rebel side of it! They are traitors.—Sec. Bee.

NEW TO-DAY.

Money!—We Must Have Money.

A large number of the readers of the SENTINEL are indebted to us, by subscription, advertising, etc., in sums ranging from five to one hundred dollars and upwards. We suffer a great inconvenience and loss for every month that the payment of these sums is delayed. At the present time, we are called upon for cash for telegraphic news, cash for daily papers, cash for labor, cash for bills that must be paid, and no cash on hand. That we may pay these bills and maintain our credit, we urgently request each and every one knowing themselves indebted to pay up at once. Again we say, Money we must have—by "moral suasion" if we can, by "coercion" at law if we must. HENRY DENLINGER.
