Semi-Weekly Sentinel.

A MIXED UP CASE.—The Cincinnati Gazette tells the following story: Mr. Patrick Lyon and Mrs. Heidelberg reside in the same house on Third street, near John, living on the most friendly terms with each other, and enjoying, with their respective husbands, a life of such conjugal felicity and happiness as seldom falls to the lot of women. For some time past it had been evident that Providence, so lavish in his expenditure of bliss on these two happy couples, contemplated adding further to their joys of joy by a presentation of "olive branches." Singular to relate, the presentations both took place at the same time on Tuesday night last, but the favors somewhat unequally distributed, Mrs. Lyon, at the conclusion of the ceremony, finding herself in possession of two smiling cherubs, and Mrs. Heidelberg of but one. Thus far everything went "gaily as a marriage bell," the joyous fathers were in ecstasies, and the happy mothers were filled with unutterable joy; but, as if the fates were determined to mar the pleasure of the scene, an unlooked for difficulty arose, which for a time put a considerable damper on the spirits of the whole party.

It seems that the nurse who had been employed to officiate on the occasion, had, in consideration of the momentous duties she had to perform, imbibed such copious libations of spirits as to become decidedly drunk, in the broadest sense of the term, and when she brought in the babies to show to the expectant paternals, she had got them mixed up in such inextricable confusion that she was unable to tell to which they each belonged. This was a blow which they had not expected, and produced a profound sensation in the circle, but the difficulty was at once solved by Patrick, who demanded two or three babies any way, remarking that one of them must be his, and he could decide whether or not the other was when it was grown up, by seeing if it could speak Dutch. The Dutchman, who at first felt as bad as the rest, to think that the child on whom he might be lavishing his love and affection might be the off-spring of another, took happily to the idea of the Irishman, and is resolved to return the one which has fallen to his lot, should he find it speaking Irish when it is old enough to talk.

DEMOCRACY.—There is much in a name notwithstanding the authority of Shakespeare to the contrary, and the undoubted fact that "a rose by any other name would smell as sweet." Mere names have the power to lure nations, as well as individuals, to destruction; and brave men have died before this epoch for a shadow, gilt by a party shibboleth. "Liberty" has been the excuse for a thousand crimes. "Democracy," in a partisan sense, has nearly forced a great people into the cruel embrace of despotism. In Europe the democratic party takes the equality of men as the fundamental article of its creed. It has contended, since the days of the old French revolution, for the overthrow of the privileges of caste, ridiculed the claim of the nobility to superior "blood," and demanded a recognition of the supremacy of merit, without regard to the accident of birth. These European democrats are naturally puzzled by the peculiar attitude of what is politically known as "Democracy" in America. For the past twenty years there have been men in the United States acting with the "Democratic" party, enjoying its honors, and blatant in their championship of "Democratic" principles, who have yet clung to all the Old World ideas of aristocracy, who have claimed to rule by right of descent from the Cavaliers of England who have openly pronounced democratic institutions a failure, and who have dilated upon the evils of free suffrage, with all theunction of genuine Tories.—Sac. Union.

Show us the man who winces under the name "copper-head," calls Union men "Abolitionists," finds fault at the means employed to suppress the revolt and punish traitors, rolls up his eyes in holy horror and becomes exceedingly lachrymose over "Lincoln's violations of the Constitution," and we will show you a "snake in the grass"—a "wolf in sheep's clothing"—an "ass in a lion's skin"—a self-styled "Democrat"—an enemy to his country, and one who prefers to see the destruction of this glorious Union rather than see slavery perish, even when it is employed by the rebels to overthrow the Government.—Trinity Journal.

A DUTCHMAN was summoned to court to identify a stolen hog. On being asked by the lawyer if the hog had any ear-marks, he replied:
"Te only ear-marks dat I saw vas his tail was cut off."

CARLYLE lately made the following characteristic utterance to the American war:
"It's the dirtiest chimney that's been a-fire this century, and the best way is to let it burn itself out."

It is the man who determines the dignity of the occupying, not the occupation which measures the dignity of the man.

THERE are no hands upon the clock of eternity; there is no shadow upon its dial. The very hours of heaven will be measured by the sunshine—not by the shadow.

A Baltimore contractor is discovered to have made $947 a day, for some months, by chartering unseaworthy vessels for the Banks expedition. The noise of a rope should be made to "contract" round his neck.

WALTZING.—A good story is told of Major Roper, Chief Commissary in a division of Rosecrank's army. The Major is very fond of dancing, and enjoys female society. A few evenings since a dance was given, and the Major was among those invited. Wishing to waltz, he craved an introduction to a very pretty country girl, whom he had been informed was a fine waltzer. After the usual formalities, the Major requested her hand for the next waltz. Judge of his horror when she begged to be excused; as she said: "It always makes me puke!"

On the 6th inst. the annual election for city officers came off in Portland. The Times gives the names of the successful candidates as follows: For Mayor, David Logan; Recorder, J. F. McCoy; Treasurer, F. C. Pomeroy; City Marshals, W. B. Clark. Pomeroy was on the "People's Union Ticket," all the others were on the "People's Ticket."

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue has decided that contracts made payable in gold coin may be legalized by affixing stamps equal in value to one half of one per cent of the amount of money to be paid. This decision will remove many embarrassments which have grown out of the difference in the value of Legal Tender and gold.

Why is the President like an owl in the day-time? Because he's always A'blinkin'.

A fatal affray occurred at Boise, George Reed, from Santiam, Oregon, was shot by Isaac Warrick, formerly of Crescent City, and died in consequence. The Coroner's jury, which was called after the death of Reed, returned a verdict of willful murder against Warrick, who was then absent with the party of volunteers hunting Indians.
