

"TO THE EFFICACY AND PERMANENCY OF YOUR UNION, A GOVERNMENT FOR THE WHOLE IS INDISPENSABLE."—Washington.

JACKSONVILLE, OREGON.

SATURDAY EVENING, JUNE 30, 1863.

A son of Capt. White's, says the Dallas Journal, was drowned at Lehigh, on the 13th inst.

The Portland papers contain accounts of rich yields of gold from the mines in the vicinity of Auburn. A rich quartz lead had been found there.

Artemus Ward "believes if the Copperheads would believe themselves, and not drink too much whiskey, they would be as good Union men as the rebels. Just about."

PRISONAL.—We had the pleasure of shaking hands with our esteemed friend, Mr. A. R. Flint, of Roseburg, to-day. May he have a pleasant visit, and a safe return to his pleasant home in the picturesque village of Roseburg.

TELEGRAPH.—It is remarkable that when we receive brief items by telegraph, of matters of great moment impending in the East, and when anxiety and expectation is on tip-toe for further news, communication by telegraph is interrupted. Thus, on Thursday night, our dispatch told us a third great battle was in progress at the historic Ball Run battle-field, and on Friday night we received no dispatch, nor no cause assigned by the Yreka operator.

Col. Drew has informed us that he will start from this place on Monday next, to select a site for the proposed military post at Klamath Lake. The Colonel will take with him a detachment of troops from Camp Baker, and a number of our citizens will avail themselves of the opportunity for a pleasure excursion to the lakes.

Col. Drew will select the ground for the post as soon as possible, so that the contracts for the erection of the buildings may be let, and the work pushed forward to an early completion.

DRAMATIC ENTERTAINMENT.—On Thursday and last night, large audiences were very agreeably entertained, in our town, by Harry Brown's Dramatic company. In the sensation Drama of Retribution or The Italians Revenge, on Thursday night, Harry Brown, as "Count Priull," fully sustained his reputation as an accomplished artist. His action is graceful and natural, his reading accurate, and his voice, over which he has perfect command, is full, deep and powerful. Miss Bell Douglas well sustained her difficult part, "Clarise de Beaupre," and E. F. Thorne, as "Oscar de Beaupre," looked, talked, and acted throughout, the gay, thoughtless, pleasure-seeking Parisian. Altogether the play was well rendered. It is but seldom that leading actors are so well supported.

Jo. Delavan, as a smoked Yankee Soldier, with the song of "Abraham's Daughter," was uproariously applauded and encored. The farce of Who Speaks First, concluded the entertainment, and sent the audience home in merry good humor.

Last night was presented the beautiful comedy of The Wonderful Woman, in which Harry Brown proved himself a good comedian. Our secesh neighbor over the way, yesterday reported in his paper, that Miss Bell Douglas, last night, sang the comic song of the Railroad Keer, and received therefor a "reward of merit." Miss Bell Douglas did not sing, though loudly called for. Barton's great play of Toodles concluded the evening's amusement.

This evening the company will perform the very thrilling drama, in three acts, entitled La Tour de Nesle or The Chamber of Death, in which Harry Brown will appear as "Capt. Buridan," Miss Hamlin as "Count Savoisy," and Miss Douglass as "Margarite of Burgunday, Queen of France." After which a song by Jo. Delavan, and to conclude with what we know is a very laughable farce, entitled A Kiss in the Dark.

All admirers of the Drama should attend. We can assure them of a very pleasant and interesting entertainment.

The late Stonewall Jackson was a man of determined bravery and military genius; and so was Benedict Arnold. Stonewall Jackson fearlessly led his soldiers, on many a battle-field, and finally lost an arm and his life in the service of the enemies of his country. At Quebec, Champlain, and Fort Schuyler, Benedict Arnold gallantly led the Continentals, of whom he was an idol, into the thickest smoke of battle, and at Stillwater his leg was shattered by a ball, in a daring assault on the English lines, which he penetrated, and, but for his wound, would have carried; and he afterwards, in Virginia and Connecticut, as gallantly fought against his country.

Alas! for the degeneracy of these "fanatical Abolition" times, that it should be left to "courageous" Copperheads alone to sing psalms of praise to such "pure patriots" as Benedict Arnold and Stonewall Jackson, and that the great piety of the latter had not saved him from the commission of the highest crime known to law—treason.

ENOCH FRUIT KILLED.—The regular Auburn correspondent of the Oregonian, gives the following account of the killing of the notorious, Enoch Fruit, who was, about three years ago, sent from this county to the Penitentiary, for horse-stealing. Mr. Alex Carter, who is supposed to have killed him, is well and favorably known in this county:

Perhaps it will be a great relief to the Sheriff of Multnomah, as also to the keepers of the penitentiary, to learn that we have a rumor in town that Enoch Fruit was killed at the Washoe Ferry, on Snake river, a few days since. I have just been conversing with Mr. J. A. Carter, late of Jackson county, in an affray with whom Fruit met his deserved death-blow. Mr. Carter met Fruit under the name of Maevray, exposed his real name, and accused him of stealing a horse from him at Phoenix, in Jackson county, some five years since, all of which Fruit confessed to be true, and expressed a desire to make restitution. After considerable urging, he induced Mr. Carter to go across the river to his camp, and receive a horse in the place of the one stolen. This brought them to a shanty, where Fruit found three more of his gang, and forgot all about the restitution promised. In short, Mr. Fruit became very insulting, and when Mr. Carter gave him the lie, he drew a revolver and fired two shots at him, the first missed, and the second he knocked up, and stabbing Fruit in the left breast, he seized the revolver from his hand and levelled it upon the rest, one of whom was about to shoot. Dictating terms to them, Carter made them assume such attitudes as suited him, and the most belligerent one of all followed him to the boat with his hands raised over his head, and stood on the bank in that position until the boat was fairly crossed. It is since reported that Fruit is dead, and the supposition is that he has been leagued with the Indians in their late depredations, as no one has known his whereabouts since last fall, when he was at Murmon Basin, under the name of Maevray.

OREGON AND CALIFORNIA RAILROAD.—At a meeting of the resident Directors of this enterprise, held at the United States Hotel last evening, the following officers were chosen: President, J. F. McCann, of Marysville; Vice President, Jno. Berry, of Yreka; Secretary, B. P. Avery; Treasurer, J. H. Jewett; Engineer, S. G. Elliott. The following Commissioners were appointed by the board, to receive subscriptions to the Stock of the Oregon and California Railroad Company in the places named: Marysville—G. W. Prescott, I. S. Belcher, J. F. McCann, N. D. Rideout, S. G. Elliott, Butte County—Jno. Bidwell, Shasta—H. A. Curtis, Yuba—John Berry, E. Benjamin L. Lehman, W. D. Bottom, Roseburg, (Oregon)—Mr. Rose, Jacksonville—J. C. Tolman, J. Gaston, Eugene City—Hon. R. E. Stratton, J. B. Underwood, Morris Humphrey, Corvallis—M. Avery, Albany—J. P. Tait, J. H. Foster, Salem—C. P. Crandall, I. R. Moore, Portland—Gov. A. C. Gibbs, A. Holbrook, J. H. Mitchell, R. J. Ladd. A resolution was adopted authorizing the Directors in the towns in northern California and Oregon to appoint Commissioners at other places than those named. Of course it is desirable that these Commissioners should all act as soon as possible. As soon as there are subscribers enough, a meeting of stockholders will be held at Yreka to effect a permanent organization. —Marysville Appeal.

There is a man out West who labors under the delusion that "Hon." placed before a man's name stands for honest!

CHARLESTON.—A letter in the Toledo (Ohio) Blade, from a soldier on Folly Island, near Charleston, says:

I see that the correspondent of the New York Times intimates that our iron-clads were repulsed, and says that "Charleston is impregnable." He may be able to make some persons believe such stories, but we, who are in plain view of Sumter and surroundings, know better. If Charleston is not in our possession within one month some person or persons high in authority ought to sink so deep in oblivion that the loudest notes of Gabriel's horn would fail to reach them.

Folly Island, which we now hold, runs along the coast from Stono Inlet, north, and is only separated from Morris Island by a narrow stream, which at low tide is almost fordable. The island is about eight miles long and a mile and a half wide, and commands Morris Island, and on which we can plant batteries that, with the aid of the gunboats, can shell them off of Morris Island in eight hours time, and once in possession of Morris Island, we have Gamming's Point, on which we can plant siege guns, with which we could batter down Fort Sumter—the sand-hills being perfect protection from the shot and shell of Fort Sumter and Moultrie.

We are fortifying this island and preparing further advance. The old Sixty-seventh is now encamped within three and a half miles of Fort Sumter.

Certain eminent "conservative" leaders are constantly proclaiming their loyalty to the Government, while they vehemently damn the Administration. This is only another covert dodge to divide the North and weaken its hands against rebellion. The distinction between the Government and the Administration is not very obvious to common minds; but these superior patriots claim that they may be sound supporters of the former while they oppose every act of the latter. Like Col. Ethan Spike, of the State of main, who, in a close canvass, which hinged on the liquor law, announced himself in favor of the Maine Law, but against its re-enforcement, they are in favor of Government, but against the exercise of its function. But the heresy is even older yet. In 1794 Washington was roundly denounced by the sympathizers with the insurgents for sending a military force to quell the whiskey rebellion.

They draw a nice distinction between the Administration and the Government, and claimed to be in favor of the latter while they were overthrowing the former. Washington exposed and denounced this manifest heresy. He wrote to the Governor of Virginia that to foster a "want of confidence in the Administration, at such a time, was to breed jealousy and distrust of the Government." This was Washington's view of the matter. He saw no distinction between the Government and Administration. But then Washington was not a patriot of the Copperhead species.

HOW GENERAL GRANT STARTED ON HIS PRESENT CAMPAIGN.—The Chicago Tribune learns from a gentleman who participated in the recent campaign of General Grant, up to the time the enemy crossed the Big Black in the retreat toward Vicksburg, that in starting on the movement the General disencumbered himself of everything, setting an example to his officers and men. He took neither a horse nor a servant, overcoat nor blanket, nor tent, nor camp chest, not even a clean shirt. His only baggage consisted of a tooth brush. He shared all the hardships of the private soldiers, sleeping in the front and in the open air, and eating hard tack and salt pork. He wore no sword, had on a low-crowned citizens' hat, and the only thing about him to mark him as a military man was the two stars on his undress military coat. On the battle field he was omnipresent, riding everywhere, generally alone, into the very thickest of the fight, inspiring the troops by his imperturbable coolness and bravery.

HUNG.—Griffin, the murderer of Shane, was hung in Lafayette on Tuesday, June 23rd. The scaffold was erected in a small prairie about half a mile from the jail, and the prisoner walked to it with a firm, careless step, accompanied by two Catholic priests, whose faith he had embraced during his imprisonment. About fifteen hundred persons were present, among them a large number of women. The doomed man read from a paper a justification of the killing of Shane, which was followed by a prayer. He expressed a hope that the people present had not come from mere curiosity, but to be warned against committing crime, and in sympathy for him. At ten minutes after twelve o'clock, noon, the drop fell, and he died instantly.—Oregonian.

SUICIDE.—The Victory Colonist of the 2d inst., says: A man known as Jack Thomson deliberately destroyed himself the other day at Port Discovery. W. T., by placing the muzzle of a loaded rifle to his face and pulling the trigger with his toe. The top of his head was blown away.

A ROUND.—Peace makes plenty, plenty makes pride; pride breeds quarrel, and quarrel makes war; war brings spoil, and spoil poverty; poverty patience, and poverty peace. So peace brings war, and war brings peace.
