A Smack in School. A District School not far away 'Mid Berkshire hills, one Winter's day. Was humming with its wonted noise Of three score mingled girls and boys-Some few upon their task intent, But more on furtive mischief bent; The while the master's downward look Was fastened on a copy book-Rose loud and clear a rousing smack ! As't was a battery of bliss Let off in one tremendous kiss! "What's that ?" the starded muster eries; That, thir," a little imp replies, Wath William Willith, if you pleathe-I saw him kith Thuthanna Peathe!" With frown to make a statute thrill The master thundsred "Hither Will!" Like wretch o'ertaken on his track, With stolen chattles on his back, Will bung his head in fear and shame, And to the awful presence came-A great, green, bashful simpleton, The butt of all good natured fun. With smile suppressed and birch upraised, The threatener faltered-"I'm amazed That you, my biggest pupil, should Be guilty of an act so rude! Before the whole set school to boot. What evil genius put you to't ?" "Twas she, herself, sir," sobbed the lad, 'I didn't mean to be so bad; But when Susanna shook her curls, And whispered I was 'fraid of girls, And duren't kiss a baby's doll, I couldn't stand it, sir, at all? But up and kissed her on the spot, I know-bee boo-I ought to not, But some how from her looks-boo hoo, I thought she kind o' wished me to !"

The Miser's Request.

The hour hand of Phillip Acre's old fashioned silver watch was pointing to the figure eight-the sung red curtains shut night, and the fire snapped and crackled behind the red-hot bar of the little grate in a most cozy and comfortable sort of way, easting a rosy shine into the thoughtful brown eyes that were tracing castles and coronets in the burning coals.

For Phillip Acre was, for once, indulging himself in the dangerous fascinations of a day-dream.

" If I were only rich!" he pondered to himself. "Ah, if! Then good by to all those musty old law books; good-by to the mended boots and thrice turned coats, man's life into wretched boudage! Would paintings and high stepping horses? Would not I buy a set of jewels for Edith-not pale pearls or sickly emeralds, but dia, monds, to blaze like links of fire upon her royal throat? Wouldn't I-what nonsense, I'm talking though!" he cried, suddenly rousing himself. " Phil. Acre, hold your confounded tongue! I did suppose you were a fellow of more sense! Here you areneither rich, nor distinguished, but a wimple law student, while Edith Wyllia is as far above your moonstruck aspirations as Queen of Night herself! She loves me though-she will wait-and the time may one day come! If only Dr. Wyllia were not so distrustful of a fellow! However, I must learn to prove myself worthy of the sweetest prize that ever-Hallo! come in there, whoever you are."

It was only the serving-maid of the establishment carrying a letter in the corner of her apron, between her finger and thumb.

" Please, sir, the postman just left ittwo ceuts to pay."

" Here are your two coppers, then, Katy -a pretty fair equivalent for any letter I may receive. Now, then," he added, as the door closed behind Katy's substantia, back, " let's see what my unknown corres pondent has to say. A black seal, ch? Not having any relation to lose, I am not alarmed at the prognostic?"

He broke the seal, and glanced leisurely over the short, business-like communica tion contained within, with a face that va ried from incredulous surprise to sudden of his senses. " No, I'm wide awake and honor as a Christian gentleman !" in my right mind; it is not delusion, no "You have done right, Phillip," said part of my waking vision! But who would Edith, with sparkling eyes. "We will ever suppose that old Theron Mortimer, wait and hope on, happy in loving one anwhom I havn't seed since I was a boy of other more dearly than ever. But who is sixteen, and picked him out of the river she? what is her name?" half dead between cramp and fright, "That's just what I didn't stop to inwould die und teave me all his money, quire. I will write again to my lawyer to Why. I'm not the shadow of a relation; ask these questions and to direct that a but, then, I never heard that the old man deed of conveyance be instantly made out, had any kith or kin. so I can't imagine and then darling-" any harm in taking advantage of his odd His lips quivered a moment-yet he freak! Rich-am I really to be rich? Oh, manfully completed the bitter sentence : Edith! Edith!"

There was only one alloying shadowing—the almost imperceptible touch of distrust and suspicion with which stern old Dr. Wyllis regarded his future son-inlaw! Ah! he feared to trust his only child to the keeping of any man who had not been proved by the fiery furnance of trial!

It was precisely a week before the day appointed for the wedding, and the soft were just lighted in Dr. Wyllis' drawing 'em for Phil. room, where Edith sat among her white roses and heliotropes, working on a bit of cambric ruffling, and singing to herself She was a slender, beautiful girl, with vioont the rain and darkness of the March let gray eyes, a blue-veined forchead, and painters love to portray.
