Pumidd in maxing off the fastenings on the midding a bold and and practical sense on the great subject of the religion of the pupils, except with the Catholics. The Academy will be under the direction of an Or-der that has attained at Fronch Provice, at Salem and der that has attained at French Proirie, at Salem and especially at Portland, a wide-spread celebrity as teachers; then, it will not be wonderful that it shall be well patronized, nor that the advantages there enjoyed by pupils shall be appreciated by so many parents outside of the Catholic community. All the different denominations hear testimony to the bright character of the Institution, and point to the influence well afford to pay him well and keep him II has strondy exercised on the manners and morals of the community, and the greater influence it is destined to exercise hereafter, an influence which will not and with the present, but affect generations yet to come. If we want to have fruits in our garden, we plant and cultivate fruitful troos; in like manner, if we desire to see in this part of Oregon and in the vicinity, the happy results of such an Inatitution as the flisters' Academy, we must establish it and support it: for this purpose, we have only to consult our charity and generosity. The education of a multitude of children: the care of the sick; the distribution of assistance to the poor; in a word, all the transuros of christian charity are distributed with open hands, but with intelligence by the Sisters of Charity. Nothing, consequently, deserves more encouragement; nothing is more worthy of our pat, rounge and protection than this Charitable Institu-The example of our brothren of every relition. gious denomination, who, on similar constions, at Salem, at French Prairie and at Portland, seem to be scituated with uncommon real, should excite in us a holy emulation, to exercise our humanity and testify our charity to the establishment of the Academy. Trusting to the past liberality shown to us, a col indion shall be started for the purpose of purchas-ing a convenient ground, and building a comfortable house for the Sisters School.
