OREGON VOLUNTEERS OF 1854.

Fay, the editor and managing agent of the Reporter, under the head of "Dowell's Claim," copies the following from the Avena:

His expedition was organized for but one purpose; it was adapted to but one purpose, and that was to swindle govern-ment and get money.

The Arena, published at Salem, is in fact owned by the Captain-Gen. John F. Miller-who was one of the first men to sign the roll of volunteers, and who ran for the captaincy of the company-got beat-and then deserted it. The volunteers may expect the organ of the man who joins a company and deserts it before it is organized to villfy and slander their inst claims, and we are not surprised at its publication in the Reporter without comment, by the candidate for congressional honors, James D. Fay, notwithstanding, a few weeks ago, while commenting on the claims of 1854, and particularly upon that of Benjamin Franklin Dowell, he said: "We cannot allow him to represent us as placing all the claims for service in that expedition upon a level with his own. to Dowell broke its back last June by al-

Now, the Copper-Resolved by the Legislative Assembly of the Territory of Oregon, That our Dele-gate in Congress be and is hereby request head organ at Salem says it was a swindle from beginning to end, and the Reporter ed to urge a speedy appropriation for the payment for supplies furnished, and other expenses incurred, on account of, and for endorses the sentiment, under the supervision of Fay, who last June told you that he the remuneration of the officers and men of company 'A' and others of the 9th Regwas the volunteers' friend. (Signed) Sucaker of the House of Representatives J. K. KELLY, President of the Council.

The Legislative Assembly was largely Democratic. More than two-thirds of both Houses belonged to the Democratic party; yet this resolution was adopted without a dissenting voice. During the time Oregon had a Territorial government. every Legislature of Oregon was largely Democratic, and every Governor and District Judge belonged to the old organization of the Denocratic party; yet every Legislative Assembly, from the time of the service, as long as we had a territorial government, and as long as the claimants asked it, passed similar resolutions to the foregoing, urging our delegate in Congress to have these claims and the soldiers paid. All this time the Secession Copperhead, General Joseph Lane, remained in Congress, the belegate and agent of the prople of Oregon, but never introduced a bill in Congress to pay them.

The expedition was recommended by Whigs and Democrats. A Democratic Governer ordered it out; a good Democrat was elected Captain over John F. Miller. who was at the time a vindictive, selfah partizan, and is now a vicious Secession Copperhead. The entire company did their duty faithfully. A Democratic legis lature time after time recommended the payment; yet, at this day and time, Fay, through the Reporter, has the impudence to my that the Democratic party are not responsible for these things; because the people's unfaithful Copperhead servant in Congress, Gen. Joe Lane, refused to obey his intructions, and refused to try to get it paid. During all this time the pation was at peace, and the copperheads boasted of plenty of money. If so, why did General Lane not try to get these claims paid? Why did he not introduce a bill to get the soldiers paid? If Dowell's claim is false and fraudulent, it was still his duty to have the soldiers paid. We ask, in the name of the injured, brave and gallant soldiers, why did not General Lane introduce a bill into Congress to have the soldiers paid, and to exclude the fraudulent claim of Dowell? But Fay says the party which belongs

Nor do we wish to charge Benjamin lowing itself to be saddled with his claim This again is contradicted by the records, by the voie on the different candidates, and by the hypocritical county platform of the copperheads. The candidates for Congress rap on the national platform and on national questions. Nothing was said against them personally, and they were not generally known in Southern Oregon. In Jackson county, Col. Kelly, the Democrat ie candidate for Congress, beat Mr. Hen derderson thirty votes; but under our county platform we elected, in Jackson county, Wm. Hoffman, County Clerk; John S. Love, County Commissioner; Rev. M. A. Williams, School Superintendent Dr. L. S. Thompson, Coroner; Capt. F. B. Sprague, Assessor, and this same Dowell beat his opponent in Jackson county fourteen votes, making six candidates elect ed in the county, on the county platform. while their national candidate, on the national platform, was beaten thirty votes. in Jackson county, and twenty-seven in Josephine. This looks as if Dowell's claim broke the back of his party, with a vengeance. Dowell proclaimed, wherever he went, that he was in favor of paying the volunteers of 1854, and all just claims, and in the two counties Dowell was elected copies from the organ of the first man who Prosecuting Attorney, on this platform; uttered the slanderous falschood, that the while Mr. Henderson, the candidate for Cougress, ran on the national platform. and in the two counties was beaten fiftyseven votes. On the 17th of July, 1854, Love beat Mr. Nichols, who did not say this Democratic Governor of Oregon is- whether he was for or against the payment, such his order, in pursuance of law, to fifty-one votes. ### [Communicated.] ... THE TWIN TRAITORS.

The Gonfedrate organ, the Reporter, conducted by the traitor Malone and his asso ciate Fay, weekly exhibits such a degree of venom, and malignity, that these twin traitors seem possessed of all the hate and renom of infernal fiends. No doubt their ancor and desperation is increased under the defeat and total overthrow of their coasted Confederacy, and they seek their evenge and concentrate their bate against all who have not been guilty partakers with them in their vile and thrice-accuracd treason. Now that the last plank of the traitor's hope is gone, they are left a prey to their debased and hellish passions of hate and revenge: and in their forlorn state. sinking under a load of infamy, neither regarding truth or honesty, they hurl their foul abuse and slander with the looseness and energy of depraved spirits. Slander, upwards of six years after the services of The foulest whelp of sin," is a legitimate 1854 were performed, and instead of atweapon for their use. No one, high or tending to your intercats by introducing ow, outside of their treason-spotted associates, escape their vile epithets and base calumnies. Boldly and unscrupulously they malign the highest and noblest patriots of the land, ruthlessly and falsely assailing and stigmatising them as "demagogues and renegades." There is nothing to have paid you long ago. It is the imso sacred but they, jackal like, will invade perative duty of the General Government its precincts.

The drapery of woe and a nation in mourning are subjects of their ribaldry and coarse jests.

This already notorious pair, destitute of the common feelings of humanity; these open and undisguised sympathizers with the rebellion from its inception and outbreak; these libellers and falsifiers of every act of our government; these malicious and persistent slanderers of its "official head;" this Democratic pair, whose "offense is so ble, loathsome twins, whose hearts have so long festered in treason that their rotteness floats to view on the surface of their traitor sheet; this well assorted pair, having such holy horror for "Puritans," seen the hated Paritan at every turn, and is troubled. As holy water is to their great prototype, the Devil, so the Puritan is te

They see the risen and rising hosts of the hated Poritan marching on, treading down vile treason and traitors. They see the avenging sword already thrust through the body of their idol Confederacy, and yet unsheathed against the enemies of the Republic and human liberty, and well nigh the work is done. The cheeks of the vile and thrice infamous traitors and moral assassins blanch as they see the Puritan en sign high and "marching on." A thries damning record stands ogainst them, and, like the poisoned shirt of Nessus, will hug them closer and closer; and if they were not as impervious to moral sense, as the shell of a crocodile to a rain drop, the mirror of their infamy would make them stand awhast, loath their lives yet dread to die. The arguments in favor of temperance are so numerous and so plausible, it is not necessary for us to recapitulate them. They have for years been placed before the public, in so strong a light, that it almost seems to be partaking of tautology to mention any thing concerning the subject. We have had the subject presented before us in such a strong light, within the last week, that we cannot forbear to mention it, and give our little influence in its favor. It has become quite fashionable at all the parties in this part of the country use more or less ardent spirits, and while as yet we see no very bad effect. still we deprecate the habit and think that the tendency is not for good, and. on community (yourselves excepted) were

Taylor, Deputy Grand Worthy Chief Templar, which for their argumentative points, force and clearness, are seldom, if ever surpassed. Mr. Taylor is noted for the parity of his ideas, his sublime eloquence and his witicisms. We think his arrival in our midst was well timed, as it has awakened an interest in temperance, which, we hope, will not soon die out. Mr. Taylor has succeeded in organizing a lodge of Good Tempiras in our town, numbering thirty-five charter members, composed of many of our worthiest citizens. From what we know of this Temperauce Organization, we apprehend that it is in all its parts, one of the most perfect Temperance Societies of which we have any knowledge. We fully endorse the spirit that seems to prompt this movement and wish it abundant success. The untold misery that has overwhelmed thousands in this State, growing out of ardent spirits, is a lesson sufficiently frightful to admonish every man who desires to see moral improvements advance, to aid and assist in the good work. If what the Arena says be true, and Fay virtually endorses the same by publishing it, it was a swindling expedition from be. ginning to end. If so, John F. Miller is a swindler: because he lived here and knew all the circumstances, yet he joined the company and advised others to join it, and then deserted because the thieves would not give him all the honors and the largest are of the spoils.

Fay mys "the Democratic party always refused to carry the enormous load," and "that the party which belongs to Dowell broke its back last June by allowing itself to be saddled with his $13,000 claim." Now, this is false from beginning to end. The copperheads. Bush, Lane, Miller, Fay & Co., have opposed the payment of the whole of the expenses, but the Democratic party was, under its old organization, in favor of its payment.

One week this leader of the copperheads doo't wish to charge Dowell with attempt ing to defraud the government or any individual; yet a few weeks more, and he "expedition was organized for but one purpore; it was adapted 'to but one purpose, d that was to swindle government and how that in July 1854, General C.S.
