

THE OREGON SENTINEL

THE RETURN.

Three years! I wonder if she'll know me! I'm a little, and I left one arm at Petersburg, and I am grown as brown as the plump chestnuts on my little farm: And I am as shaggy as the chestnut burrs. But ripe and sweet within, and wholly here.

The darling! how I long to see her! My heart outruns this feeble soldier pace: But I remember, after I had left, A little Charlie came to take my place; Ah! how the laughing three-year old brown eyes (His mother's eyes) will stare with pleased surprise!

Sure, they'll be at the corner watching! I sent them word that I should come to night; The birds all knew it, for they crowed around: Twitting their welcome with a wild delight; And that old robin, with a halting wing, I loved her life three years ago last spring.

Three years—perhaps I am but dreaming, For like the pilgrim of the long ago, I've tugged a weary burden at my back. Through Summer's heat and winter's blinding snow, Till now I reach my home, my darling's breast, There I can roll my burden off—and rest."

When morning came the early rising sun Laid his light fingers on a soldier sleeping Where a soft covering of bright green grass Over two lowly mounds was lightly creeping. But waked him not; his was the rest eternal. Where the brown eyes reflected love's superna.

A man with an enormously large mouth called on a dentist to get a tooth drawn. After the dentist had prepared his instrument and was about to commence operations, the man began to strain and stretch his mouth, till he got it to a frightful width. "Stay, sir," said the dentist, "Don't trouble yourself to stretch your mouth any wider, for I intend to stand outside of it to draw your tooth."
