Miscellaneous.

The whole channel of the Mediteranean must be strewn with human bones. Carthagenians; Syrians, Sidonians, Egyptians, Persians, Greeks and Romans-there they lie, side by side, beneath the eternal waters, and the modern ship that brings freight from Alexandria, sails in its whole course over buried nations. It may be the corruption of the dead that adds that brightness to the prosphoresence of the waves. The Orientals have a superstition on this subject, which represents the spirits of the departed as hovering, whether on land or water, over the spot where the ruins of their earthly tenements are found; so that in ploughing the Mediterranean we sail through armies of ghosts more multitudinous than the waves. These patient spirits sometimes ride on the toam, and at others repose in those delicious little hollows which look like excavated emerals between the crests of the waves, It is their armies all thronging together, they believe, that constitutes the phosphoresence of the sea wherever there is light; and the billows flash with the luminousness of vanished generations, that concontrate, is it were, the starlight on their wings,

HEROISM .- Man can do nothing greater than to lay down his life for his country. The human mind can conceive of nothing grander or sublimer, than the act of one who immolates himmay be greater and happier. And this has been done for us by multiplied the Eternal gates have been constantly lifted up, to let in the shades of our countrymen, who went up in fluttering cohorts from the whirlpool of battle, Their broken tabernacles lie upon every hill, and plain, and wilderness, in the dark and fatal land of slavery; and years hence, the whistling plowman will stop in silence and dismay as he upturns a heroe's skull from the farrow. - Daily Flag.

In a recent case in Indiana, a Justice complacently remarked in summing up the testimony: "Gentlemen of the jury, in this case the counsel on both sides are unintelligible, the witnesses on both sides are incredible, and the plaintiff and defendant are both such bad characters, that to me it is a matter of indifference which way you give your verdict."

The following is from the Zanesville Times: Among the marriages occurring in this city last week, was one of a highly respectable young woman, to an individual who was a Southerner, and at the beginning of the war a slave, notwithstanding the fact of his having, to all appearance, no negro blood in his veins

A Wealthy man who lately died in Toledo, Ohio, left a will bequeathing hatt of his wealth (being childless) to his wife for her use as long as she remains single, the other half to be given to her when she marries again.
