CHILDHOOD.

Childhood, sweet and sunny childhood, With its careless, thoughtless air. Like the verdant tangled wildwood, Wants the training hand of care.

For it springeth all around us-- Glad to know and quick to learn; Asking questions that confound us, Teaching lessons in its turn.

Who loves not its joyous revel, Leaping lightly on the lawn, Up the knoll, along the level, Free and graceful as a fawn?

Let it revel, it is nature, Giving to the little dears Strength of limb and healthful features, For the toil of coming years.

He who checks a child with terror, Stops its play and stills its song, Not alone commits an error, But a great and moral wrong.

Give it play, and never fear-- Active life is no defect; Never, never break its spirit-- Curb it only to direct.

Would you dam the flowing river, Thinking it would cease to flow? Onward it must go forever-- Better teach it where to go.

Childhood is a fountain welling, Trace its channel in the sand, And its currents, spreading, swelling, Will revive the withered land.

Childhood is the vernal season, Trim and train the verdant shoot; Love is to the maturing reason As the blossom to the fruit.

Tender twigs are bent and folded, Art to nature beauty lends; Childhood easily is molded-- Manhood breaks but seldom bends.

RECONSTRUCTION.

A bill has been agreed upon by the Reconstruction Committee of the House which ignores the reconstruction acts of Johnson and the Attorney General, and gives the reconstruction acts the interpretation which Generals Sheridan and Sickles have given them in their orders and acts.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The Santa Cruz Times of July 20th has the following good joke, the particulars of which are so well written that no one can help appreciating it:

One day this week, "mine host" of the Pacific Ocean house, as is his daily custom, took a carriage load of his lady guests to the beach for a bath.

As he was about driving off, a certain saloon-keeper (Bradley)—who is a tip-top fellow, and very popular with both sexes—concluded to go.

In dressing for the bath, it seems that the only pair of unmentionables at hand which would fit him were appropriated by "mine host," so that he had to put up with a pair about three sizes too small for him.

After swimming, and diving and performing many very difficult evolutions in the water, to the delight and wonderment of the lookers-on, our hero thought he would amaze and astonish the audience by one grand and wonderful feat.

He accordingly gathered his energies and made the effort—when, alas! the pants which had miraculously stood the strain of his extraordinary efforts throughout the exhibition, succumbed to the muscular power used against them, and parting with the performer quietly floated out to sea.

Here was a nice fix for a modest young man to be in. Twenty ladies between him and the place of dressing, and they unconscious of his dilemma! He called for "mine host," who was enjoying himself a little distance away, and telling him of the accident besought him to go to the bath house for another suit.

In accordance with his habit of obliging everybody, which makes him so popular with all who know him, Bromley consented, and started for the dressing-room apparently for that purpose. Brad, breathed easier. He'd soon be all right. To his surprise and indignation, however, he saw Bromley emerge from the house, dressed in his regular garments, jump into the carriage and drive down to where the ladies were standing, helped them into the vehicle, and then called out "Come Brad, come; don't keep the ladies waiting; besides, you'll catch your death of cold staying in the water so long."

Brad shivered and muttered: "Oh, d--m you, you're fishing for another horn button." Soon the ladies began to grow impatient, and unconscious of his deplorable condition, called on him to come out. "Twas no go. Even their sweet voices failed to bring him forth. He told them he believed he'd stay there all day—salt water was his natural element—when he was in the briny fluid he felt as though he never could leave it, and hoped they'd excuse him, and return to the hotel without him. Oh, no—they wouldn't listen to such a thing. They'd never leave the beach without him. He was such pleasant company, that half the enjoyment of the drive would be lost if he were left behind. They were assisted in their entreaties by Bromley, who would occasionally put in a word of objection to going off without him. Finally, after keeping him in the water nearly an hour, "mine host" took pity on him and had the attendant send him the requisite articles, so that he could make a break for the dressing-room. Then, for the first time, the ladies became cognizant of the reason of Brad's love for salt water, and the joke "mine host" had played on him. Their merry and long continued laughter attested that they, too, enjoyed the fun, and no doubt will long remember the wonderful feats performed by our water hero, and the circumstances attending them. There was no wine drunk after that party returned—oh, no, not a drop.

NATURALIZATION FRAUDS IN NEW ORLEANS.—The attention of the military authorities at New Orleans has been called to the manner in which the naturalization laws are violated by the Courts in issuing papers. The laws require applicants for naturalization to prove to the satisfaction of the Court, among other things, that during their residence in this country they have "behaved as men of good moral character, attached to the principles of the Constitution of the United States of America, and well disposed to the good order and happiness of the same."

Many persons who served in the army of the rebellion have applied for and received naturalization papers, although they commit perjury in taking the required oath. These characters, when refused registration, pretend to be very much aggrieved.

A SCHOOLBOY being asked by his teacher, "Of what is the German Diet composed?" replied "Sour kroust, schnapps, lager beer and six cum rous."

A POET intended to say, "See the pale martyr in a sheet of fire," instead of which the printer made him say, "See the pale martyr with his shirt on fire!"

CURE FOR POISON OAK.—The San Francisco Times furnishes an antidote for poison oak in the following: By a wise provision of Providence, the antidote to the virus of poison oak grows alongside of that violent plant. It is the yerba d'oro or bearberry. A decoction of the leaves of this applied to the part contaminated will invariably counteract the poisonous effects of the oak. The remedy has been long known to the natives of this country, and they seldom use anything else. A gentleman stationed at Fort Point, the sutler, Mr. Uhlrandt, has been in the habit of employing the remedy, and with unvarying success. He speaks so highly of its qualities that we publish his practice for the good of the public.

A certain cockney, overcome by his sensibilities, fainted at the grave of his fourth spouse. "What shall we do with him?" asked a perplexed friend of his. "Let him alone," said a wag-gish bystander, "he'll soon re-wive."
