

CHEERFUL BATHING.—"Mark Train," in his letter to the Alta, dated at Odessa, Russia, August 22d, thus describes what he saw at that place:

If there is one thing that is really cheerful in the world, it is cheerfulness. I have noticed it often. And I have noticed that when a man is right down cheerful, he is seldom unhappy for the time being. Such is the nature of man. Now, I have often thought that our style of bathing was rather reserved than otherwise, and lacked many elements of cheerfulness. But you cannot say that of the Russian style. I watched a party of them at it this afternoon in the harbor, and it is really nice. The men and women, and the boys and girls, all go in together, along about noon, and the men don't wear anything at all, but the boys don't, the little girls don't, and the young women and the old women usually wear a single white thin garment with ruffles around the top of it and short sleeves, (which I have forgotten the name of it), but this would be a very good apology for a bathing dress, if it would only stay down. But it won't do it. It will float up around their necks in the most scandalous way, and the water is clear, and yet they don't seem to know enough to kick up the mud on the bottom. I never was so outraged in my life. At least a hundred times, in the seven hours I stayed there, I would have just got up and gone away from there disgusted, if I had had any place to go. Several times I had a mind to go anyhow. Why, those young ladies thought no more of turning summer-saults, when I was not looking, than nothing in the world. Incensed as I was, I was compelled to look, most of the time, during this barbarous exhibition, because it forced them to make a show of modesty, at least. Yet it wouldn't even have accomplished that, if they hadn't been so fond of show naturally.

Well, you can't conceive of it. It was awful. But sometimes my outraged feelings were crowded down by my fears for the safety of those girls. They were so reckless. One splendid looking young woman went in with nothing on but a shawl, and she kept it wrapped around her so that I was afraid all the time that she would tangle her feet in its long fringes and drown herself. My solititude became so unbearable at last that I went and signified to her that if she wanted to take off her shawl I would hold it for her. But she only kicked up her heels and dived out of sight. I just took her to be one of your high-dipper, mock-modest kind, and I left her to her fate. But she was the handsomest girl in the party, and it was a pity to see her endangering her life in that way. I said to Brown: "It makes my heart bleed to look upon this unallowable scene."

"We better go, then," he said. "If you stay here seven more hours you might bleed to death."

So we went away, but it was marvellously cheerful bathing.

INDUSTRY AND PATIENCE.—There are two things that always pay, even in this not over remunerative existence. They are working and waiting. Either is useless without the other. Both united are invincible, and inevitably triumphant. He who waits without working, is simply a man yielding to sloth and despair. He who works without waiting, is fitful in his striving, and misses results by impatience. He who works steadily, and works patiently, may have a long journey before him, but at its close he will find his reward. In this connection we quote from a recent essay in the Atlantic Monthly:

"It is said that our mechanics are nearly all foreigners, and that an American apprentice is an extinct species, like the cave bear or the dodo. Farmer's sons prefer any way of getting their bread to work with their hands. The peddler's caste ranks higher than the manly independence of the plough. A country store is an object of ambition, where the only toil is to deal out a glass of tipples to the village sots who haunt those castles of indolence to drink, to smoke, and to twaddle over stale village news. Some young fellows solicit subscriptions for maps or for great American works, or drum for fruit nurseries, patent clothes-wringers, or baby jumpers. Others aspire to enter the religious mediant orders of America as paid brethren. They are too proud to work, but not ashamed to beg. Beg is perhaps a hard word; but solicitation is begging when the solicitor personally profits by it."

During August $1,000,000 greenbacks were withdrawn from circulation.

AN ORIGINAL POEM.
BY THE MAN WHO WROTE IT.

Some write for fun, and some for fame,
And some to make a splutter;
But we, like all true poets, claim
To write for bread and butter.
Thus you see our very laudable object of doing good to ourselves, if we cannot do good to anybody else.

We only wish to have it known,
That all our goods must sell,
And then the people all will come—
You bet they will.
Thus giving us a fine opportunity of making money.

We've fancy Soaps and good Colognes,
And Hair Oils by the dozen—
An endless lot of good Perfumes,
Put up by old H. Bazin.
Thus giving all the young folks an opportunity of becoming "sweet-scented."

We have Restorers for the Hair,
Much better than your dye;
We've preparations for the Ear,
And lotions for the Eye.
Thus giving old maids and crusty bachelors an opportunity of fixing up for the matrimonial market.

We've Drugs and Books; we've Oils and Paints,
And trinkets of all kinds;
We've Nostrums good for all complaints,
And sell to suit the times.
Thus giving old and young an opportunity for speculation.

Now, all who have the ready cash
Can call around to-morrow,
For they can find just what they want
Much cheaper than to borrow.
And will thus give the City Drug Store fellows a fine opportunity to display their extensive stock of NEW GOODS to much better advantage than they could possibly do on paper. They will say, however, that they have a fine assortment of
