Up Salt River.
During the speech of Hon. Henry Edgerton, delivered at Santa Cruz, Oct. 22d, says the Times, the following verses were read by the speaker as a political doxology, entirely original, which were responded to with rounds of applause:
Not a sigh was heard nor a funeral note, As up Salt River we hurried,
But we longed to depart from our weary boat And wished our leader was buried.
He was killed so dead on election day By the Grant and Colfax legions, That night was left his friends but to pray His soul from the infernal regions.
And thus in the dark and gloomy night,
Of defeat and despair we hurried,
With his clay-clad corpse concealed from sight To the place where our dead are buried.
The coffin was ready—'twas Belmont's best—And in rebel gray we found him, He lay like a traitor taking his rest,
With the Confederate rag around him.
By the side of McClellan we made his grave, With our torches dimly burning;
And the same old species of that gallant brave We used for the soft turf turning.
And there he lies in the moonlight cold,
On the banks of the lonely Salt River;
No stone was erected the tale to unfold—Our dead are forgotten forever.
And now in the lotte we'll find relief;
The offices, alas! are departed; With Seymour and Blair we have come to grief,
And hence we are all broken hearted.

Letter From Washington.
FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.
WASHINGTON Nov. 2d, 1868.
THE NEW DEMOCRATIC REBELLION.
The new Democratic rebellion still continues in the South, but the election of Grant and Colfax to-morrow by an overwhelming majority of the American people will soon put a quietus on it. Since the nomination of Seymour and Blair hundreds of prominent white Union men, and a still greater number of negroes, have been assassinated by the Ku Klux Democracy of the South.
Within a fortnight they have murdered the Hon. James Hinds, member of Congress from Arkansas, who was shot by the Secretary of a Democratic county committee, near Little Rock; killed an officer of the Freedmen's Bureau, also a Captain in the U. S. Army, and two negroes, and wounded a sheriff, near the same place; killed about fifty negroes in St. Bernard Parish, Louisiana and took possession of New Orleans; killed six men in Crittenden, Arkansas, in two nights last week; besides killing and wounding scores of others all over the South, and committing other depredations too numerous to mention.

POLITICAL MATTERS.
The great political canvass of 1868, the most important and exciting in our history, closes amid unbounded enthusiasm on the part of the Republicans, and despair and confusion in the ranks of the Democracy. Up to the very day of the election many of the leading organs of the party continue to denounce Seymour and Blair and clamor for a change of candidates. The National Intelligencer still pitches into Seymour and Blair and the Tammany ring in unmeasured terms. In the midst of all this wrangling and confusion, the American people have witnessed the extraordinary spectacle of the Democratic candidate for President of the United States rushing over the country in wild despair at the rate of thirty miles an hour, and vainly attempting to rally to his support the flying remnants of his party. Frightened at the revolt of the State elections, Seymour hastened from his retreat at "pent up Utica," and made a pilgrimage to Chicago, harranguing the people in season and out of season at all the principal points along the route, going and returning. On the other hand the Republicans are confident of victory, but they are nevertheless active and vigilant. Last week they held nearly three hundred political meetings in the State of New York, and have averaged about the same number each week during the past two months. The same spirit has prevailed in nearly all the States—particularly Pennsylvania, Ohio, and Indiana.

Secretary Seward made a speech at Auburn day before yesterday, in the course of which he scolded the Republican party in order to justify his own course, but came out it is said, in favor of its principles and candidates.

THE GOOSE LAKE COUNTRY.
From Al. Cage, one of the prospectors who have just returned from a two month's trip in search of gold, we derive some information about the Goose Lake and Pitt River country. The party went by way of Camp C. F. Smith to Camp Alvord, and thence traveled Drew's road across the mountains to old Camp Warner, and from there across the valley to new Camp Warner.
The party prospected the country thoroughly between Albert Lake and the North end of Goose Lake, where a fine and extensive agricultural district was found. They then traveled down the West side of Goose Lake, finding only lava plains in some places covered with stunted juniper. At the South end of the lake were found fertile and well watered farming lands, which, in our informant's opinion, cannot be excelled between the Rocky Mountains and the Sierra and Cascade Range. Game, such as deer antelope, rabbits, and sage hens were found in abundance. Large and delicious wild plums were found in profusion in the country around Goose Lake and on Pitt River. These plums are of two varieties, red and yellow, as large as hens, eggs, and grow on bushes from three to four feet high. The party had supplied themselves with dried fruit, but threw it away after arriving in the country where these plums abounded.—Headquarters were established on Davis Creek, a short distance East of the South end of Goose Lake, and a party was sent to Camp Bidwell, in Surprise Valley, for a fresh supply of provision, which being procured the party prospected both sides of Pitt River down to the Big Bend about fifty miles from Fort Crook, without finding more than one color to the pan.
On the North side of main Pitt River nearly where it is joined by the South Fork, Al. informs us that they found a human skeleton which to all appearance had been disinterred by the savages. A bullet hole was found in the left temple. There was but little flesh on the bones, which the party gathered together and buried again. The following extract from one of Joe's letters to the Avantache a year ago, makes it almost certain that the remains were those of Lieutenant John Madigan, who was killed during Crook's three days fight with the Indians near the South Fork last Fall:

"About two rods North of the main stream (Pitt River) and thirty below the junction of the South Fork, Lieutenant John Madigan, of Company H, First United States Cavalry, was buried. Madigan was shot through the left temple, tearing a hole through his head an inch in diameter."
Near the Big Bend on Pitt River, about fifty miles from Fort Crook, the party discovered extensive beds of excellent coal, which in a few years is destined to be valuable beyond computation at present. The river has cut a channel through one of these beds, and shows a coal strata of several feet in thickness. From the coal region they traveled Southeast to Madaline Creek and thence across to the head waters of the South Fork, which they prospected, and then explored the country along the eastern slope of the Warner Mountains, North as far as Camp Pitt.
The party then turned homewards and traversed the Alkali Lake country to Camp McGarry, from which place they followed the Chico road via Camp Smith to the Owyhee Ferry. On the West side of the road, between Camp Mc-Garry and the Pueblo Mountains, a large quartz ledge was observed cropping out for several miles. It was found to contain gold, silver and copper, but whether those metals are in paying quantities or not remains yet to be demonstrated. Surprise Valley is represented as being a fine farming country.
It is estimated that 7,500 tons of grain were raised there this year, of which 750 tons were required at camps Bidwell and Warner and the remainder must seek an outside market. Return teams are now transporting grain to Oreana.

The boys speak in complimentary terms of the officers at various military camps which they visited, especially of the Camp Bidwell commander, Captain Munson, who took special pains to show

MONEY RECOVERED.
A safe containing $204,000, belonging to Adams' Express company, which was lost in the Mississippi River by the burning of the steamer Jacob Carter, was recovered by wreckers, and has been forwarded to the Treasury Department by the express company, in order to have the contents examined and such notes as can be identified redeemed. The contents are so charged and burned that a considerable portion of it can never be identified. The officers have been at work on it about a month, and up to the present time have identified about $30,000. It will probably be six months before the examination will be completed. K.

THE OCTOBER VOTE.—The following is the official vote of Pennsylvania at the State election held on the 13th of October: Hartranft (Republican), 332, 896; Boyle (Democrat), 323, 101—Republicans majority, 9,885. The aggregate vote was 158, 927, larger than ever before thrown in the State. The only place where the Democrats gained over the Republicans was in Philadelphia, and this was accomplished by fraud. The Republicans of Pennsylvania in November quadrupled their majority of October.

The cars on the Pacific Railroad are now running from Vallejo to Sacramento, and the bridge across the Yuba at Marysville is nearly ready for the ties and rails. Oroville will soon have railroad connection with the Bay of San Francisco.

The grecian bend is splended for hunting pins and nose bleed, but it's awful for studying astronomy.

The Captain is of opinion that valuable mines will be discovered near Badger's Meadows, a few miles Northwest of Camp McGarry.

The country in the vicinity of the old Lassen Road, East of Goose Lake, appears to be filling up with water.
Localities that eight or ten years ago were dry alkali flats are now covered with water to a depth of several feet, forming extensive lakes, where fish and fowl abound.
No hostile Indians were seen, and, in fact none of any kind, except on two occasions. Once, Captain Jack and a small band from Hot Springs, on Pitt River paid the party a visit, and at another time a party of squaws and chilfriendly correction. The last time he was at thy friendly school he was in no ways reformed nor in the least benefitted thereby; for I perceive by the index of his mind that he is a liar, and the truth is not in him; that his pulse is sometimes slow, which betokeneth not an even temper, at other times it waxeth sluggish, notwithstanding I frequently urge him; when he should be on his duty, as thou knowest his usual hand denoteth, I find him slumbering; or, as the vanity of human reason phrases it, I catch him napping; I beseech thee, examine thoroughly, that thou mayest, being acquainted with his inward frame and disposition, draw him from the error of his way, and show him the path wherein he should go. It grieves me to think, and when I ponder therein I am verily of the opinion that his body is foul, and the whole mass is corrupt. Cleanse him, therefore, with thy charming physic, from all pollution, that he may vibrate and circulate according to the truth. I will place him for a few days under thy care, and pay for his board as thou requirist. I entreat thee, friend John, to demean thyself on this occasion with judgment, according to the gift which is in thee, and prove thyself a workman; and when thou layest thy correcting hand upon him let it be without passion, lest thou shouldst drive him to destruction.

Do thou regulate his motion for a time to come, by the motion of light that ruleth the day; and when thou findest him converted from the error of his ways, and more conformable to the above mentioned rules, then do thou send him home with a just bill of charges drawn out in the spirit of moderation, and it shall be sent to thee in the root of all evil.

POOR OREGON.—The Unionist says:
"Last Spring Oregon elected Rev. J.
S. Smith, a life-long copperhead to a seat in Congress. That body has a two-third Republican majority. The Senate is of the same political complexion. Now what do the people of this State expect of Mr. Smith? What influence will he possess, except with a few murriners for the Lost Cause, who, like himself, have been elevated to position by the votes of 'Pap Price's boys? Poor Oregon! Your fault is a grievous one, but grievously will you answer for it." The Roseburg Ensign in an article on the same subject, says:
"The State will cast its three votes in the Electoral College with the party, and for the candidates which have been discarded by the American people.
Thus we are politically at war with the dominant power in the Government to which we are forced to look for aid and encouragement in the improvments upon which we depend for a development of the resources of our young State. Our Senators are the only medium through which we can now expect to be heard at the National Capital, and we are indebted to our late Democratic Legislature for an effort to destroy their influence and power in the body of which they are members."

A letter from Belpassi (Nov. 14th) says: From seven to twenty minutes past twelve o'clock last night, there was an uncommon meteoric display at this place. The meteors were most numerous in the East and passed at most due West, without a single ecception. They were of uncommon size and brilliancy. Was it an effluent of Nature to aid in the Republican Demonstration at Salem on the same evening? Will some philosopher answer this query?
