Mother's

Each mother is a historian. She writes not the history of empires or of nations, upon paper, but writes her own history upon the imperishable mind of her child. The tablet and that history will remain indelible when time shall be no more. That history each mother shall meet again and read again, with eternal joy or unutterable grief, in the coming ages of eternity. This thought should weigh upon the mind of every mother, and render her deeply circumspect and prayerful and faithful in her serious work of training up her children for heaven and immortality.

The minds of children are very susceptible and easily impressed. A word, a look, a frown, may engrave an impression upon the mind of a child, which no lapse of time can efface or wash out. You walk along the sea shore when the tide is out, and form characters, or write words or names, in the white, smooth sand, which is spread out so clear and beautiful at your feet, according as your fancy may dictate; but the returning tide shall, in a few hours, wash out and efface all you have written.

Not so the lines and characters of truth and error which your conduct imprints on the mind of your child. There you write impressions, the everlasting good or ill of your child, which neither floods nor storms of earth can wash out, nor death's cold fingers efface, nor the slow-moving ages of eternity efface. How careful, then, should a mother be in the treatment of a child! How prayerful, and how serious and how earnest, to write the eternal truths of God's law in mind—those truths which shall be his guide and teacher when his voice shall be silent in death.

AN INDIANA DIVORCE.—An Indiana paper prints the following remarkable case: Mrs. Albert Lagrange left the room of her sick husband to go on an errand in the house of a neighbor across the street. While there she was asked if she had heard of the rumour to the effect that she was divorced from her husband. She replied no, and in a laughing way was making some remark about the absurd stories people tell, when a person entered and handed her a note from an attorney, informing her that the rumor was true. Her husband had made the application in the Circuit Court of Elkhart county, where the parties had never resided at all; the sheriff had served the process so informally that she had never received it. The application had been granted on the 19th of March; her husband had brought the decree home with him and lived with her more than a week before she found it out, during which time she had been attentively nursing him through a fit of sickness. The lady was almost killed by the totally unexpected intelligence. She had been married to her husband twenty-one years; they had two children nearly grown, and so far as is known the family had always lived in peace and unity. The husband is worth $5,000, but the wife did not receive one cent of alimony, although a portion of the property was inherited by her. It is one of the most infamous cases we have ever heard of, and as the decree was granted in a county where the parties never resided, a considerable amount of perjury must have been committed. The matter should have a legal investigation, for it certainly caps the climax of anything we have ever known in the way of Indiana divorces.

In attempting to carve a fowl a new settler found considerable difficulty in separating its joints, and exclaimed against the man who sold him a hen for a young chicken.

"My dear!" said the enraged man's wife, "don't rail so at the aged and respectable Mr. Bush; he sowed the first field of corn that was grown in the place."

"I know that," replied the husband, "and I'll tell the bairn scratch it up."

DODGE THOMAS.—Four prospectors were lately attacked by Cheyenne Indians near Antelope Hills, Southern Kansas. They fought bravely but three were killed and the other captured. Having medicines with him, he plunged his brandy flask with tincture of opium and pretended to drink it. The Indians seized and drank it. Soon all including his guards were fast asleep when he succeeded in making his escape horseback and reached the Indian Islands and the settlements.

MANHOOD.—IN THE YOUNG and rising generation, the vegetative powers of life are strong, but a few years how often the pallid hue, the lachrymose eye, and emaciated form, and the impossibility of application to mental effort, show its evil influence. It soon becomes evident to the observer that some depressing influence is check ing the development of the body. Consumption is talked of, and perhaps the youth is removed from school and sent into the country. This is one of the worst movements. Removed from ordinary diversions of the ever-changing scenes of the city, the powers of the body too much enlisted to give zest to healthful and rural exercise, thoughts are turned inward upon themselves.

If the patient be a female, the approach of the menses is looked for with anxiety, as the first symptom in which Nature is to show her saving power in diffusing the circulation and visiting the cheek with the bloom of health. Alas! increase of appetite has grown by what it fed on; the energies of the system are prostrated, and the whole economy is deranged. The beautiful and wonderful period in which body and mind undergo so fascinating a change from child to woman, is looked for in vain; the parent's heart bleeds in anxiety, and faints the grave but waiting for its victim.

HELMBOULD'S EXTRACT BECUC.—For Weakness arising from excesses or early indiscretions, attended with the following symptoms: Indistension to Exertion, Loss of Power, Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, General Weakness, Horror of Disease, Weak Nerves, Trembling, Dreadful Horror of Death, Night Sweats, Cold Feet, Wakefulness, Dimness of Vision, Langour, Universal Laziness of the Muscular System, Often Enormous Appetite with Dyspeptic Symptoms, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Pallid Countenance and Eruptions on the Face, Pain in the Back, Heaviness of the Eyelids, Frequently Black Spots Flying before the Eyes, with Temporary Suffusion and Loss of Sight, Want of Attention, Great Mobility Restlessness, with Horror of Society. Nothing is more desirable to such patients than Salina and nothing they more dread, for Salina and nothing they more dread, for Fear of Themselves; no Repose of Mind, no Easelessness, no Speculation, but a hurried transition from one question to another.

These symptoms, if allowed to go on—which this Medicine invariably removes—soon follow.

During the Superintendence of Dr. Wilson at the Bloomingdale Asylum, this said result occurred to two patients; reason had for a time left them and both died of epilepsy. They were of both sexes, and about twenty years of age.

Who can say that these excesses are not frequently followed by these direful diseases? Insanity and Consumption? The records of the Insane Asylums, and the melancholy death by Consumption, bear ample witness to the truth of these assertions. In Lunatic Asylums the most melancholy exhibition appears. The countenance is actually rotten and quite discoloured—neither Mirth or Grief ever visits it. Should a sound of the voice occur, it is rarely articulate.

With useful measures won Despair. Low-sullen sounds are their grief beguiled. While we regret the existence of the above disease and symptoms, we are prepared to offer an invaluable gift of chemistry or the removal of the consequences: HELMBOLD'S HIGHLY CONCENTRATED FLUID EXTRACT OF BECUC. There is no tonic like it. It is an anchor of hope to the surgeon and patient, and this is the testimony of those who have used or prescribed it.

Sold by Druggists and Dealers everywhere.

RECOMMENDATIONS.

GREAT SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH, Jan. 28, 1868.

MR. H. T. HELMBOLD:

Dear Sir: Your communication requesting our terms for advertising was duly received, but from a prejudice I had formed against advertising "cures for secret diseases," it was left unanswered.

During an accidental conversation in a Drug Store my mind was changed on the character of your Becuc. It was then highly commended for other diseases by two physicians present. Inclosed please find our rates of advertising. Yours &c.

N. Y. S. VOL. INSTITUTE, Corner of 5th Ave. & 76th St., Central Park.

(A Home and School for the Sons of Deceased Soldiers.)

Dr. H. T. HELMBOLD:

Two bottles only of the package of your valuable Becuc presented to the Institute have been used by the children, and with perfect success. In the case of our little Lieutenant A. J., his pride is no longer mortified, and he is free from the daily morning anathemas of the chambermaid who has charge of his bedding. I feel that a knowledge of the result of our use of your Becuc with the children under our charge may save many a Superintendent and Matron of Boarding Schools and Asylums a great amount of anxiety; and many a poor child suffering more from weakness than from habit, may be spared punishment, that is (not knowing it) a weakness instead of a bad habit) most unjustly inflicted upon them. Thanking you on behalf of the children, and hoping others may be alike benefited.

I am respectfully yours,

COL. YOUNG,

General Sup't, and Director.
