

THE OREGON SENTINEL.

SATURDAY MORNING, July 6, 1872.

H. KELLY, Editor.

NATIONAL REPUBLICAN TICKET.

For President in 1872, ULYSSES S. GRANT.

For Vice President, HENRY WILSON.

For Presidential Electors, W. D. HARE, of Washington County, A. B. MEACHAM, of Umatilla County, J. F. GAZELY, of Douglas County.

"I would sum up the policy of the Administration to be a thorough enforcement of every law; a faithful collection of every tax provided for; economy in the disbursement of the same; a prompt payment of every debt of the nation; a reduction of taxes as rapidly as the requirements of the country will admit; reductions of taxation and tariff, to be so arranged as to afford the greatest relief to the greatest number; honest and fair dealings with all other people, to the end that war with all its blighting consequences, may be avoided, but without surrendering any right or obligation due to us; a reform in the treatment of Indians, and in the whole civil service of the country; and finally in securing a pure, untrammelled ballot, where every man entitled to cast a vote may do so, just once, at each election, without fear of molestation, or prosecution on account of his political faith, nativity, or color."—U. S. Grant.

Silent Men.

One great objection that is raised against President Grant is his extreme reticence. That trait of character when rightly viewed must be considered an element of strength rather than weakness. Refined modesty increases with intellectual greatness. The greatness of men is due to their sensitive nature. The more keenly sensitive an individual the less will be his self confidence and presumption; hence, he will never presume to press his views on the public. It is the presumptions and second rate minds that assume to be public speakers and teachers.

Great men speak by deeds and actions, and are known by what they have accomplished, and not by what they have boasted of doing.

"Washington never made a speech. In the zenith of his fame he once attempted it, failed and gave it up confused and abashed. In framing the Constitution of the United States, the labor was almost wholly performed in a Committee of the Whole, of which George Washington was daily the Chairman, and he made but two speeches during the Convention, of a very few words each, something like one of Grant's speeches. The Convention, however, acknowledged the master spirit, and historians affirm that had it not been for his personal popularity and the thirty words of his first speech, pronouncing it the best that could be united upon, the Constitution would have been rejected by people. Thomas Jefferson never made a speech. He couldn't do it. Napoleon, whose executive ability is almost without a parallel said that his greatest difficulty was in finding men of deeds rather than words. When asked how he maintained his influence over his superiors in age and experience when Commander-in-Chief of an army in Italy, he said by reserve. The greatness of men is not measured by the length of their speeches and their number."

"There is nothing like leather!" With U. S. Grant, the tanner, Henry Wilson, the shoemaker, as the leaders of the Republican party in this campaign, we shall tan the raw hides of the Democrats so beautifully, and wear the Liberals so neatly, that when we have done pegging away, there won't be anything left of them. Greeley's quest for Presidential honors will prove a bootless adventure. The country feels that its soul is at stake in this contest, and will stand by Grant to the last as the sole hope of the country.—St. Paul Pioneer.

Lieut. Boutelle, of Ft. Klamath, is stopping in town.

The New Postal Law.

The new law just passed makes some interesting changes in existing postal regulations. The most important is the authorization of one cent postal cards for correspondence or printed circulars similar to those which were introduced in Great Britain nearly two years ago, and are now in use in nearly all European countries. The House provided in the bill for cards with a paper flap to cover and conceal the writing. The Senate changed this to an open card. In conference committee the style of the card was left to the discretion of the Postmaster General, who prefers the open card, and will order that kind only to be manufactured. The face of the card will bear a one-cent stamp, and will be provided with lines for the address, and the back will be ruled for the letter. The price of the card and stamp will be only one cent. It will probably be three or four weeks before they will be ready for sale, as the plates for printing have yet to be prepared. The postage on circulars, newspapers, and other transient printed matter, which, under the old law, was two cents for every four ounces or less, is now one cent for two ounces or less. Small circulars, which formerly cost two cents to mail, can now be sent for one cent, an important reduction to business men who use the mails largely to advertise their business. The change is now in force, the law being immediate in its effects; but the First Assistant Postmaster General claims the right to suspend the operation of the law until it can be promulgated to postmasters throughout the country.—Chicago Post, June 12.

Investigations.

Referring to an observation of ours respecting an investigation of the "Canal and Locks business" by the Legislature at the approaching session, the Farmer says it wants the resolution so amended as to require "an investigation of the means and methods used to secure the railroad land grant 1868, and also the means and methods employed to secure the passage of the $300,000 subsidy bill in 1870." Certainly; if these investigations or any others are wanted by anybody, let us have them. The Farmer declares that "the first lessons in bribery and jobbery" in this State "were taught by Ben Holladay in 1868." If that paper knows this, it is its duty to state particulars and furnish proofs. The people want to know all about it. But mere general accusations in a case of this sort will not suffice. Common slaundering will not do. If Ben Holladay or anybody else ever got anything through our Legislature by "bribery it concerns the public to know it. Who were the venal members and how much was paid them? The Farmer professes to know, but it doesn't tell. Is it prepared to inform a Committee of the Legislature? There has been much loose talk on this subject; now cannot we get to the point, and have the charges substantiated or dropped? What proofs the Farmer may have we can't guess; but if it has any the public are entitled to them. But we apprehend that its information, as in such cases, is mere hearsay, and not traceable to any responsible source. Yet we trust that paper will have an opportunity to tell what it knows to a Legislative Committee. We join it in demand for investigation. And while the spirit of investigation is rife, it would probably be as well to inquire into the statement made by Senator Fay and the Jacksonville Times, of the effect that several members from Southern Oregon received money in large sums for going into the Kelly caucus and pledging themselves to support him for United States Senator.—Oregonian.

Judge Davis has published a letter withdrawing from the candidature for the Presidency. He says in substance that when he accepted he thought the Cincinnati Convention would nominate him, but as it didn't he will dismiss the dream of the Presidency and attend to his judicial labors. The Convention which nominated him is recalled, to meet again in July at New York City for consultation.

The Mountaineer says: The family of Hon. J. G. Wilson, composed of his wife and three children left on Wednesday morning for the Atlantic States, via Portland, San Francisco and the Overland Railroad, on a visit to friends in Ohio.

Important Agricultural Correspondence.

JOHN SMITH TO H. G. Dear Sir: In reading an English novel yesterday I came across an expression which was quite new to me, but which you can perhaps explain. The author speaks of a "clever cob" as among the attractions of a country life. I have looked in vain through Walker's dictionary and your valuable work on farming for a definition of the words. Can you tell me what a clever cob is? Yours respectfully, JOHN SMITH.

H. G. TO JOHN SMITH. Dear Sir: In reply to your question I have to say that, although I have planted at Chappaqua every variety of corn that would grow (and several that would not), I am as yet unacquainted with any kind bearing clever cobs. I think it likely that the phrase you quote is a misprint for "clover cobs," in which case the hybrid may be produced by following my suggestion of grafting clover tops on each ear of corn. If you wish to try the plan on anything like a profitable scale, I would advise you to go West. Yours truly, A. G.

Frank Leslie is a nom de plume. The man who wears it used to be Henry Carter and had his name changed by the Legislature.
