

NATIONAL REPUBLICAN TICKET.

For President in 1872, ULYSSES S. GRANT.

For Vice President, HENRY WILSON.

For Presidential Electors, W. D. HARE, A. B. MEACHAM, J. F. GAZELY.

"I would sum up the policy of the Administration to be a thorough enforcement of every law; a faithful collection of every tax provided for; economy in the disbursement of the same; a prompt payment of every debt of the nation; a reduction of taxes as rapidly as the requirements of the country will admit; reductions of taxation and tariff, to be so arranged as to afford the greatest relief to the greatest number; honest and fair dealings with all other people, to the end that war with all its blighting consequences, may be avoided, but without surrendering any right or obligation due to us; a reform in the treatment of Indians, and in the whole civil service of the country; and finally in securing a pure, untrammelled ballot, where every man entitled to cast a vote may do so, just once, at each election, without fear of molestation, or prosecution on account of his political faith, nativity, or color." U. S. Grant.

Use Him Well.

It is to be hoped that the Democrats will have magnanimity enough about them to use Old Mr. Greeley well, after receiving him as a free-offering from the hands of the Republicans.

A grateful beggar will never ill-treat the gifts of charity that he has received from the hands of the generous, nor complain because the giver did not give his best. We do not wish to tantalize the Democratic party about their poverty, but it is a well known fact that the party had become so politically bankrupt, that it could not, among all its boasted numbers, muster a single individual of sufficient respectability to act as its standard-bearer; not one that they were not ashamed of; not one that they could trust; not one that would make anything like a respectable race.

You came to the Republicans and, on your suppliant knees, begged for a man from among our ranks to place at the head of your party. With the same forgiving spirit that we gave the rebels quarters,—when they deserved hemp,—we gave you a moderately good man,—not the best we had,—and you have no right to begging of us for the best. We know that you would have gone frantic with joy if we had given you Grant, or his equal; but we can't afford to throw away such good timber, when it is evident that you will only place it in a rotten structure. But we have given you Greeley. It is true, that he falls far short of being an equal of Grant's, but then he is a fair man, and you ought to be very grateful that we have given you as good a one as he, and accept him without whining.

In many respects Greeley will be of more use to you than Grant. He understands your depravity better than Grant. In proof of this, read what he says about you, which will not fail to convince the most incredulous that we have given you just the man you need:

"If there were not a newspaper nor a common school in the country, the Democratic party would be far stronger than it is. Neither elementary instruction nor knowledge of transpiring events is necessary to teach the essential elements of the Democratic creed. Love rum and hate niggers! The less one learns and knows, the more certain he is to vote the regular Democratic ticket from A to Zard."

(Signed.) HORACE GREELEY. You see that he understands the creatures that he is leading perfectly. He has no idea that he will ever be President of the United States. But he has always had a wonderful passion of being at the head of some colonization society. He has at last struck it by getting himself at the head of the party that is in need of being colonized. The next thing we will hear of Greeley, he will be busily engaged in colonizing the members of the Democratic party out west on homesteads. He knows that this "ignorant rabble that love rum and hate niggers," are not fit to be leaders; hence, he will set them to subduing the wild land out west, and learn them to begin at the first rudiments of civilization and work their way up to good citizens.

In this respect Greeley will be of better service to you than Grant; for Grant would have no patience with you; he would want you to be men from the jump. But patient Old Greeley, knowing your fallen condition better than most any living man, will bear with your deformities, and will learn you to labor, and how to earn an honest living before you presume to be leaders of society.

As you are a fault finding set of beings, we give you timely warning that you must not expect too much of the old man. You must not expect to win any fast races with him, for he has passed his prime. You cannot expect to beat Grant with him. But if you will treat him kindly, he will last for several years yet and do you good service, and make you a better leader than you have had since the days of Jackson.

We don't want any of your whining about this gift of ours, for we know what you want far better than you do yourselves. We could give you a better man than Greeley, but then he wouldn't have the patience to fool with you; he would be knocking your brains all out before he would bear with your stupidity. But the sage of Chappaqua will commence with you as mildly as if you were so many children in swaddling clothes, and will bring you up step by step as fast as he thinks you are capable of advancing from the ignorant condition that he says you are in. See that you mind and obey him, and he will be as good a teacher as you could reasonably expect to have, considering your condition. When you have outgrown your baby garments, we will give you a better leader.

A TYPE-SETTING MACHINE.

Result of Thirty Years of Study and Labor—Success at Last.

The New York correspondent of the Reading Times and Dispatch writes thus enthusiastically of a type setting machine just brought to perfection in that city: "Just as the great Morse, forty years ago, was developing his system of telegraph in secret and alone; just as Fulton created his steam engine in the solitude of an humble apartment, so have I to-day seen a man in New York who, for thirty years, has given his life to one grand idea, and at last exhibits the happy consummation of his labors, to-wit: The setting of type by machinery. Old, wrinkled and bent with thought; unable to speak a word of English; poor in this world's possessions; the inhabitant of an attic, and sharing his room with the curious creature of his brain, there he sits at this moment in front of a row of piano keys, sending a type into its place at each touch, and reproducing the column of a newspaper at the rate of six thousands 'ems' an hour, or in other words doing more than the average work of four compositors. To describe the machine in detail here, is impossible. Suffice it to say that it occupies not more space than an ordinary bureau, is operated by a treadle and is simple in construction. Attached to it is an apparatus for 'justifying,' and accompanying the whole is a machine for 'distributing.' Each of these processes is performed rapidly and correctly. The beauty of the invention is its utility and economy—the estimated cost not more than four hundred dollars—a sum that will enable well-to-do compositors to own the apparatus, and thus save wear and tear of both body and mind. None have yet been manufactured for sale, but the largest publisher in New York has given his order for forty as soon as a company is organized for their introduction. It may be months or years before practical use is made of the little revolutionary entirely—but here it is, the successful solution of a problem that has worried the minds of men for a century.

VOORHEES is terribly in earnest about having nothing to do with Greeley at Baltimore. He says: "I would rather of a dark night risk the perilous edge of some Alpine precipice on top of a drunken mule."

Innocent. Samuel E. May has proved himself innocent of the charges that were preferred against him by the Democratic party of the State. We predicted before the election that the great hue and cry about May's stealing was utterly false, and gotten up by the Democrats for political capital. The clearing of May of each and every charge that has been preferred against him establishes the correctness of our prediction.

To what depths have the leaders of the Democratic party sunk, when they will willfully and maliciously seek to rob an innocent man of his liberty, and brand him as a criminal, thus casting a stigma of shame over the future life and prosperity of May and his family, for the purpose of carrying an election. The highwayman is content by robbing his victim of his purse and letting him go free with a reputation untarnished; but the Democracy of Oregon would imprison Christ to carry an election.

The trial and established innocence of May beyond every shadow of doubt, explains why the Democrats around Salem were so fast to go his bail, and why he was not tried until after the election. They knew May to be innocent, and knew that he would never disgrace himself and family by fleeing from justice when a trial would establish his innocence. The Republicans were not in the ring, hence they had no opportunity of knowing whether May was innocent or guilty until he was tried; but from the amount of smoke and furor that was raised, they feared that there might be some truth in the charges. They couldn't think it possible that men would lie so outrageously for the purpose of carrying an election.

Hon. Lyons, of Richmond one of the most distinguished of Virginia statesmen, has written a letter on the political situation which appears in the Virginia papers. The following is an extract:

Of Greeley we know only that he is devoid of all capacity as statesman; that he had been the advocate of almost every disorganizing absurdity which has annoyed the country and disturbed peace, that he had been consistent in nothing but his enmity to the South; that with him he will bring in new brood, as hungry, doubtless, and as unprincipled as himself, with Sumner at his head. I for one will never vote for him, and I trust the Baltimore Convention will nominate some man for whom we can all vote, and not commit what Senator Ferry properly calls midsummer madness.

The Greeley Rebel Democracy are beginning to show their hands down South early in the fight. At Yanceyville (N. C.), a few evenings since, Judge Settle, Republican candidate for Congress, was prevented from addressing a public meeting by a shower of rotten eggs hurled by the Ku-Kluxers. Only let Horace be elected President; and the lives of loyal men wouldn't be worth rotten eggs. The Ku-Kluxers would rule the roast.

LIST OF PATENTS.—The following patents were issued from the U. S. Patent Office to citizens of Oregon, week ending June 1, 1872, reported for the SENTINEL by Alexander & Mason, solicitors of Patents, 605 Seventh St., Washington, D. C.: Candlestick—A. E. Rogers & Geo. Webb—La Grande.

WITHIN the past thirty-nine months the Republican party, under Grant, has reduced the debt about $332,000,000 ($331,945,883), while taking off $140,000,000 taxes. In the time the Tammany rulers,—the now avowed and for a long time the secret allies of Greeley,—stole $28,000,000 from the New York Treasury.

BALTIMORE CONVENTION.—Greeley received on the first ballot out of 724 votes 686. He was declared unanimously elected. Brown was nominated on the first ballot. The Cincinnati platform was endorsed, after having been amended in one or two unimportant particulars.

A thousand-dollar Kentucky bull recently undertook to stop a locomotive. The hide, horns and tallow are for sale. William Lloyd Garrison has very appropriately notified Charles Sumner of this sad circumstance.

By the treaty lately concluded, the Prussian forces are to be withdrawn from France upon the payment of two million francs additional indemnity, to be paid in installments, the last payment to be made March, 1873.

Strauss receives $12,000 in gold and his expenses for his part in the Boston Jubilee. The members of the foreign bands receive $5 per day each and expenses.
