The Celebration at Linkville.
MR. EDITOR:
 The celebration at Linkville proved a very pleasant affair, and the people have occasion to felicitate themselves over their success. As the first affair of the kind in this part of the country, it is certainly worthy of notice on your side of the mountains. At last it would seem that the tide of civilization has broken over the mountain wall that surrounds us, and that the hills, plains and meadows of the Lake country are fast becoming peopled with inhabitants who fully appreciate the sacred memories of the national birthday.
 The days of pack trails, foot-logs and moccasins, and of long dreary day's marches in snow and rain, with no place for rest or refuge under a white man's roof, are fast becoming things of the past even with us in the Lake country. Here, on the green banks of our own beautiful river, where not long ago the red man held undisputed sway and, unmolested, hung his fish nets in the rapids, and improvised summer houses of these tall tules, three or four hundred people, filled with the spirit of '76, gathered beneath their flags, on the national holiday, to show their veneration for the past and to express their hopes for the future as the car of civilization rolls onward.
 The Declaration was read in a clear, distinct and forcible manner by Mr. C. W. Sawtelle; and the Oration, by O. C. Applegate, Orator of the Day, would have been considered good anywhere in the land. At its close, three cheers were given for the Orator, and a unanimous request was made that copies of the oration be secured for publication in the SENTINEL and Times.
 The dinner was all that heart could wish or stomach crave; beef from the barbecue, a variety of good things from far and near, ice from the mountains and new peas and potatoes from George Nurse's excellent gardens.
 The ball, which occurred in Angle & Stevenson's new wagon and carpenter's shop, was a well managed and pleasant affair, the supper given at Nurse's Hotel, good, and, indeed a more harmonious, interesting and agreeable celebration, from first to last, we never attended. May the Linkvillians ever wave.

LOWER KLAMATH,
 July 10, 1872.
 What a picture of anxious love defending its object against a siege of importunities is brought before the mind by the following advertisement, taken from a Western paper: "Engaged.—Miss Anna Gould to John Candal, City Marshal, of Leavenworth Kansas. From this time henceforth and forever—until Miss Anna Gould becomes a widow—all young men are requested to withdraw their particular attentions."
 A colored preacher at Sparta, Ga., some time ago, was heard to say in a funeral of a deceased brudder: "He ruminates no longer among us; he have exonerated from the syllogisms of this world's discrimination, and when he gets to de cold, dry stream of the river Jordan, the Kerosines and Periphens will meet him dare to row him over on dry land to the sylverstering city."
 Ole Bull's violin, one of the finest ever made, is over 400 years old; he has declined an offer of $5,000, not wishing to part with his treasure. His bow is singularly noticeable, being longer and heavier than that used by any other violinist. This sparkles with forty diamonds, set in gold at the butt, and two at the point, and its estimated worth is more than $2,000.
 Several people who have answered an advertisement promising a "correct likeness of yourself, and your fortune told," for fifty cents, have received a three cent mirror, and informed that they can tell their own fortune by counting their money.
 TALLY one for little Switzerland, as being the only country on the face of the earth where there is more money spent on education than on the army. The educational budget amounts to ten millions of franks, whereas the military expenses remain below that sum; yet in time of need the happy republic can raise an army of 200,000 men.

ANCESTORS OF DANIEL WEBSTER.
 On his paternal side, as is given in full in his Life, by Curtis, he came from the Websters of Hampton, among the early settlers of that town. Of his maternal ancestry less is said. We are told that his mother's maiden name was Abigail Eastman, a tailor's daughter of Salisbury. But whence came she? The late Dr. Nye of Salisbury, was much interested in the history of that town, and has left papers detailing the genealogy of some of the families. From one of these papers we quote: "A Miss Eastman, a young lady of Welsh descent, living in Salisbury, was courted and had a natural son by a mulatto man, who ran off, or died, before the birth of her child, who bore the name of his mother. The boy grew up and married a half Indian girl, whose father was a white man, and reared up a family of Eastmans, from whom Miss Abigail Eastman, the mother of Daniel and Ezekiel Webster, and all the Eastmans of Salisbury had their origin. It was very common in the early settlement of Salisbury and Amesbury, for the inhabitants to marry Indian girls. The characteristics are very visible to this day among their descendants." We supply this omission to keep history good. It is in favor of miscegenation more than any other fact within our knowledge. Dr. Nye will be remembered by some of the elder people, and nobody will doubt his authority, which, possibly even now would be capable of proof from the old records. It will account for the complexion of "Black Dan."—Merrimack Journal, Amesbury, Mass.

Who are the Reformers?
 Who are the reformers—Republicans or Liberals? The latter talk loudly about their purposes, hopes, and aspirations; what do the former do?
 The Liberals demand a reduction of the taxes. The Republicans in Congress got upon the same subject the other day, and reduced taxes more than forty million dollars—a hundred dollars a minute the year round!
 The Liberals advocate a civil service reform, which their candidate construes to mean nothing more than that a President shall not be eligible to re-election. The Republicans have adopted a set of rules for a civil service reform, providing for competitive examinations for appointments and trials on impeachments for maladministration of office.
 The Liberals declare that the Republicans are blood guilty tyrants, bent on persecuting the Southern gentlemen, merely because they expressed their dissatisfaction with their native land in 1861-65. The Republicans in Congress answered this libel recently by passing a general amnesty act through both houses, releasing something like a hundred thousand of their chivalry from their self-imposed disabilities, and lifting them into the majestic stature of possible office-holders.
 The Liberals say that the Republicans have "ruined the South," and deprived the States of their sacred right of representation. Just after the President's notification that he had signed the amnesty act was received, Mr. Rogers was sworn in as a member from the Fourth North Carolina District, thus making a full Congress every State being completely represented.
 Which is the reform party? The party that grumbles? Or the party that accomplishes?—Chicago Post.
Horace Greeley's Record.
 "He that wavereth is like a wave of the sea driven of the wind and tossed."—Scripture.
 Mr. Greeley's political chronology is not flattering to "our later Franklin" and this is his record:
 1856. Standing squarely on principle, and advocating freedom and high tariff.
 1860. First step—Opposing the nomination of Lincoln on personal grounds, and advocating Mr. Bates, the possum candidate of that time.
 1860. Second step—(after the Presidential election)—Favoring peaceable secession, and writing leaders for Toombs to read in the Senate in justification of his course.
 1861. Third step—Abusing Lincoln, and yelling "On to Richmond."
 1862. Fourth step—Peace negotiations at Niagara Falls.
 1864. Fifth step—Opposing Lincoln's renomination, and going to Cleveland Convention.
 1865. Sixth step—Bailing Jeff Davis.
 1866. Seventh step—A candidate for Postmaster General under Andy Johnson.
 1868. Eighth step—Asking the Democrats to nominate Chase at New York, and privately promising to support him.
 1870. Ninth step—Doing all in his power to make Grant's administration unpopular.
 1872. Tenth and last fatal plunge—Renouncing all his former principles and associations, and playing second fiddle in the any-one-to-beat Grant concert.
 "Easy is the descent into Avernus; but to retrace the steps and return to the upper air—this is the labor, this is the difficulty."
 The people of Norway are now preparing for a great national festival, to celebrate the one thousandth anniversary of Norway's nationality.
 The question of "indirect claims" has been settled after all in accordance with the proposition of our Government. That proposition simply was that the question of these claims should go to the tribunal of arbitration for a decision. The United States demanded only this, and was willing to abide the result. Before the arrival of the supplemental treaty at Geneva, the tribunal of arbitration had considered the question and decided the indirect claims inadmissible. So the supplemental treaty and the controversy about indirect claims fell through.—West side.
 A French newspaper describes the progressive journalism of Great Britain as follows: "The Schot-man is printed on the road from Edinburgh to Glasgow in a wagon belonging to the paper, which contains a printing machine, cases of type, and quick compositors. During the journey the edition for the provinces is worked off, with the addition of the news received on the road."
 The President's keen judgment of character was never more strikingly illustrated than when, in reply to the remark that Sumner did not believe in the Bible he observed, "How can he? He did not originate it."
