HON. JAS. F. WILSON.—Hon. James F. Wilson, of Iowa, has been slandered by being called an opponent of Grant's. This extract from a recent speech shows with what truth: "He has done as well in his high office as any man would have done. He is a patient, able, plodding man, who neglects no trust and betrays no confidence. Let those who can point to deeds of their own as great as his criticise him. Let drones and failures be silent. What a man has done constitutes the true standard by which to try him. Take Grant's history for the last twelve years, and you may safely challenge the world to match it. The storm of maligant mendacity which has burst upon him will spend its fury in vain. The people of this country, gratefully remembering his great services, will see to his safe deliverance. The American people are not ungrateful. November will prove this by the re-election of Grant."

MISCELLANEOUS ITEMS.

Mr. G. W. Hunt has shown to the Salem Farmer the jawbone of Pauline, better known in the mountains as "Big Foot," the Indian warrior who was such a dread to ranchmen and travelers east of the Cascade mountains a few years ago. His depredations and cunning were so frequent and great that he was hunted down like a wild beast. When shot down he was still able to keep his assailants at bay by the rapidity and precision with which he discharged arrows in every direction, while lying on his back in the grass where he fell, and he retained life so long that his slayers left him to die without venturing to examine or care for his remains. His jawbone, which was picked from his remains by Mr. Hunt a short time since, is said to resemble that of a beast more than of a human being. He was considerably more than six feet in hight, of powerful build, and his track measured full fourteen inches in length.

A doctor was summoned to a cottage in Harwood, in England, and found a boy in need of his services.

"Show your tongue," said the doctor. The boy stared like an owl.

"My good boy, let me see your tongue," repeated the doctor.

"Talk English, doctor," said the old lady; and then, turning to her son, said:

"Hoben thy gobbler, and purt out thy lolliker."

The mouth flew open, and the doctor was terribly "taken in."

A curious calculation has been made by an eccentric individual well known in Paris for his peculiar antipathy to the fly. He collected 3,000 flies in a room measuring 70 cubic feet. On the floor he spread a pounded loaf of sugar. At the end of four days he went to investigate the result of his experiment. There remained a teaspoonful of sugar. This statistician, therefore, calculates that sugar being at the rate of thirteen cents a pound, a fly costs the country twenty cents from its birth to its death, that is if fed an loaf sugar.

The Grand River and Sioux Indian delegation called on Secretary Delano on the 17th of September. They made the usual speeches, complaining of poverty, begging guns and ammunition, and want the railroads passing through their country torn up. The Secretary wanted them to go to farming, and promised them implements and to put them in a better country, where they can have the advantages of civilization.

After all, it is the best wisdom to treat with absolute indifference or contempt a great deal that happens in this world of misunderstandings. Let any good and well-meaning man reflect upon the blunders and slanders that assailed and possibly annoyed him one week ago, and consider how very dead they are now! Such fruit of ignorance and malice dies of its own rottenness.

All the known volcanoes in the world seem to be simultaneously "on a bust." The volcano of Merapi, Japan, which has been quiet ever since 1863, recently broke out in great fury, burying a number of villages, filling up the ravines and checking the course of rivers, besides destroying a frightful number of inhabitants. The eruption of Hecla is looked for every day.

Bees consume large quantities of water when building comb and raising brood. Want of water is one of the causes of dysentery among them. A bucket or trough filled with water, with a few pieces of old honeycomb or sticks for the bees to alight upon and drink in safety should be kept near the hives.

The Republican candidates for Presidential Electors in Oregon, in pursuance of arrangements made by the State Central Committee, will each canvass his own district, and will see that there be held at least one mass meeting in each county between now and the November election.

Colored people of Kentucky are becoming real estate owners. One agent alone, residing at Lexington, sold them the past year $100,000 worth of houses and lots for their own use, and the colored population of that town pay taxes on $4,000,000 worth of real estate.

Few people know, and thousands do not know, that by setting a glass fruit jar on a folded towel, thoroughly saturated with cold water, the fruit can be poured in boiling hot, with no greater danger of breaking than with a tin can.

"A woman's greatest enemy is the looking glass," said a husband to his wife, who was admiring herself in the mirror while he was sipping his wine. "That may be," she replied, "but it does not cost her and her children half so much woe as a man's wine-glass."

The members of the Oregon Legislature were all put into the penitentiary one day last week—as a Committee of Investigation.

Silence is good for the wise and better for the fools.

The population of Alaska is 29,007.
