THE STATE OF STREET

As a certain learned judge in Mexico some time since, walked one morning into court, he thought he would exam-ine whether he was in time for bush ness; and feeling for his repeater, found it was not in his pocket.

"As usual," said he to a friend, who accompanied him, as he passed through the crowds near the door, "as usual, T have again left my watch under my thought no more of it. The Court adjourned, and he bethought himself of his timepiece, and returning to his wife, requested her to send for it to their chamber.

"But, my dear," said she, "I sent is to you three hours ago." "Sent it to me, my dear? Certainly

"Unquestionably!" replied the lady, "and by the person you sent tor it." "The person I sent for it?" echoed the Judge.

"Precisely, my dear, the very person you sent for it. You had not left home more than an hour when a well-dressed man knocked at the door, and asked to see me. He brought one of the finest turkeys I ever saw, and said that on your way to court, you met an Indian with a number of fowls. Having bought this one at a bargain, you has given him a couple of reals to bring in home, with the request that I would have it killed, and put to cool, as you intended to invite your brother Judges to a dish of wolle to-morrow. And to a dish of wolle to-morrow. And 'Oh! by the way, senora,' said he, 'his excellency, the Judge, requested me to ask you to give yourself the trouble to go to your chamber, and take his watch from under the pillow, where he says he left it as usual this morning, and send it to him by me.' And of course I did so."

"You did?" said the Judge,
"Certainly," said the lady,
"Well," replied his Honor, "all Loan say to you, my dear, is that you are as great a goose as the bird is a turkey. You've been rebbed, madame; the man was a thiet. I never sent for my, watch; you've been imposed upon, and, as a necessary consequence, the watch is lost forever."

as a necessary consequence, the watch is lest forever."

The trick was a cunning one; and, after a laugh, and the restoration of the Judge's good humor by a good dinner, it was resolved actually to have the turkey for to-morrow's dianer, and invite his Honor's brothers of the bench to enjoy so dear a morsel. Accordingly, after the adjournment of the court next day, they all repaired to his dwelling with appetites sharpened by the expectation of a rare repast. Scarcely had they entered the saloon and exchanged salutations, when the lady broke forth with congratulations to his honor upon the recovery of his stolen. honor upon the recovery of his stolen
