

JACKSONVILLE: WEDNESDAY, JULY 21, 1880.

FOR PRESIDENT, JAS. A. GARFIELD, Of Ohio; FOR VICE PRESIDENT, CHESTER A. ARTHUR, Of New York; PRESIDENTIAL ELECTORS, GEO. B. CURRY, of Grant, E. L. APPLIGATE, of Linn, C. B. WATSON, of Lake.

Owing to the great unpopularity of English in the Hoosier State, an effort is being made to induce him to resign in favor of McDonald; he refuses to yield.

Gen. Garfield's letter of acceptance will appear next week. It is a mainly plain spoken and courageous document and has the ring of the true metal about it.

The Oregon Legislature which meets the second Monday in September is politically composed as follows: Senate, Republicans 16; Democrats 13; Independent 1; House, Republicans 39; Democrats 21. Republican majority in Senate 2, in House 18; on joint ballot 20.

A Democratic paper says: "Hancock is an experienced and able General." True. But what is it that the American people need most in time of peace? Is it an experienced and able military general, or an experienced and able statesman? Certainly the latter, and Garfield is the man.

The Hartford "Courant" says: "The people of the country are called upon to decide between the two great parties, to judge of their tendencies as shown by their deeds. This is the only question of the contest, and it can not be obscured by any side issues. And here is just where Gen. Hancock is helplessly handicapped."

Gen. Hancock, the valiant soldier and upright citizen, stands in a very different relation to the people from Gen. Hancock the Democratic nominee for President. In the latter capacity he is the figure head of a party into the hands of whose actual leaders it would be dangerous to entrust the administration of the government.

The Chicago "Times" (Dem.) says: "The Republican party will enter the contest with an important advantage over the party that has passed by all its statesmen and taken for its standard bearer a soldier with no experience or known faculty of political leadership. Therefore it is that the nomination of Gen. Hancock is a mistake if not a blunder. He is not the man for leader of a political party in this or in any other political emergency."

President Chadbourne of Williams College says: "The college life of Gen. Garfield was so rounded, so pure, so in accordance with what it ought to be in all respects, that I can add nothing to it by eulogize him. It was a noble college life; there are no stories to be told of Gen. Garfield as a college student. On the contrary, everything about him was high and noble and manly; the man in college gave promise of what the man is to-day."

The Mississippi "Star" thus gives the world a sample of the true spirit of the Southern Democracy: "Inaugurate social ostracism against every white man North or South that gives his support to the building up of the Republican party, discountenance any man who will go on or assist in making the band of any man elected on the Republican ticket; refuse to have dealings of any sort with the Republican party, and show the world that you are in truth and deed a true Democrat."

Says the New York "Times": "The situation in all important respects may be regarded as simply this: The two parties go before the country on what they have done or failed to do, with the assurance on the part of the Republicans that all the best tendencies of the party will be promoted by the election of its candidate, and with the probability on the Democratic side that the tendencies of that party toward error in doctrine and in practice will find no restraint from its candidate."

IS GEN. HANCOCK A PENNSYLVANIAN?

The Philadelphia "Press" asks this question, and says: "Though Gen. Hancock is credited to Pennsylvania, he has been but a nominal resident of the state since 1840, when a lad of sixteen he began his four years' cadetship at our National Military academy. The forty subsequent years of his life he spent successively in West Point, Indian Territory, Mexico, Missouri, Utah, California, Virginia, Louisiana, again in Missouri, then in Dakota, and again in New York state, but in Pennsylvania he has been only a transient and occasional visitor. He can, therefore, only in a remote and technical sense, be counted a Pennsylvania candidate. What are his opinions in regard to a protective tariff is altogether unknown. Whether he has any opinions or has given the subject any thought at all has not yet been made public, nor is it of special importance that it should be. Whatever his private views may be, the declared policy of his party is against a protective tariff. If therefore, he should be elected, free trade would necessarily be the policy of his administration. This fact may strengthen Gen. Hancock's candidacy elsewhere, but not in Pennsylvania. This state has no majorities to give to any candidate on a free-trade platform. This is true, even though the candidate chanced to reside within her own limits forty years ago, and though leading a roving military life, has never since acquired a permanent residence elsewhere."

WEAVER'S CONFIDENCE.

Gen. James B. Weaver, Greenback candidate for President, spent Sunday the 11th of July in Chattanooga, Tenn. He was en route to Scottsburg, Ala., where he spoke the following day at the opening of the canvass in that State. He was interviewed by a "Times" reporter and spoke very candidly of the coming campaign. He is confident of his ability to carry Alabama, Tennessee, Texas, Mississippi, West Virginia, Missouri and Arkansas, and says he will make heavy gains in Maine, Michigan, and Minnesota. He says if he does not receive a majority of electoral votes neither of the other candidates will, and the matter will again go to the House of Representatives. If thrown into the House he will stand an equal chance with the rest. De La Matyr, he claims, has the balance of power there, and no concession will be made by his party, favorable either to Democrats or Republicans. Should no agreement be reached there the matter becomes a constitutional question, and it will rest with the Senate to dispose of it. He says he will stump every State he can before the election, but will confine himself to no section. Kearney, he says will lend him his support and give him California beyond doubt.

OFFICIAL VOTE OF OREGON.

Table with 2 columns: Name and Vote. Includes John Whiteaker (18,181), M. C. George (19,378), J. K. Sears (301), J. B. Waldo (19,689), W. P. Lord (19,636), E. R. Watson (19,609), J. K. Kelly (17,709), P. P. Prim (17,969), John Burnett (18,168), W. H. Odell (19,462), T. B. Merry (18,052).

A company of German and American capitalists are negotiating with the N. P. Railroad company for the purchase of something over one hundred thousand acres of land, mostly lying east of the Palouse river. As soon as they secure title to the lands they will sink artesian wells in the center of each section that is not by nature provided with a sufficient quantity of pure water. It is the intention of the company to offer liberal inducements to immigrants and assist in the speedy settlement of the lands through which the O. R. & N. Co. propose to run their line.

It is stated in a Washington dispatch that documents are now in the course of preparation, to prove the truth of the statement that General Hancock entered into a conspiracy with Fitz-John Porter and other Democratic Generals to resist the removal of McClellan from the command of the Army of the Potomac and to depose President Lincoln and Secretary Stanton.

The outlook for Peru is becoming gloomier every day. Its troops are beaten in every contest in which they are engaged; its ports are blockaded or bombarded; its vessels are reduced in number to one wooden corvette and a half a dozen steam transports, which are compelled to hide in Callao; its ally, Bolivia, appears more than ever inclined to turn against her.

NOTES IN LAKE COUNTY.

Just returned from a two weeks visit among our sage brush neighbors, we will give some of the impressions received. From Linkville to Lakeview we heard nothing but sad statements of the heavy losses of stock during the last severe Winter, but as it is the season when the Assessor is enquiring into the financial standing of the population, we apprehend that some of the accounts are a little exaggerated. Many place their loss at sixty or seventy-five per cent, some at fifty, others as low as ten or fifteen per cent. This seems to indicate a proportionate difference in the care and thrift of the ranchers, or else shows the fact that some localities are singularly favored. At all events, there seems to be plenty of cattle all over the county and in splendid condition, the grass being better than ever known, and the losses will not be felt much this year as steers wintered through well, and a large amount of beef will be driven out next Fall.

The greatest present calamity is the almost total failure of crops in Goose Lake valley. Put in very late on account of the backward Spring, they were scarcely well up till they were blighted by a cold North wind, and a continued drought will keep grain from maturing. Some thrifty farmers have sown English rye grass, on the high sage lands, and it will make a heavy crop, one ton of which is superior to four tons of the native swamp hay. If others would follow the example, the producing capacity of Lake county would be increased fifty fold and hundreds of thousands of acres of lands, now comparatively valueless, be properly utilized.

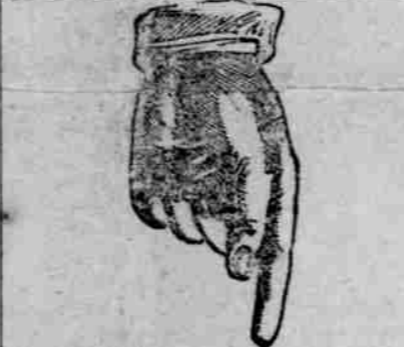

Linkville is growing rapidly. It is now strung out nearly a half mile to the Eastward, has three hotels, two saloons, two stores and two livery stables, besides harness and tin shops, drug store and jewelry establishment. Here we saw the smiling face of Curly Webb who runs a livery stable and is apparently doing a thriving business. Our mode of locomotion was one of those sad looking quadrupeds without ancestral pride or possible hope of posterity, but noted for appetite, and when leaving he whispered in our ear that "Webb" gave him more oats than he could get away with, and when an animal with as little conscience as a mule admits over feeding, the stable keeper will do to stay with. J. N. F. Miller is running the other stable, but will soon start for Walla Walla with a large band of horses for that market. Judging from the immense travel heading in that direction, one would think the whole world was going there.

Lakeview has tripled in size during the last three years and contains now over a hundred houses. J. H. Hoffman, our late townsman, is doing a good business and is happy. Hunt & Latham both, formerly of Jacksonville are running a furniture and wagon shop successfully. Tenbrook & Campbell are keeping the "Overland" and set the usual good table. Lakeview boasts of no church, but singular to say its two saloons are scrupulously closed on Sundays in obedience to the law, and the day is therefore one of rest and quiet. Business in the Land Office is very dull, Conn the Receiver, being engaged in merchandising and the Register, J. H. Evans, has commenced putting up eight hundred tons of hay to keep himself out of mischief. Paisley, a new town on the Chewaucan river forty miles North of Lakeview, bids fair to be quite a place in good time. It is evidently a warmer climate than any other portion of Lake, for in the garden of Mr. J. P. Cochran we saw tomatoes in full bloom and watermelons and cantelopes doing well. A good hotel is kept here by W. H. Miller formerly of Linkville, and the delicious trout on his table is the only thing that could turn one away from the tender, juicy beef of the bunch grass region. Stock suffered but little in the Chewaucan valley, the snow fall being light and the ranchers having driven their bands to the desert, beyond Lake Abert, where they wintered well. There seems to be a feeling of depression among the people of Lake but it is more on account of short crops than from loss of stock. There is no reason for it however, as the natural seasons of the county will soon bring prosperity again. As a general thing the streams and swamps are unusually full and in many places it will be nearly impossible to cut the wild hay crop. Mosquitoes are very busy and if any of our readers don't believe it let them go and feel for themselves.

We have as much admiration for Gen. Hancock's soldierly career as any one, and that admiration dates back some 16 years, to a time when these new-born admirers—who are now "joining with pride to his soldierly record"—to quote their own language—were execrating the "brutal butcher," as they styled him then, for sending his soldiers into the "shambles" and for "desolating Southern homes."
