

JACKSONVILLE: WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 18, 1880.

FOR PRESIDENT, JAS. A. GARFIELD, Of Ohio. FOR VICE PRESIDENT, CHESTER A. ARTHUR Of New York. PRESIDENTIAL ELECTORS, GEO. B. CURRY, of Grant. E. L. APPEGATE, of Linn. C. B. WATSON, of Lake.

EDITORIAL MISCELLANY.

Jeff Davis is another old soldier who has pronounced Hancock. A Texas letter says Hancock is even more popular than Jeff Davis.

The Democratic papers have quit publishing names of new converts. The fact is that the tide is entirely towards the Republican ranks.

Senator Cameron says he has never known a nomination to grow so strong as that of Garfield, and that he is no longer simply hopeful—he is confident of victory this fall.

While the untried are complimenting Hancock for the extreme caution exhibited in his letter by saying so little, they would like to administer a sound drubbing to English for saying so much.

The Democrats say the people insist on a change. The Democracy having had control of the house of Representatives since 1874 and of the Senate since 1877, it is very natural that the people should call for a change, and make it.

Arizona has a total population of 35,748 exclusive of soldiers and Indians. The Territorial papers complain that the census returns do not do the Territory justice, and that if there had been less red tape a more truthful showing would have been the result.

The exodus of the Greenbackers from the field of unlimited currency to the Republican stronghold has commenced in earnest. The report that De La Matyr will this week announce his abandonment of the Greenback cause as a party issue, scarcely needs any further guaranty. It comes from intimate friends, and has all the semblance of authority.

The establishment of a cotton mill in Wisconsin, to cost over a quarter of a million, fills the New Orleans "Democrat" with astonishment. Why should not the mill be built where the cotton grows asks that paper. Some time in the future, when the South, by the enactment of good laws which are well enforced, invites capital to her fields and towns, then the cotton mills will be among the first of the new industries that will seek a place there.

The Republican party can go before the people on their financial record alone and win the election this fall. They do not need to point to the revolutionary character of the men who are trying to grasp the reins of the Government, but to their own bright record—the bare facts—the country taken from Democratic hands in 1861 with an empty treasury, and its credit ruined at home and abroad, a four year war to fight through, a country to be restored, and here we stand to day at the very highest point of prosperity.

The New York "Tribune" says the Democratic cry for a free ballot, like that for home rule, is simply the clamor of men who seek political control by fraudulent and dishonest means. There is not a State in the South that does not, as the fruit of the Republican administration, enjoy home rule in its most absolute sense, so far as white Democrats are concerned, nor a State in the whole Union which does not enjoy, as the fruit of the Republican legislation, an absolutely free ballot. Their home rule means the rule of the bulldozer and ballot-stuffer, and their free ballot means free fraud.

The Democracy are fond of claiming a large soldier vote for Hancock. The New York "Herald" reduces the claim to cold facts in this way: Hancock, during the war, served only in the Army of the Potomac, which contained about one-fifth of the volunteers in the service at the close of the rebellion. Only one-fourth of these or 40,000 men, were under the command of Hancock. As one-half of these were Democrats, it follows that not more than 20,000 soldiers with Republican leanings could have been brought into close enough relation with him to influence their votes. Not more than half of these are now living. This leaves 10,000 soldiers to make up that stampede for which the Democrats have been waiting for a month. And even this number will doubtless have to be divided by ten to get at the truth.

A NEW CONNECTION.

The question of connecting San Francisco with Portland by rail is still agitating certain commercial centers. Every once in a while paragraphs appear in the papers of both cities detailing the movements of railroad men and furnishing particulars about the purchase of unfinished roads reaching North from San Francisco and South from Portland, and building up the gap between the existing ends. What reliance, if any, may be put in these speculations and rumors, time will perhaps reveal. Among the latest rumors of this nature we find in the San Francisco "Chronicle" of the 14th, which reads as follows:

The truth of the rumors of a sale of Peter Donahue's railroads, the North Pacific and Sonoma Valley, now appears to be that the purchasers are the Oregon Railway and Navigation Co., which owns and manages the railroad reaching up the Willamette valley from Portland to Roseburg, Ogn. The purchase, it is understood, is to consolidate the two companies with a view to effecting a junction of the two roads, thus connecting this city and the Oregon metropolis by a coast road. The Sonoma Valley Railroad, not so much because the purchasers want it as because Donahue insisted on selling all of his railroad interests or none. The bargain was made, so the report goes, on last Sunday, T. F. Oakes, Vice-President and General Manager of the Oregon company, acting for his corporation and Peter Donahue for himself. The money, about $3,000,000, has not yet been paid, and the transfer is not to take place until some time next month. Mr. Oakes went to Oregon on the steamer George W. Elder on Monday. It is also stated that another connection for the Sonoma valley is designed, of less importance, perhaps, but still of general convenience.

Democratic papers tell us that it is safe to trust Hancock in the Presidential chair, but this is the sheerest nonsense, for a president is governed by the will of his party, or that party will throw him overboard as was done in the case of Tyler Fillmore, and Andrew Johnson. There is but one way to continue certain prosperity and that is to hang on to it now that it is firmly within our grasp. Regardless of politics let us all do this, for we are all interested alike, Greenbackers, Democrats, and Republicans. With a sound financial policy firmly established, the country will continue to prosper, and, regardless of party, that is what we all desire.

The grand old Republican party which has served us so well in war, and during peace, should and will retain power; for the thinking men of the country will not trust to any other. The people who determine these things will claim that the mission of the party is to continue the prosperous state of things now enjoyed. Those who are hesitating, have only to look to the past and observe the history of the Democratic party, both before, through the war, and after the war to the present time. That history shows a plundered treasury, stolen ships and arms, and in short their course has been marked all along with ruin to the best enterprises of the country.

It is hard to tell what are the principles of the Hancock Democracy unless it be that the leaders of that party want places for a horde of hungry office-seekers who are dying for a chance to dig into the vitals of Uncle Sam. The onslaught they are making on Garfield and the Republican party is a war in disguise upon the national Treasury, which will result in certain defeat for the "transparency is too transparent," and the American people cannot thus be gulled into the support of the hunger-stricken Democracy. We rely on the judgment of the nation, and that is to "let well enough alone."

The solid South is making a last desperate effort to retain its hold on the Government. If successful now it hopes to use its influence as to gain a long lease of power. But if defeated this year it knows that the scepter will pass from it never to return. The new census will leave it in a hopeless minority unless it can get control of the new apportionment of the members in the lower house of Congress. That is why the South is fighting so desperately and was willing to accept any candidates at Cincinnati that would aid it in the North.

Washington Territory has increased from 23,400 in 1870 to 74,753 this year. In 1860 the Territory had only 11,594 inhabitants. The more sanguine papers of the Territory predict that the growth in the next twenty years will be as great as during the last twenty years. If these hopes are realized, Washington will be a state with nearly half a million inhabitants. I have enough good land to support four or five times that number.

A Yreka "Journal" dispatch says that Senator Conkling of New York will take the stump in September in Ohio and Indiana and then begin an active canvass in New York State.

THE LIBERAL VOTE.

A Washington special to the Chicago "Inter-Ocean" has the following: "In contrasting the present prospect of the Republican party with what it was four and eight years ago, there is one very important element that is lost sight of—the liberal, or independent, Republican vote. At the time referred to this vote constituted a very annoying if not formidable, element of the opposition, not only because it refused to support the nomination, but because its entire strength was drawn from its ranks. There is nothing of this kind to trouble the party just now and with here and there a few exceptions, the entire liberal vote will be cast for Garfield and Arthur. The same can be said of the liberal and independent press. Every one of them is in hearty accord with the Chicago nominations. A contemporary explains their feelings toward the nomination of General Garfield as follows: 'They regretted undoubtedly two or three false steps in his career, but the grain and fiber of the man are so sound and the general tenor of his career so worthy, that we have yet to hear of any independent who has been repelled from his support by these flaws in his career, and if they were moved to desert him they found little to encourage them in the candidate of the Democrats or the attitude of their leader.'

Captain James S. Lawton, of the United States Coast Survey, having been placed in command of an astronomical party in California, has returned with his wife from Olympia and taken up residence permanently in San Francisco.

Hamilton Fish, Jr., has been published in the Democratic papers as a convert to Hancockism. He publishes a card declining the honor. He is a staunch enduring Republican like his eminent father.

OREGON KIDNEY TEA.

Read the following testimonials, not from persons 3,000 miles away, whom nobody knows, but from well known and trustworthy citizens of Oregon whose names, written with their own hands, can be seen at our office:

PORTLAND, Ogn. July 29, 1879. My kidneys were in a very bad condition. The urine was like brick dust, and I suffered a great deal with my back. All remedies were unavailing until I tried the OREGON KIDNEY TEA, which gave me almost immediate relief. H. HAMILTON.

PORTLAND, Ogn. Aug 2, 1879. Having a severe headache last Winter, I was induced to try the OREGON KIDNEY TEA. I found it very beneficial in its results. It is not more unpleasant to take than other tea. I would recommend it to those afflicted as I was. JOHN P. FARMER.
