

FOR PRESIDENT, JAS. A. GARFIELD, of Ohio.

FOR VICE PRESIDENT, CHESTER A. ARTHUR, of New York.

PRESIDENTIAL ELECTORS, GEO. B. CURRY, of Grant, E. L. APPEGATE, of Linn, C. B. WATSON, of Baker.

First Gun for Garfield!

Just as we go to press, the telegraph announces the result of the Vermont State election, which took place yesterday, Sept. 7th. The Republican State and Congressional ticket was elected by 25,000 majority.

HISTORICAL MISCELLANY.

Not "change" but "advance" is the Republican battle-cry.

The country shows no symptoms of a stampede in favor of a "change for the sake of a change."

The "solid South" not only wants the war forgotten, it insists that it shall be ignored.

A chronicle could safely be offered for a first-class reason from a Democrat in favor of a "change." Not one has been given yet.

Governor Gear says that Iowa will give Garfield 40,000 majority and a plurality of 75,000 to 80,000, and of this plurality there are not as many as a corporal's guard but what can read and write.

Horace White, speaking of General Hancock as the nominee of the Democratic party, sarcastically says: "Military exploits connected with the suppression of the rebellion were never greatly in demand for the purpose of rallying Democrats to the poll, and it may be doubted whether the lapse of fifteen years has added anything to their potency."

Marper's Weekly says: "Honorable men no more believe in General Garfield sold himself for $800, and then hed about it, than that General Hancock was anxious to hang Mrs. Burratt. Nothing shows General Garfield to be a corrupt man, nor General Hancock to be a blood-thirsty man; the pot house part of the contest began early and ended soon."

No man who wears a white necktie, yellow kid gloves and a corset can ever be made President of this country. That settles it against Hancock. No man who sleeps behind an iron door for fear of violence from workmen can ever be elected Vice President. And that settles it against Mr. English.

General Hancock might issue a bulletin to the Southern brethren, couched in this taking way: "A free ballot, a full vote and a fair count"—nevertheless, it will be more discreet to put a limit to the size of the majority. I order, therefore, that in every Southern State the reconciliation, anti-secession majority be kept under 10,000."

The Republicans intend to elect Garfield by an honest vote and an honest count in a Solid North. The Democrats hope to elect Hancock with a stuffed vote and a dishonest count in a Solid South. That is the situation, and if any man thinks he can challenge the accuracy of the presentation of it let him try it.

General Hancock seems to be blessed with a plastic disposition. In 1868 the Democracy declared the reconstruction Acts revolutionary and void, and to this Hancock said amen. Now he takes ground in favor of the inviolability of the amendments to the Constitution, the very amendments that the reconstruction Acts were passed to enforce. Like his party, General Hancock has as many faces as there are points to the compass.

The Democrats still delay to put Wade Hampton on the Northern stump. This is a curious misapprehension of the popular interest in this frank and outspoken statesman. If he is advertised to speak in the North, and the posters are conspicuously illuminated with his observation that Hancock represents the principles for which Lee and Jackson fought for four years, there will be such crowds to hear him as have been seen nowhere for years.

DEMOCRATIC SPEAKING.

On Saturday afternoon our citizens were treated to considerable political speaking, both from a Democratic as well as a Republican standpoint. Col. Larrabee of Seattle, W. T., held forth at Holt's Hall from 1 1/2 to 3 1/2 o'clock in behalf of Hancock, and ex-Senator Mitchell, at the Court House from 4 to 6 p. m., in behalf of Garfield. As many of the citizens were anxious to hear both sides a goodly proportion of Col. Larrabee's audience were Republicans. After listening to him two hours several persons in the audience, among them ex-Senator Mitchell, quietly vacated their seats to leave the hall. Their leaving was made the occasion of an indecent outburst. A well known pot house politician hauled out at the top of his voice: "Give it to 'em Colonel, pour in your hot shot; they can't stand the fire," which was followed by a hoot and a yell on the part of about half a dozen followers of the same sort, that reminded us forcibly of the days when the news of the battle of Bull Run was received in some of the cities in the North. The Northern sympathizers with the rebels set in motion just such a shout and yell. The audience was greatly shocked and disgusted at this outburst of ruffianism and attempted infringement of individual right. The time is past—at any rate in the Northern States—for this kind of political warfare to effect public sentiment, and the partisan who intends to help his cause by such conduct shoots very wide of the mark. Arguments, clear and convincing, not bullying yells and shouts, is what the people want.

Col. Larrabee is an easy orator, he made a moderate, good natured speech. Indeed his address was a little too moderate to suit the ardent type of Democrats that he was talking to. He reminded us of a minister in the East who took his text and then preached from something else. The two main points he made, were: 1. Hancock is a nice man, and 2d that there were a good many Democrats in the Union armies—points which Republicans do not deny. But he failed to tell his audience that a large majority of Democrats who fought to put down the rebellion are now in the Republican party. He also failed to enlighten his hearers what the principles of the Democratic party are, and what the Democratic party is going to do when it gets into power.

The Colonel wound up by a thrust at President Hayes. He said a paragraph was going the rounds of the newspapers that Hayes was packing up his trunks, preparatory to leaving Washington and that everything of value in the White House, down to old crockery, was being packed up and sent to Ohio, and that by the time Hancock got to the Capital there would not be a stone left to wipe his face upon. As no one else has seen this item in the newspapers, it must be that Col. Larrabee cut this lying paragraph out of "whole cloth" for the purpose of injuring President Hayes in the eyes of the American people. The integrity and honesty of President Hayes is too well known, for such contemptible slurs to have any weight with thinking people.

The Memphis (Tenn.) "Appeal" prints a letter from "a very influential Democrat of Illinois," in which he complains that the Democratic cause in Illinois has been greatly hurt by the intemperate language of some Southern papers, and says: "Prudence, patience, and liberality on the part of our Southern friends are actually essential. The effort, let me suggest, should be made to prevent all such nonsense getting into the Southern press for reproduction North. One such article does an injury which no argument can remedy."

If General Hancock's idea of the ballot should be carried out at the next election, he wouldn't stand a ghost of a chance of becoming President. He says in his letter of acceptance: "It is only by a full vote, free ballot and fair count that the people can raise in fact as required by the theory of our government." Let the Democrats adopt the general's suggestion, and one half of the Southern States can be counted for Garfield.

General Charles Albright of Pennsylvania writes to a friend in Ohio: "Politically we are in good condition. Garfield will carry Pennsylvania by a very large majority. We are organizing, and find our lines solid and strengthening. Hancock will not break the Republican soldiers. They understand fully the situation, and know that the principal support to Hancock comes from the men who fought us at Gettysburg, or their sympathizers and friends."

Senator Hear says the Cincinnati platform contains but one idea, viz: That American history is a failure.

CAMPBELL FIELD NOTES.

Our ardent Democratic contemporaries who are laboring so hard to "work up" an enthusiasm for Hancock, by announcing a stampede from Republicans to Democratic ranks, had better revise their list of new converts, as the tide is running strongly in the direction of Garfield and Arthur.

At a Republican ratification meeting at South Bend, Ind., on the evening of Aug. 31st, 110 Polesiders, who had hitherto voted with the Democratic party, appeared with torches and announced their intention to vote for Garfield and Arthur. This heavy defection from the ranks of the Democracy was a surprise to Republicans as well as Democrats, as the movement was entirely spontaneous on the part of the Polish-Americans, who had quietly made up their minds that their best interests lie with the party of progress and liberality.

On the 28th of August the Portland "Standard" asserted that the Hon. J. M. Bacon, of Oregon City, had forsaken the Republican party and gone over to Hancock. The next day Mr. Bacon came out in a card denying the statement, and adding that he "never was stronger in Republican faith or principle than at present."

Over one hundred Irishmen attended a Republican meeting at Burlington, Vt., last week, and after the meeting, joined the Republican club. Every effort was made by the Democratic club to prevent their attendance, but without success.

At Placerville, Cal., the other evening 68 new members joined the Garfield and Arthur club among them were 4 influential Democrats.

The N.Y. "Times" announces the conversion to Republicanism in Vermont of Hon. Smith Ely, a life-long, wealthy and influential Democrat, who has large capital invested in mining interests, and whose monthly pay-roll embraces over 11,000 men.

T. B. Golly writes the following to the S. F. "Chronicle" under date of August 31st, which explains itself. In a notice in this morning's issue of your paper my name appears as one of the speakers at the next German Democratic meeting. Will you please inform your readers that the use of my name is wholly unauthorized, and if speaking is to be done by me it will be at a Republican meeting and for the Republican party.

The secretary of the State of Maine under Governor Garcelon has written a letter to the Greenback state committee resigning his position, and membership in their organization, and declaring his purpose hereafter to act with the Republicans.

REPUBLICAN SPEAKING.

At 4 o'clock on Saturday last the listening crowd again assembled at the Court House to hear ex-Senator Mitchell in behalf of Garfield and the Republican party. In strength, beauty and sublimity his address was the climax of the occasion; besides being pungent and spicy, it was forcible and clear, and carried conviction to every unprejudiced mind. Mr. Mitchell, having listened to Col. Larrabee's address, reviewed every position taken by that gentleman, and completely knocked the pins from under the structure which that gentleman endeavored to erect. Not by slang slur, and innuendo, but by sound irresistible argument did Mr. Mitchell uphold and defend the Republican cause, and did he answer the assertions impugning the character and record of G. A. Garfield. The charge that Gen. Garfield had any criminal connection with the Credit Mobilier swindle, about which the small fry narrow-gauge politicians are making such an outcry, was completely and satisfactorily answered by producing the evidence of the men composing the committee of investigation, exonerating Mr. Garfield. If Garfield had been a thief as the Democrats are trying to make him out to be, what a pitiful end he made in standing only $329, when he was for years in a position where millions upon millions of the nation's treasure passed through the Committee of Ways and Means of which he was chairman. The charge is too preposterous to be entertained for a moment by any sensible man.

Not being a short hand writer, it is impossible to follow the ex-Senator in his remarks. Having just arrived from an extensive tour through the so-called doubtful States, the Senator had no doubt that New York would go by a handsome majority for Garfield and Arthur, as would also undoubtedly, Indiana and New Jersey. The united Republican party with a strong independent element at its back was working with an enthusiasm unparalleled in the history of American political campaigns. He charged the Republicans of Oregon to buckle on their armor and to do their whole duty in the present campaign. If every man did his duty the Pacific coast would come up solid for Garfield in the electoral college. The ex-Senator has entered the campaign for good on this coast.
