some little disarrangement of my timetable and apparent switching of trains on a corulean railway, a little window near me opened precisely like a ticket-window, and over it the letters, N. Y. C. & H. R. R. in effulgent light.

"I want to come in," I responded, "and to take a ticket with a return, if that be allowable."

"Why, of course they can't here on an express train, without stops, and they went right on to the best station in Jupiter's planet.

"Well, Sweet William, said St. Peter, 'we only had one fault to find with Mr. Peabody, and that was he left America and went to England' stated that we have no purgatory; it is only retribution. Some people work a hundred years, and some a thousand with additional hours to what they did on earth, to make up for the hardships which they gave to men who amassed their fortunes for them."

"Just at this moment," continued Uncle Rufus, "the conductor of the Washington train came in and shouted 'Tickets!' which waked me up just before we arrived at Elizabeth on our way to Jersey city."

"Well, you may think so, but I can prove to you that I was in Washington Sunday. I can also prove that I bought a ticket for New York; that I bought a sleeping berth in Pullman Palace car No. 161—sleeping berth No. 10; that I paid a porter ten cents, more or less, for polishing my shoes and brushing me off when I arrived at Jersey-city long before chrome time was struck in the board.

To make the hair stay crisp take two cents worth of gum-arabic and add to it just enough boiling water to dissolve it. When dissolved add enough alcohol to make it rather thin.

Eugenia, Eugenia, will you still insist on wearing the hair of another woman upon your head!" "Alphonse, Alphonse, do you still insist upon wearing the skin of another calf upon your feet!"
