

OREGON SENTINEL.

JACKSONVILLE: SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 19, 1881.

MR. MITCHELL AND THE REPUBLICAN PARTY.

The course of the SENTINEL with regard to ex-Senator Mitchell has given offense to one single subscriber, in Portland once quite prominent in Oregon politics, and we have received notice that this paper is no longer fit reading for him.

Monday afternoon Jan. 17th, says the Port Orford Post, the body of a man came ashore near the mill wharf and was first discovered by Nellie, the Indian woman stopping in the house near the mill, and who notified Capt. Lorentzen of what she had discovered.

The Del Norte Record of the 29th has the following: On last Monday night the wind commenced to blow from the South, which continued with more or less rain until Thursday night, when it broke forth with a fury unsurpassed during the present winter.

to a majority of its representatives at the proper time and place. It must be admitted that the Republican party is composed of material that will not submit to "bossism" and it is a quite safe proposition that no one individual, nor no one journal can assume the control of the party with a better show of success than a single subscriber may expect in dictating the policy of a newspaper.

Body Drifted Ashore.

We hear from Washington that Hon. M. C. George, who will represent Oregon in the 47th Congress, is fast becoming familiar with the business of the departments and obtaining knowledge, that will enable him to render his State service. He has already procured the establishment of a mail route between Prineville and Camp Harney, a service very much needed, and his success indicates that Mr. George will prove to be a valuable public servant, awake to all the interests of Oregon.

Give The Women a Chance.

The woman suffrage question is becoming so prominent that it can not be ignored without disrespect to many well meaning people. There is a question, however, to be settled before that of right or expediency,—do the women of Oregon desire suffrage? In order to ascertain this fact they should be permitted to vote at the next general election for or against the question of female suffrage and should a majority of females, over twenty one, enumerated by the late census express a desire to be invested with the full right of franchise it will practically settle the question.

There is scarcely any thing in modern civilization showing such an extraordinary antithesis as our jurisprudence and the usual method of selecting jurors. As law becomes more complex and farther beyond the common, intelligent understanding, there is a greater demand for ignorance on the part of jurors; and that they should know nothing, except that told them by opposing counsel. It is so hard now to get men for jury duty in whose minds no intelligent seed is sown, that, ere long, newspapers will have to be suppressed or a certain per cent of the population forbidden to learn to read and write so that they may be eligible as jurors, and enabled to poise the scales of justice with a nicety that cannot be disturbed by the knowledge of anything not told them by the lawyers.
