HAP, Y SOUTHERN OREGON.

The people of Southern Oregon have this present winter enjoyed almost spring weather since the first of November last. We have had, it is true,' our floods; but they were the result of repeated warm showers, brought to us by the breezes from a warmer clime. As to the snow that has fallen upon the mountain tops, it bas come to us 'like a thief in the night," and vanished at the first ap pearance of dawn. But the early risers only: those who are the sons of man, and yet have been ahead of the oun of the Superior, have seen the anow that robed in whitness the crests of the mountains; and even they have had but a passing glance at that which, when covering the earth so far as the eye could reach, has made many think at the time the world was enveloped in a garb of spotless purity. In the meantime grass has been growing in the valleys, which to-day presents the prominent feature of the evergreen, so luxuriant is the growth. Weeks ago the early butter-cup put forth its vellow blossom to announce the end of winter. "The lowing herds winded slowly o'er the lea" from the fact that their fat, rounded stomach's were filled with new and nourishing feed, and shook in their looseness with every step taken in their march homeward. Now the air is as balmy as is usual in the east during the month of May, and Summer suits will appreciate 60 per cent in value, if for many days, as is now the case, the thermometer continues at 60 degrees.

But how has it been elsewhere! Eastern Oregon has suffered from the rigors of an Arctic winter. Even the Willamette valley has had its floods, its snow, its ice, its loss of stock, and its frost-bitten ears and noses. East of the Cascade range men have become bankrupt through the loss of live stock; horses cattle and sheep have perished, from the cold and exposure, by the thousands; and now it behooves us to declare, in view of the present warm state of the weather, that Southern Oregon is the "boss" country in Oregon, you bet .- Independent.

"Well, now, Rutherford," exclaimed Mrs. Haves, as she took a pipe down from the shelf and eyed it with a stony glare, "if I don't think that is carrying things just a trifle too far. Here is this beautiful meerschaum that the Connecticut man sent you, and which I allowed you to keep only as a curiosity, and I declare if Mr. Evarts hasn't filled it with nasty plugs of tobacco and smoked it till it smells like everything. I do think, Rutherford, that you don't do right to let ruch things go on right here in our best rooms, and we have to leave them so soon, too. What do you suppose the Garfield woman will say to come in and find the lace curtains loaded down with navty tobacco smoke?" The good lady's voice died away as she went out of the room, bearing the offending pipe at arm's length, while the President, smiling feebly, rubbed his head in a thoughtful mood, and muttered to himself that really he should have thought different of Mr. Evarts .- Rockland Courier.

GIVE PRINTERS FAIR PLAY,-The American Newspaper Reporter gives the following sound advice: "We have a piece of advice which we wish to impress firmly and indelibly upon the public mind, and that is to give the printers fair play. Do not forget that it costs something to puff as well as to advertise; never sponge on a printer in any way whatever. It is the printers ink that makes nine-tenths of our fortunes; it takes money to buy ink, type and paper, and yet after all this, few are the thanks the printer gets. Give the printer fair play, and give up all hopes of gratuitous puffing, etc., etc. Daniel Webster was "mighty near right" when he remarked of the press, 'small is the sum rewarded to patronize a newspaper; amply rewarded are its patrons. I care not how humble and unpretending the gazette which he takes, it is next to impossible to fill it out without putting into it something that is worth the subscription price."

How civilization improves and beautifies our language. That which thirty years ago we were familiar with as "slumgullion" is now known by the euphonious name of "slickens;" time was when the solid golden pieces that delighted the miner were "chunks" now they are dignified by the name of accord with modern refinement.
