List of Newspapers.

Subscribers who do not give express notice to the contrary, are considered as wishing to continue their subscriptions.

1. If any subscribers order the discontinuance of their newspapers, the publisher may continue to send them until all arrearages are paid.

2. If subscribers neglect or refuse to take their newspapers from the offices to which they are directed, the law holds them responsible until they have settled their bills, and ordered them discontinued.

4. If subscribers remove to other places without informing the publisher, and the newspapers are sent to the former direction, they are held responsible.

5. The Courts have decided that refusing to take newspapers from this office, or removing and leaving them uncalled for, is prima facie evidence of intentional fraud.

6. The postmaster who neglects to give legal notice of the neglect of a person to take from the office the newspaper addressed to him, is liable to the publisher for the subscription price.

TWO NEW ZEALAND CITIES.

Christchurch is the "City of the Plain," and plain enough it is. It spreads over two miles square, and looks like some of our over-grown villages out West. But it has a river Avon running through it which is as crooked as a ram's horn or a sheep's hind leg. This is not the Avon that Shakespeare lived on at Stratford; but everything here is named after somebody or something in the old country. There is one of the finest museums here I have ever seen, and the Domain or public ground, is very fine, with maple trees and several barbery bushes from the States, and many choice flowers. The drainage is on top of the streets; cement gutters, which have to be cleaned every morning, as there is not fall enough on many of them for the water to be run off. Still it's rather a fine city, and in time will be a large and prosperous one. It's so quiet now you can hear your heart beat any where in the streets, and it reminds one to be thankful you have one to beat.

Dunedin is the best built city in the colony, and has a population of thirty thousand. The residences are upon the hillsides and tops and have a splendid view from all parts of the city. Princess street is over a mile in length, and is solidly built. It has street-cars and all the conveniences of any American city, but no hotel. There is not one in the colony. There are hundreds by that name, but they are nothing but rum-holes. I did not see much of the city, for it rained all the time I was there. Its public buildings are fine, and there are many things there to interest the traveler.—[Ex.

Queer Advertisements.

Some of our advertisements are as comical as Punch. One landlady, entirely innocent of grammatical knowledge, advertises that she has "a fine airy, well-furnished bedroom for a gentleman twelve feet square;" another has "a cheap desirable suite of rooms for a respectable family in good repair;" still another has "a hall bedroom for a single woman 8x12." An English widow became rather mixed by her grief, but when announcing the death of her husband she was not so mixed that she lost sight of the main question: "His virtues were beyond price, and his beaver hats were only seventeen shillings. He was left a widow and a large stock to be sold cheap at the old stand. He was snatched to the other world just as he had concluded an extensive purchase of felt, which he got so cheap that his widow can sell felt hats a fraction less than any other house in London. Peace to his ashes; the business will be carried on as usual."

Christian Hansen got lost in the mountains of Millard county, Utah, a few weeks since. In the darkness he fell over a precipice, but was caught on a narrow projecting ledge, and saved from being dashed to pieces on the rocks, hundreds of feet below. Until daylight he stayed there, shivering from cold and pain. As dawn appeared, he heard an ominous sound by his side, and discovered that a huge rattlesnake had been his sleeping mate, but was not aroused to resent the intrusion. Nothing was left for the bruised and wretched man but to crawl over the edge of the cliff and escape from his angry enemy. He succeeded, after long, wearisome toil, in descending the face of the precipice by means of projecting rock points. He wandered two days and then was found in an almost famished condition by a party of hunters.

THE GRASSHOPPERS.—Last Saturday and Sunday great swarms of grasshoppers were to be seen high up in the air, flying to the south-east. We hope they have become disgusted with this country and are going to the great American desert to return no more. They have lately been doing some damage on the Swale, but nothing serious is apprehended. Crickets have been rather thick over about South Side, but we have not heard of much injury by them. With the little black cricket with which most of us have been familiar they compare about as an elephant would with a calf. We were about to brag of what big crickets Klickitat could raise but will leave that for somebody that don't like the country.—[Goldendale Gazette.

Let no one suppose that by acting a good part through life he will escape scandal. There will be those even who will hate them for the very qualities that ought to procure esteem. There are folks in the world who are not willing that others should be better than themselves.

A WONDER OF THE WORLD.

Progress of the Work of Tunneling the English Channel.

The works on the tunnel progressing under Colonel Beaumont, chief engineer, are now sufficiently advanced to be of real interest. The project, both in design and mode of execution, is practical and ingenious. The chalk strata of England and France are geologically continuous, and the dip of the beds is the same—namely, toward the east, on both sides of the English channel. The lowermost, known as the "gray chalk," is of a more clayey nature than the other portions of the chalk formation, and is sufficiently impervious to water to render perforation feasible. The plan proposed is to follow by a descending tunnel the natural dip of the gray chalk toward Dover until a depth of 200 feet below the sea bed of the channel is attained. The channel tunnel will then be driven horizontally right across from shore to shore. A similarly inclined tunnel on the French side, rising along the direction of the dip of the strata, will make communication again with the upper surface of the land. The gray chalk is thus entered and followed throughout along its natural position, from daylight on the one side and in its subterranean and submarine depths to daylight on the other side of the channel. The works at Abbot's Cliffs consist of a short driftway from the sea front of the "Warren" to the commencement of the trail tunnel, which is circular, seven feet in diameter, and runs parallel with the existing line of the southeastern railway. It has already attained a length of 300 yards. The chalk is drilled by a circular disc of iron cutters, worked by a compressed air engine by means of a shaft with bevel wheel gearing, the shaft and engine extending for a length of thirty feet. The cutting disc makes two revolutions per minute, and is fed forward a quarter of an inch at each revolution. The total advance of the whole force of the boring is half an inch per minute. The debris cut out by the revolving disc is received in a sort of large iron tray, which is hauled back every now and then by a chain worked by an auxiliary air-engine, and the water which percolates the chalk is easily kept under by a small donkey-pump. The promise of success so far seems good, but the seven-foot tunnel has not yet been driven much, if anything, below low-water tide level. Trial shafts have been drawn vertically down a considerable distance both on the English and French shores, and there have been no signs of extraordinary difficulty from such sources. Nevertheless, the question of a possible fissure or deep crack in the continuity of the chalk itself in fluid-channel, along the line passing between the "Varne" and the "Ridge," can only be actually settled when the channel tunnel itself solves it, and ends, once and forever, all discussions upon the subject.—[N. Y. Herald."

A Man for the People.

There has never been but one man engaged in railroading in Oregon who has shown any devotion to the interests of the people—and that man is Joseph Gaston, of this county. From the first he has been on the side of the people, and advocated the railroads more to develop the country than to make money. For years he opposed Ben Holladay's imposition on the people of this county, and finally gave up his position in the company and a good salary to make a fight against Holladay and secure the just rights of Hillsboro and Forest Grove to station privileges. And after building the narrow gauge road in Yamhill, and after being sued, involved and broken up by it, he could have sold out to Villard and made twenty thousand dollars, he being offered that sum to turn the road over to Villard instead of the Scotch Company. But Mr. Gaston faithfully protected the interests of the farmers who had aided to construct the road, and turned it over to the Scotch Company to be maintained as an independent line, and went out without a penny for all his time and trouble and several thousand dollars invested.

There are not many men who would have sacrificed their own chances for others, but this man preferred to keep his pledge to the people and maintain a good name rather than "put money in his pocket."—[Hillsboro Independent.

At the instance of Governor Foster of Ohio an effort is now being made to have all the Governor's of the Union appoint a day of Thanksgiving and prayer in honor of the preservation of the President's life from the assassin's bullet. A number of favorable responses have already been received including one from Governor Thayer of our State, and the time will probably be agreed upon in a short time.

Tom Benton's Faith in Himself.

This recital recalls the scene between General Simon Cameron and Tom Benton, once related to me by the venerable Pennsylvanian. It was during Mr. Cameron's first year in the senate, 1846, I think. Benton was apparently wrapped up in his own greatness and hardly recognized any of the younger Senators. Going up the hill one day to the Capitol, Mr. Cameron overtook the Missouri statesman, and never before having spoken to him, saluted him:

"Good morning, Senator."

"Good morning, sir," replied Mr. Benton.

"It is a pleasant day, Senator."

"Yes, sir."

"I hope," said General Cameron, "that I shall have the pleasure of hearing you speak on the Oregon boundary question. I have heard many others, but would like to hear your opinion on that measure."

"Yes, sir," replied Mr. Benton, "you will hear me speak upon the Oregon boundary question, and when you do hear me upon that proposition, sir, you will see that I will annihilate those who have spoken on either side like an elephant treading upon a bed of pismires."—[Philadelphia Press.

MIDDLE-AGED MEN.

There are many at the age of thirty to sixty who are troubled with too frequent evacuation of the bladder, often accompanied by a slight smarting or burning sensation, and a weakening of the system in a manner the patient cannot account for. On examining the urinary deposits a ropy sediment will often be found and sometimes small particles of albumen will appear, or the color will be of a thin milkish hue, again changing to a dark and torpid appearance. There are many men who die of this difficulty ignorant of the cause which is the second stage of seminal weakness DR. S. will guarantee a perfect cure in all such cases, and a healthy restoration of the genito-urinary organs.
