NEW OVERLAND ROUTE.

A party of engineers fully equipped for business, has started out from Roseburg, under Major Stahlberg, an experienced engineer, for the purpose of laying out a route from Roseburg to California on a new line. Instead of striking for the Central Pacific R. R. at Redding, in California, as has always been contemplated heretofore, it is the purpose of Villard evidently to cut loose from that company altogether and construct a line much farther west and go directly to Cloverdale, the present northern terminus of the road known as the North Pacific Coast R. R. This road, until quite recently, was controlled by Peter Donahue, the San Francisco capitalist and steamboat man. This road was recently sold for $2,000,000, and it is generally believed that the great Oregon syndicate, under the direction of Henry Villard, has purchased it with a view to being independent of the C. P. R. R. The movement here reported in relation to sending out a surveying party to run a line through to Cloverdale leaves little doubt in our mind that the theory that the Oregon company have the Donahue road is the correct one. Jacksonville will be left off the line by this new survey, but if it is of sufficient importance as a business center there will be a branch road running from the main line to that city. There is a surveying party now at work in Josephine county laying a line through that county. They find less difficulties to overcome in the matter of grades than on the old line southeast through Jackson county, and the line will be very much straighter and hence shorter by the new route. It is said that the railroad authorities expect to have the road running through from Portland to San Francisco within two years time.—[Portland Telegram.]

THE PRESIDENT'S CONDITION.

The condition of President Garfield took another sudden change for the worse last Monday night since which time he has been lying in a very critical condition, and the physicians, in charge acknowledge that there is very little hope of his recovery. Nearly seven weeks have elapsed since the shooting, and while it is gratifying to know that the President still lives, yet the fact remains that he is growing weaker each hour, with no indication of improved condition. The main cause of the set-back, to use the words of Dr. Bliss, is that "his stomach has gone back on him." It rejects all that it taken into it, and, worse still, entirely empty as it must be, the vomiting continues at short intervals, causing rapid prostration and a pulse beat that sometimes reaches 130. The symptoms that have been most dreaded have all been developed, while those more eagerly expected by the doctors have not appeared. The very latest from the President, received by telegraph yesterday evening, states that his condition is somewhat improved and there is again a hope for his ultimate recovery. The bulletin at the time mentioned stated that his pulse was 105, temperature, 98, respiration 19.

Henry Villard.

An exchange gives the following personal description of the man who is at present more talked of than any other man in the State: "Mr. Villard is aged about fifty years, is five feet eleven inches in height, and weighs about 210 pounds. He is of fine, well-proportioned form, very mild in dress, and walks with the air of a man whom prosperity has not spoiled. He is indeed a genial gentleman—bright, quick in speech and action, and possessed of a wonderful amount of magnetism. His frank, hearty manner and clear, full voice are attractions in his favor difficult to surpass, but the most remarkable point about him is his face. It is strong without being harsh, determined without being stubborn. He has light grayish blue eyes, which look right at you in a manner to speedily dispel all formality and nervousness, while his forehead is high and well formed, shaded by jet black hair of ample quantity. A close-cropped iron-grey mustache shadows a mouth of more than ordinary expression—the whole making up a gentleman of fine personal appearance.

Last Monday the attorneys for Mr. Joseph Simon, contestant for the Portland Mayoralty, served notice on Mayor Thompson of their intention to ask the Circuit Court at its first sitting for a writ of review. One of Mr. Simon's legal advisers expresses the opinion that his client would carry the case into the Supreme Court as soon as Judge Stott's patience was exhausted, and keep up the contest until the last resort had been exhausted.

ARTIFICIAL STONE CEMENT AND IRRIGATION.

Many years ago Mr. Buckwell proposed the following plan for the manufacture of artificial stone. Taking fragments of stone sufficiently large to go freely into his mold, he filled up the interstices with stones of various sizes, and then pour in a mixture of chalk and Thames mud or Mersey mud burnt together. This cement being poured into the mold the whole was rammed together by falling hammers, and as the mold was perforated the water was forced out and the resulting stone so hard, when removed from the mold, that it rang when struck.

In 1844 Mr. Ransome conceived the idea of making mill-stones out of the fragments. He experimented for ten years and finally with the aid of steam made good mill-stones out of fragments of rocks and a cement out of a solution of flints and soda or potash. He first reduced the ordinary soda ash of commerce to the condition of caustic soda with water and steam. Then he added a quantity of quick lime and thoroughly mixed together. The soda by this process deprived of the carbonic acid which it contains by the quick lime forming with it a carbonate of lime. By this means the solution becomes very costly and it will dissolve flints, and to make it smooth he added to the lime soda and flints a quantity of caustic baryta, obtained by burning the commercial carbonate of baryta with wood charcoal. The general proportion of the materials used in making artificial stone are about the following:

Ten pints of sand, one pint of powdered flint, one pint of clay and one pint of the alkaline solution of flints. These ingredients are first well mixed in a pug-mill, and kneaded until they are thoroughly incorporated, and the whole mass becomes of a perfectly uniform consistency. When worked up with clean raw materials, the composed possesses a putty-like consistency, which can be molded into any required form and is capable of receiving very sharp and delicate impressions. By changing the kind of sand they have succeeded in making good window and door sills, grind-stones and excellent mill-stones, which are now being used in England, France and in some of the cities of the United States.

In 1876 E. H. Hamilton invented a machine and a cement of sand and Portland cement for the purpose of carrying water for use in houses and for irrigation, and he makes 2-inch continuous pipes in California for eight cents per foot. A large vineyard on the railroad between Sacramento and Benicia was examined by the writer of this article last year. It was a perfect success.

The only drawback to the making of great quantities of this pipe in Southern Oregon and Northern California is the transportation is the Portland (England) cement from San Francisco or Portland, Oregon. There are some gentlemen from Oakland, Cal., now here, who propose to lay good and substantial pipe in this and Lake counties for 15 cents per foot. And if some enterprising gentleman would make the Portland out of the Oregon limestone and miners' mud of Jackson county, great quantities of this pipe could be laid all over this county on a cheap scale. We have in Jackson county nearly every kind of rock, sand and mud, that is found in Portland, England. So, why not make the cement in Oregon!

There is an artificial bed of lime in the "desert" between Stewart's creek and Rogue river, which was used by B. F. Davis in 1855 in building a chimney in this town before any limestone was discovered in this county. The Scientific American says: "Portland cement is now made, says Wagner, by making bricks of an intimate mixture of limestone and clay, drying them in the air and burning them in a tall shaft furnace from 45 to 100 feet, 12 feet in diameter, with a strong grate 4 feet from the bottom." The manufacture of Portland cement is now carried on in all parts of the world where limestone and clay are to be found.

OFFICE OF SCHULZ & VON BARGEN, 129 California street, cor. Front, San Francisco.

JOHN L. BURNS, Agent. TO THE TRADE:—Practical experience has demonstrated to us that the trade requires a choice old Bourbon for immediate use. For it is well known that straight whiskey that is absolutely pure requires age, great care and attention, and our old Davenport whiskey possesses all the above qualities. The grain used in the distillation of our J. H. Davenport whiskey is carefully selected from the finest, richest and very best grown in the state of Kentucky. The water is drawn from one of the finest limestone springs in the state, the peculiar properties of which have gained for Kentucky whiskeys such world-wide celebrity. This process makes our J. H. Davenport a pure, hard made, sour mash whiskey, and we claim that for delicacy of flavor, purity and medicinal qualities, it stands unequalled.

Yours truly, SCHULZ & VON BARGEN. From and after this date J. P. McDaniel & Co., Jacksonville, will keep the justly celebrated Davenport, pure straight whiskey exclusively.

IN MEMORIAM.

Although she has passed from our sight, the recollections of her devotion to duty, love for Championship, and steadfast purpose in our noble cause should linger long with us.
