PATENT YOUR CLAIMS. Capitalists and mining men generally, are beginning to look more closely into the titles of claims they purchase than they have heretofore been in the habit of doing. In fact, even now, one of the first questions they ask is: "Have you a United States patent to your claim?" They have been caught so often that they are very cautious about investing in a mere location, but when they purchase a Government title they know exactly what they are getting, and are perfectly anfa from having claims floated upon their A striking example of the difficulty attending the sale of unpatented mines is of every day occurence. While the titles to mining claims may be undisputed, it is an undeniable fact that many of them might have been sold years ago and the owners ere this made large fortunes by investments in other properties from the proceeds of the sale. The time has passed when an ordinary location can be sold. An or-No. 3-Running Race, mile and a half dinary claim having a patent upon it, can be sold twice as readily as a much better property with nothing but a mining Recorder's title. As a general No. 5-Trotting Race, a purse of $25 will thing Eastern purchasers know but little, personally, of the merits of a mine, except from the reports of their experts, but they do know that everything else in the way of real estate which they purchase, the first thing to be looked for is a clear title. Prospectors have long regarded a United States patent as an unnecessary luxury, and the result is that many of them are still holding on to their claims, being unable to find anybody to buy them. Meanwhile locations are being floated upon their ground, and if any thing is found, the first thing they know they are deep in law suits, and > might have absolutely owned. Further, most people have an ex aggerated idea of the cost of a patent. When a patent is applied for the annual assessment work is ended. So that which is often paid out for useless work will soon amount to three times the cost of a Government title. These are points which it would be well for every claim owner to consider. The various claims sold in a mining camp will be apt to bring men with capital in. Are you ready to let them pass you by because you have no bed rock

GEITEAU.

$3 PER YEAR

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16 .- Adjt. Gen. Drum this afternoon issued stringent orders to the officer in charge of the troops stationed about the jail where Guiteau is confined. The officer was required to report on duty the full compliment of men under his command, instead of leaving them carelessly lounging about, with only two or three on active duty, as has been the case during the last four or five weeks since the first excitement was passed. The captain was also directed to keep his men under arms all night ready to resist any attack that might be made on the jail. The reason for this precaution is that, in the last forty-eight hours, many respectable people have said that if the President dies no jail. will be strong enough to hold Guitean. Something of this feeling was shown this morning, when a wealthy and respectable gentleman of this district, a former officer in the Confederate service, said that he was one of a number of men who had made up their minds to take Guiteau out of jail in case the President should die. A gentleman who has seen Guiteau in his cell says there is nothing to distinguish him from other prisoners, except the presence of guards. One of the jail guards sits near the cell, and a soldier is stationed near by where he can observe the window of Guiteau's cell, so as to prevent any communication with the outside or any attempt on the part of the prisoner to escape that way. The exact location of the cell is still kept secret by the jail officers. It seems to be well understood, however, that the prisoner is kept in the south wing, as the north wing is reserved ed for petty criminals serving jail sentences. The appearance of cell is not at all inviting. The oner, it is stated, spends most of time reading, lying at full length or the cot, which is the only piece of furniture in the narrow apartment. He seems to love to take his ease, and hi cot is so placed that the light from th window falls over his shoulder on th book which he may be reading shows no particular nicety about his dress, lying around shoeless and collarless. His garments are not very neat in appearance. He looks as though jail life agreed with him, and his physical condition seems to be improving.. The wild half crazy look which was noticed when he was arrested seems to have left him. He talks very composedly, and has nothing of the braggadocio criminal about him.
