THE AUTOPSY.
ELBERON, N. J., Sept. 20.—The following official bulletin was prepared at 11 to-night by the surgeons who have been in attendance upon the late President. By previous arrangement the post mortem examination of the body of President Garfield was made this evening in the presence and with the assistance of Drs. Hamilton, Agnew, Bliss, Barnes, Woodward, Reburn Andrew H. Smith of Elberon and Acting Assistant Surgeon D. S. Lamb of the army medical museum in Washington. The operation was performed by Dr. Lamb. It was found that the ball after fracturing the right eleventh rib had passed through the spinal column in front of the spinal cord, fracturing the body of the first lumbar vertebra, driving a number of small fragments of bone into the adjacent soft parts, and lodging just below the pancreas, about two inches and a half to the left of the spine and behind the peritoneum, where it had become completely encysted. The immediate cause of death was secondary hemorrhage from one of the mesenteric arteries adjoining the track of the ball, the blood rupturing the peritoneum and nearly a pint escaping into the abdominal cavity. This hemorrhage is believed to have been the cause of the severe pain in the lower part of the chest, complained of just before death. An abscess cavity six inches by four, in dimensions was found in the vicinity of the gall bladder, between the liver and transverse colon, which were strongly inter-adherent. It did not involve the substance of the liver, and no communication was found between it and the wound. A long suppurating channel extended from the external wound between the loin muscles and right kidney, almost to the right groin. This channel is now known to be due to the burrowing of pus from the wound. It was supposed, during life, to have been the track of the ball. On examination of the organs of the chest evidence of severe bronchitis were found on both sides, with broncha pneumonia of the lower portions of the right lung and the cough of much less extent than of the left. The lungs contained no abscesses and the heart no lumps. The liver was enlarged and fatty, but free from abscesses, nor were any found in any other organ except the left kidney, which contained, near its surface, small abscesses about one-third of an inch in diameter. In reviewing the history of the case in connection with the autopsy it is quite evident that the different suppurating surfaces, and especially the fractured spongy tissue of the vertebra furnish a sufficient explanation of the septic condition which existed.

D. W. BLISS,
J. J. WOODWARD,
FRANK H. HAMILTON,
ANDREW H. SMITH,
J. K. BARNES,
ROBERT REYBURN,
D. HAYES AGNEW,
D. S. LAMB.

The autopsy of the President's body, commenced about 5 o'clock and was not concluded until nearly 8. Large crowds of people assembled at Elberon to hear the result. Bliss stated that the autopsy had been very tedious, and the time occupied in searching for the ball alone, was nearly three quarters of an hour. Mrs. Garfield was feeling much relieved since the autopsy, inasmuch as it resulted in establishing the fact that the patient's death was inevitable. The point of the ball was somewhat blunt, or in a battered condition caused by the force with which it struck the rib, while in other respects its original shape was not altered. Bliss took charge of the bullet and sealed it for preservation until the courts should require its production.

New York Sun: It is reported from excellent sources of information that Robertson will soon resign the collectorship. He has himself furnished conclusive proof of his intention to withdraw by consenting to be elected delegate to the Republican State Convention. With his views of civil service reform he would not become a delegate to the nominating convention unless he intended to retire from the collectorship.

We do not like our friends the worse because they sometimes give us an opportunity to rail at them heartily. Their faults reconcile us to their virtues.

ALFALFA IS CONSTANTLY growing in popular esteem as feed for sheep, not only in this State but elsewhere. Our alfalfa growers from as far north as Russian river to the famous alfalfa lands of Kern county and even to the moist lowlands of Los Angeles and San Bernardino counties, have found that the great amount of alfalfa which can be grown to the acre and the high price which can be had for the clean bright wool which comes from alfalfa pasturage are great inducements to the same style of wool growing on lands which are suitable. The same course of conduct is spreading in the newer States of the Rocky mountain district. We find an account of this tendency and its results in an Eastern exchange, from which we gain the following statement:

Alfalfa has proven to the Colorado ranchman that more sheep can be kept on a given area of land than was ever dreamed of by the most enthusiastic ranchman of the plains. This plan may be considered by some as visionary and impracticable. It is the only way to meet the continual emergencies now arising in Texas, Colorado, and many other sections now suffering from lack of sufficient feed and shelter; these two are the only lacking essentials of the Texas-Missouri country, and they have to be met somehow. Thousands of sheep will be driven next fall to cheap corn in Kansas and Missouri for wintering, and back again to summer pasturage in other States. Large capitalists are preparing cattle ranches upon a more secure method for future handling. With sheep it is more imperative, practical, and cheaply done. This will necessitate the owning of the lands and establishing of homes, where comforts and culture may surround the owners or attendants of the flocks. It is the right way, and the sooner adopted by the wool-growers of the south and west the better. It has been evident to observers that flocks and herds have had to go further out, year by year, to find pasturage. Some ranges are left as untenable, but subdued and ready for fencing and tame grasses, that, with another system of handling, would support more and better improved flocks than the wild grasses ever did.—Rural Press.

By a spontaneous movement a fund has been started all over the United States, no person to give more than one dollar, the proceeds to be used as a means for the erection of a monument to the deceased President. This is called the GARFIELD MONUMENT FUND, and collections were taken up every where in the United States last Monday. It is desirable that it should be completed as soon as possible. It is probable that some arrangements will be made in every town for aiding this purpose, but as all will be anxious to do something toward this object we suggest that all persons who are interested take up collections in their own neighborhoods; if they have not time to do so forward their own contribution by money order or registered letter to W. J. Van Schuyver, of Portland, who is treasurer of the fund in this city.—Willamette Farmer.

Reading in Bed.—Never read in bed or in a reclining attitude; it provokes a tension of the optic nerve very fatiguing to the eyesight. An exchange says: "Bathe your eyes daily in salt water, not salt enough, though, to cause a smarting sensation. Nothing is more strengthening, and we have known several persons who, after using this simple tonic for a few weeks, had put aside the spectacles they had used for years and did not resume them, continuing, of course the oft-repeated daily use of salt water. Never force your eyesight to read or work in insufficient or too broad light. Reading with the sun upon one's book is mortally injurious to the eyes.

Queen Victoria has ordered the English court into mourning, in respect to our fallen President and the nation's bereavement. The day of the obsequies was generally observed throughout the English realms. Truly a good and great man belongs to the world. The sympathy of the English people will unite the two nations in stronger bonds of unity and fellowship.
