CHEERFUL WOMEN.

$3 PER YEAR

When men choose a wife they should select a cheerful, happy-tempered woman, no matter whether she is handsome or not. They make a great mistake when they marry for beauty and style, or for talents and accomplishments, if there is not a cheerful heart to go with them, a bright, sunny soul. The sweetest, most lovable wives are those who possess the magic power of being bright and cheerful under almost any circumstancel, provided their husbands treat them with the courtesy and due forbearance which is their right. Rich or poor, high or low, it makes no difference provided the bright little fountain of cheerfulness hubbles up like a continual spring in their hearts and scatters its drops everywhere. Was ever the stream of trouble and trial so dark and deep that the sunshine of a cheerful face falling across its turbi lness would fail to awaken an answering gleam? No, indeed! So cultivate a joyous, cheerful, happy disposition, friends, and see for yourselves how much good you can do in this life by its aid. No matter how cross and crabbed one may feel, no matter if the brain is filled with meditations upon the great afflictions of life, or that the stomach is drenched with pills and mixtures and tonics; just let one of these cheery women come across you, and, my word for it, she will route you from your fit of the "blues." The long wrinkles about your mouth will shorten, the black gloom of your brow will disappear, and almost before you know it you are laughing heartily at some little anecdote she is relating, and your

Ah! what a blessing are these cheerful women. How often do their little hands assuage the grief of the mourner, and their bright, sunny smiles bring sunlight to the gloomy heart! No one can estimate the good they do until the judgement day will reveal the secrets of many aching hearts and show us how much we owe to these cheerful, peful, helpful, happy souls. Their own lives may have been filled with grief, but the darkened cloud revealed to them its silvery lining. They may have felt the stings of stern penury; but with the little they possessed they have wasted not one jot. ATTER OF ROSES.

In the war plains of Turkey, south of the Balkan mountains, whole districts are covered with rose plants, set in lines about five feet apart and tended for some years with the greatest care. At length, in some sweet fresh morning in early summer, while the roses are yet wet with dew, the tender flowers are torn off by the laborers and cast at once by heaps into huge coppers, there to boil for hours in clean rain water. The fragrant steam is carried along a tube and, on cooling, becomes a kind of thick rose water. This is boiled up again and the vapor cooled into a liquid, on the top of which floats LINDLEY, TORRY & CO. a yellowish, oily, scum, that is known as the "atter of roses" It takes about 4,000 pounds of roses to make a pound

> Once a merchant opened a cupboard in his store and showed a visitor thirty large glass bottles in which, he said, was $60,000 worth of the precious essence. This quantity must have taken four million pounds of roses in makng. But may be, after all, their fragrance in that form would give more and longer lasting pleasure than could have been given had the flowers been left upon their bushes, where they could only have cheered the passers by.

following is worth considering: According to the directory of the 47th Congress, there are in that body 293 nembers. One hundred and ninetyfive lawyers; nineteen professional politicians; three railroad officers; one capitalist; one clergyman. There are 65 members representing the useful employments of the country, as follows: seventeen merchants; eleven farmers; twelve editors; ten manufacturers; five physicians; two civil engineers; two miners; two mechanics; one metallurgist. The useful employments are still worse represented in the Senate as the following shows. There are 76 members as follows: fifty-seven lawyers; five bank officials; three professional politicians. Of the useful professions there are eleven. Three merchants; three manufacturers; two miners; two general buiness; one farmer; one editor.
