

THE COURT HOUSE QUESTION.

The Ashland "Tidings" is quite chagrined at the result of the vote for county Commissioners and affects the belief that the Court House question was not before the people. Now Bro. Leeds; as you don't like logic we will let logic take care of itself while the people draw their own conclusions. There was no issue made on the building of a Court House—the "Tidings" says. Then why was it that the Ashland delegation to the Democratic convention waited on Mr. Cook and demanded a pledge that he would oppose the building of a new Court House? And why was it, when Mr. Cook declined to pledge himself—pro or con—that citizens of Ashland, Manzanita, Rock Point, Sam's Valley, Eagle Point and elsewhere "mounted in hot haste" and canvassed every portion of the valley east of Jacksonville, warning voters that if Mr. Cook was elected a Court House would be built at once and urging his defeat in order to prevent a fearful raid on the treasury? That they did make an issue is a matter of fact and that they did their work well, even going so far as to say that Mr. Cook had already robbed the treasury, the vote against him in Ashland and every precinct canvassed bears witness. If there was no issue; why was it that Mr. Ficke, a resident of Jacksonville, was warned that he would not receive a single vote in Ashland for Commissioner? The returns show that he did not receive a vote there. If there was no issue, no fear that Mr. Ficke would favor a new building why was it that the Ashland delegation, pledged in convention to vote for him, refused at the polls to give him a single vote? Why was it that Mr. Alford, a resident of Ashland, known to be "anti Court House" received such an overwhelming majority? Is it because the people of Ashland are so narrow and clannish that they can cast a unanimous vote against a man of respectable character simply because he is a resident of Jacksonville? Hardly, and the only conclusion left is; that the Court House question was made an issue and pressed in Ashland, with a singular unanimity and, there at least, with most satisfactory results. It is idle stuff to tell the people there was no issue when the contrary is so easily proved. In Jacksonville the question of electing Mr. Cook over Satterfield and Alford, known to be strong "anti Court House" men, was the paramount one on election day. Indeed, with a party majority of 350 votes, he would have been shamefully slaughtered and beaten had it not been for his solid vote here where, also, the issue was a live one. When the actual state of facts is understood the attempt to cover up the meaning of a most decisive vote, taken on a square issue, can only excite ridicule and can hardly be deceptive. Now for some of the "Tidings" logic. It says:

At the Democratic county convention, however, Cook, or his friends, stated either directly or indirectly that he would not support the scheme to build immediately. With this understanding, delegates returned to their precincts and reported that Cook was opposed to a new Court House. Mr. Alford himself had that understanding, and worked for Cook at home, we are told. Yet, in spite of this, Cook ran away behind his ticket under the influence of his past record on the question.

Mr. Alford is hardly entitled to fame as a worker; for Cook ran 206 votes behind him in Ashland; both being on the same ticket, and as Mr. Cook's "past record" happens to be opposed to building a Court House, perhaps those who voted against him intended to rebuke him for want of public spirit in the past. Now Bro. Leeds be honest and come up to the professional. You admit the necessity of new buildings and that the present ones are a disgrace, but object to building this year. This is much like a man desperately in need of his breakfast but declining to eat it until tomorrow so he could get hungry enough to get the worth of his money, and it sounds funny. Confess now that it is the question of location that is disturbing some people. You know it is; there is no use in dodging the question and if the county seat were located at Ashland the county Court would be abused like pick-pockets if they did not take immediate action and provide suitable buildings. It may not appear good logic to Bro. Leeds to conclude that the people have decided the question in favor of new buildings but the conclusion will be forced on him as solid truth whether it be tasteful or distasteful and, after the issue being fairly tried, our respected contemporary should accept the result gracefully and without squirming.

THE NEXT U. S. SENATOR.

The Republicans, having a large majority of the members that will compose the next Legislative Assembly, will, of course, elect a Senator to replace Mr. Grover whose term expires next March. The question naturally recurs; who will it be? With full allowance for the uncertainty of political things, and casting all unfavorable probabilities into the scale against him there is hardly a doubt but that it will be John H. Mitchell. It is true that there are a few Republicans opposed to Mr. Mitchell but, when their objections are analyzed, they are found to be purely personal and generally springing from the most contemptible motives. The day has passed when the great interests of a whole State are to kick the beam against the puerile hostility of disappointed place hunters or the selfish interests of men who antagonize a Senator the moment they lose the power to use him. The development of this young commonwealth through congressional aid, is of vastly greater importance than the distribution of its federal patronage or the royal pleasure of a few individuals, and the clearly defined duty of the party in power is to select its ablest and most efficient member to represent the State. This perception of right; this appreciation of steadfast fidelity to his public trust is the cause of Mr. George's astonishing majority and the same causes will again send John H. Mitchell to the Senate. The State never had an able Representative than he was and it was a sorry day for her interests when he was replaced. People are growing wiser, however, and the blunder will not be repeated this year. No doubt Mr. Mitchell will be slandered and traduced but, fortunately, he has climbed beyond the reach of venomous things and will be measured only by his value as a public servant. Mark it; Mr. Mitchell will be the next U. S. Senator, if he chooses to be, and with Representatives like him and Mr. George in either branch of Congress, Oregon will secure more than her share of congressional favors and have a far more potent voice in the national legislature than she ever had.

Correspondence.

YREKA, CAL., June 21, 1882. Editor Jacksonville SENTINEL: I noticed an article in last issue of SENTINEL, that a number of farmers and stock raisers of Rogue river valley complain of the ruling made by the managers of the Yreka Fair in excluding all horses from the races not owned in the district prior to October last. The managers of the Siskiyou and Mount Shasta Agricultural Societies have had a similar rule in each of their annual programmes for the past few years. The object is plain. It is not to bar farmers and stock raisers in the district from competing for the purses offered; but to protect them against transient or traveling horses which without this rule would drop in on us a day or two before the races under assumed names and without a record (known to us) consequently we could not bar them. We see them go, we see our purses go and the next day we see them go in some other direction. A few days later we hear the farmers and stock raisers say; that old boss has a record of 2:30 &c., and if it had not have been for him my horse would have won that purse. The object of our association is the improvement of stock in our district. We offer two purses this year of $500 each free for all from any section and really cannot see any grounds for complaint. L. SWAN, President, Mt. Shasta Agricultural Association.

The Legislature.

Official returns are all in and the Republicans have a majority of 16 on joint ballot in the Legislature—two in the Senate and 14 in the House. The following will show how they stand:
