SENDING A TELEGRAM.

AN INEXPERIENCED TRAVELER'S LABORIOUS EFFORTS.

One man reached a long arm over the little crowd clustered at the operator's window and asked for a "blank telegraphic form," explaining that he "wished to send a telegraphic dispatch to his family."

Now, when a man speaks of a "telegraphic dispatch" I "Yes sir." It was a stunner, for a always wake up and look at him, because the cumbersome title is at utter variance with the spirit of the telegraph.

It's too long. The use of it betrays the man who has little use for the telegraph. The more nearly he can come to saying "msg" the more content he is.

And he doesn't call it a "telegraphic form;" he asks for a "blank," black or red, as the case may be. And he never "telegraphs" anybody. He "wires" them.

And he doesn't explain to the operator what he wants to do with the blank. Presumably he wants to write a message. And as to the matters referred to that "msg" and the party for whom it is intended, the operator will know all that he wishes to know—and sometimes much more than you want him to know—soon enough.

So I watched the passenger write his "telegraphic dispatch." First he asked the operator: "What day of the month is this?" There was nothing unusual in that. All men ask that. It is the opening line in the regular formula of sending a "msg."

You may know what date it is before entering the office, you may even have it impressed upon your mind by having a note fall due on that day, but the moment you pick up your pencil over the blank, that date flies from your mind like the toothache from a dentist's stairway.

So when the man asked: "What day of the month is this?" I was not surprised. I courteously answered him, as a cover to approaching his position, but he did not believe me. He repeated his question and made the operator answer. Then I knew he was very new at it.

He spoiled three blanks before he got a "telegraphic dispatch" written to suit him. But everybody uses stationary more extravagantly in another man's office than he does at home. Then he wrote every word in the body of the dispatch very distinctively, but scrambled hurriedly over the address as though everybody knew as well as he did and dashed off his own signature in a blind letter style, as though his name was as familiar to the operator as it was to his own family.

But even this is not uncommon. A man will write "Cunningham" so that no expert under the skies will tell whether it was Covington or Carlington, or Cummagen, or Carrenton, and when the operator points to it and asks "What is this?" the writer will stare at him in blank amazement for a moment, and then answer: "Why, that's my name!"

"Well, yes, I know that," the operator will say, "but what is your name?" Then the man will grasp for breath and catch hold of the desk to keep himself from falling, and finally shout: "Why, Cunningham of course, I!" and look pityingly upon the operator and then glance about the room with a pained, shocked expression, as one who would say, "Gentlemen you may not believe it, and I do not blame you, but heaven is my witness—here is a man who does not know that my name is Cunningham!"

This is not unusual. Any operator will tell you that he has met Cunningham scores of times and has mortally offended him every time by asking him his name.

Well, my tall man with the thin neck got along a little better than that when he handed the operator the following explicit message: Mrs. H. Follinsbee, Dallas Centre, Iowa: MY DEAR WIFE: I left the city early this morning after eating breakfast with Prof. Morton, a live man in the temperance cause.

I expected to eat dinner with you at home, but we were delayed by a terrible railroad accident, and I narrowly escaped being killed; one passenger was terribly mangled and has since died, but I am alive. The conductor says I cannot make connection so as to come to Dallas Centre this morning, but I can get there by 8 o'clock this evening. I hate to disappoint you, but cannot help it. With love to mother and the children I am your loving husband.

ROGER K. FOLLINSBEE. The operator read it, smiled and said: "You can save considerable ex-

THE JACKSONVILLE STEAM FLOURING MILL. Commenced Manufacturing the best of flour on MONDAY, SEPT. 29, 1880.

We are prepared to do all kinds of custom work in the way of exchange of flour for wheat, chopping feed and grinding corn. We have superior machinery for manufacturing flour and we feel safe in saying that we can do better work than any mill in Rogue River Valley.

In exchange, we will give for good, clean wheat, 35 lbs. of flour and 9 lbs. of mixed feed for each bushel. MCKENZIE & FOUFRAY, Proprietors.

A SURE CURE FOUND AT LAST! NO ONE NEED SUFFER! A sure Cure for Blind, Bleeding, Itching and Ulcerated Piles has been discovered by Dr. William's Indian Ointment.

A single box has cured the worst chronic cases of 25 or 30 years standing. No one need suffer five minutes after applying this wonderful soothing medicine. Lotions, instruments and electrics do more harm than good. William's Ointment absorbs the tumors, allays the intense itching (particularly at night after getting warm in bed), acts as a poultice, gives instant relief, and is prepared only for Piles, itching of the private parts, and for nothing else.

Read what the Hon. J. M. Coffinberry of Cleveland says about Dr. William's Indian Pile Ointment: I have used scores of Pile Ointments, and it affords me pleasure to say that I have never found anything which gave such immediate and permanent relief as Dr. William's Indian Ointment.
