

NEW YORK, February 23, 1883.
 If there was any proof needed of the hollowness of Democratic pretensions to reform and desire of helping the people, the defeat of Judge Kelley's bill for the relief of the burden of taxation furnishes it. The bill may not have been the best possible one that could have been drafted, but it would have saved something like forty-one millions a year. The Democrats however voted solidly against it, and thereby showed that they have fully resolved that the country must bear the weight under which it now struggles and that a helping hand will not be extended.

Right here in the city they have given us another exhibition of their rottenness. A few weeks ago, it will be remembered, Commissioner of Jurors Caulfield, started in to reform his department and turned out and had arrested several clerks who had been receiving bribes for years from men who were unwilling to serve as jurors. People were very much amused to see Caulfield who among a certain class of politicians is known as "Boodle George," from the fact that when any "deal" was made Caulfield always carried the "boodle," set up a reformer, and they asked themselves what does he want. His enemies assert that he wanted all the cream of the office to himself. However this was, he received orders from his political boss to stop the nonsense or he would go himself. The result was that the examination against the clerks (who of course political magnets are in their own way) was conducted in such a manner that the fellows were discharged. Caulfield however is now a marked man. He, Police Justice White and Henry Parroy have brought the hatred of the so-called Democrats down on themselves, for their affiliation with the citizens movement, and they will not be forgotten.

A leading Republican Senator who was in town a few days ago, spoke at length to me on the outlook of the Democracy for the Presidency in 1884. "It is almost pitiful," said he, "to see how quick their boom has given out. On the first of January they had three rising men, either of whom was worthy of being their banner bearer. They were Governor Cleveland of New York, Governor Butler of Massachusetts and Governor Pattison of Pennsylvania. Scarcely a month has passed since then and what is the result. Cleveland is as dead as God ever made a politician. During these four weeks of office he has shown himself so utterly, helplessly incompetent, dull and ignorant that his own party are ashamed of him. I verily believe that if he were to run for Alderman or Councilman in Buffalo, he would be beaten by any liquor dealer. Butler who promised so many reforms and was going to set the ocean on fire, has come down with the rapidity of the stick of a sky rocket. The only one who is holding his own is Pattison. He is not by any means a statesman, but he is a clear headed man and he is working and studying hard to be one. I think that he will be the only dangerous candidate the Democrats may bring up against us. He started out to be a people's Governor and he is sticking to his programme. His message to the Legislature recently requiring employers to give workmen two weeks notice in case of dismissal, has made him strong with the working classes, and several other similar deeds have added to his strength. He is not a Democratic "war horse" of the standard type, and if his staying power is equal to his speed as the Kentucky horseman says, he will be very dangerous in time."

The Democratic Legislature in Albany having things all its own way is doing nothing, which is perhaps very sensible, but brings up the question whether we need a legislature at all. Under the circumstances the cry of several Democratic papers to come is very sensible.

Rumors have been prevalent for several days that William H. Vanderbilt has been "seriously ill," and that he is threatened with paralysis of the brain. So far as can be ascertained, however, the rumor is untrue. The family declare the reports "wicked falsehoods circulated for the sake of influencing the stock market." Mr. Vanderbilt has been confined to his room with a severe cold, and has been compelled to forego his customary drive on the road for several afternoons. His son Cornelius too has been obliged to carry on his shoulders nearly the entire responsibility of his father's business. Although William K. is the elder, the father places more reliance on Cornelius. William K. is perhaps the more brilliant of the two, he has more dash and more quick energy, but he lacks balance. Even on the turf where he had a sort of a motoric career, racing in the name of his trainer, his quality, or rather absence of it was frequently noted and commended on, particularly.

"Well, you are the meanest boy I ever heard of," said the grocery man. "But what about your pa's dancing a clog dance in church Sunday? The minister's hired girl was in here after some codfish yesterday morning, and she said the minister said your pa had scandalized the church the worst way."

"O, he didn't dance in church. He was a little excited; that's all. You see, pa chews tobacco and it is pretty hard on him to sit all through the sermon without taking a chew and gets nervous. He always reaches around in his pistol pocket when they stand up to sing the last time, and feels in his tobacco box and gets out a chew, and puts it in his mouth when the minister pronounces the benediction. He always does that. Well, my chum had a present on Christmas of a music box, just about as big as pa's tobacco box, and all you have to do is to touch a spring and it plays 'She's a Daisy, She's a Dumpling.' I borrowed it and put in pa's pistol pocket, where he keeps his tobacco box, and when the choir got most through singing pa reached his hand in his pocket and began to fumble around for a chew. He touched the spring, and just as everybody bowed their heads to receive the benediction, and it was so still you could hear a gum drop, the music box began to play and in the stillness it sounded as large as a church organ. Well, I thought ma would sink. The minister heard it, and he looked toward pa, and everybody looked at pa, too, and pa turned red, and the music box kept up, 'She's a Daisy,' and the minister looked mad and said 'Amen,' and the people began to put on their coats, and the minister told the deacons to hunt up the source of that worldly music, and they took pa into the room back of the pulpit and searched him, and ma says pa will have to be churched. They kept the music box, and I have got to carry in coal to get money enough to buy my chum a new music box."—"Peck's Sun."

Rates for Sheep Keepers.
 1. Keep sheep dry under foot with litter. This is even more necessary than roofing them. Never let them stand in mud or water.
 2. Take up lamb bucks early in the summer, and keep them until December, following, when they may be turned out.
 3. Count every day.
 4. Begin grazing with the greatest and use small quantities at first.
 5. If a ewe loses her lamb, milk her daily for a few days, and mix a little alum with her salt.
 6. Let no hogs eat with the sheep in the Spring, by any means.
 7. Give the lambs a little mill feed in time of weaning.
 8. Never frighten sheep if possible to avoid it.
 9. Sow rye for weak ones in cold weather, if you can.
 10. Separate all weak, thin or sick from those strong, in the fall and give them special care.
 11. If any sheep is hurt, catch it at once and wash the wound, and if it is fly-time, apply spirits of turpentine daily and always wash with something healing. If a limb is broken, bind it with splinters tightly, loosening as the limb swells.
 12. Keep a number of good bells on the sheep.
 13. Never let sheep spoil wool with chaff or burrs.
 14. Cut tag-locks in early Spring.
 15. For scours give pulverized alum in wheat bran; prevent, by taking great care in changing dry for green feed.
 16. If one is lame examine the foot, clean out between hoofs, pare the hoofs if unsmooth, and apply tobacco with blue vitriol, boiled in a little water.
 17. Shear at once any sheep commencing to shed its wool, unless the weather is too severe, and shave carefully the pelt of any that die.
 18. Have at least one good work by you to refer to.

Coos Bay "News;" On Sunday afternoon a sad accident occurred at the shooting gallery on Frontstreet, Marshfield, causing the death of Andrew Hendrickson, a young man highly respected in the community. It appears that several parties had been shooting in the gallery during the afternoon and Hendrickson stepped in to see the shooting; he was leaning against the front street window of the gallery, close to the door leading to the P. K. saloon, when a target rifle in the hands of William Phipps, superintendent of the Eastport coal mine, was accidentally discharged, the ball penetrating Hendrickson's stomach, and possibly severing some important artery, causing death in a very short time.

It is not all gold that shines—no indeed; the well polished lead head under a brilliant gaslight will put the auriferous metal entirely in the shade.
