CALIFORNIA AND OREGON RAILROAD

The holiday number of the S. F. Chronicle gives the following review of the work on the southern end of the route as follows:

The California and Oregon has been working industriously on their extension north of Redding to carry out their agreement to meet the Willamette Valley at the Oregon line. The distance from Redding to the State line is 140 miles. Most of the route is through a country in which railroad building is very difficult. Grades are heavy, tunnels are long and cuts, fills and bridges are numerous. Grading north of Redding was commenced last October. Since then work has been occasionally interrupted by a strike of the laborers or other exigencies. For forty miles north of Redding the road follows the windings of the Sacramento for a considerable distance. There are five important tunnels within forty miles, the longest of which is 1800 feet. Of this, 630 feet is completed. The remainder of the work will be completed in June. The workmen have been occupied night and day, prosecuting their labors from each end. The other three tunnels are respectively 460, 535 and 362 feet in length. Two of them are completed. About twenty five miles of grading are already done and the track is laid twenty miles north of Redding. The country north of Redding to be opened by this road to business and settlement does not offer very great agricultural advantages. Here and there along the streams are found fertile valleys; timber is abundant and minerals abound throughout the region. It has a lovely summer climate and will eventually become a popular resort for persons who desire either good air, sport or repose. The scenery of Northern California is among the most romantic in the world, the leading attraction being the famous Shasta. Arrangements are already making for the building of a fine hotel near the mountain by capitalists interested in the road, which will offer the accommodations of the city in close conjunction with the wildness of nature. The difficulties and delays attending the work will prevent the completion of the road and direct railroad communication with Portland till some time in 1884. The Willamette valley road is only a few miles from the point of junction, which seems likely to reach at least a year before the California and Oregon arrives at the same point.

The Irish question will be likely to give Carlisle some concern before Congress ends. There is an impression that Finerty was kept off the Foreign Affairs Committee because of his pronounced position on the Irish question. Cox, another champion of Irish rights, is left off that committee chiefly, and possibly solely, because young Belmont is left on the committee. Irishmen look at young Belmont as holding the proxy of his father, and one need but mention the name of August Belmont to an audience of Irishmen to learn in what esteem he is held. Irish Americans will be pretty certain to say that Carlisle, as to the Committee on Foreign Affairs, at least, has adopted the policy of "the Irish must go."

Governor Moody has appointed L. R. Webster of Jacksonville Circuit Judge of the First Judicial district, vice H. K. Hanna, resigned. No appointments to succeed Judge Bennett of the Dalles and Judge Stott of the Portland Court have yet been announced, although their resignations take effect on January 1st. All three of the Judges had four years each to serve and resigned on account of an insufficiency of salary, the last Legislature having refused to increase their salaries.

A leading broker, who says he is fully conversant with the facts says Henry Villard's resignation was accompanied by a formal transfer to the Directors of every piece of property of whatsoever nature possessed by him, and included all that was in the name of or had been transferred to his wife, and that he was now actually penniless.

New York, December 31.—The "Times" says: It is stated on the best authority that Villard resigned the Presidency of the Northern Pacific road in a letter handed to the Directors on Saturday, upon which no official action has been taken.

John Waggle, the mail carrier on the route between Crescent City and the Klamath river, on the coast, was drowned one day last week while attempting to ford Wilson creek with the horse he was riding.

Applegate Items.

Jan. 1, 1884.
The rain was very welcome, both to farmers and miners, for plowing can now be well done and also some mining. Except milk cows, calves and work horses, but little feeding has been done but some stock looks as though it lived with a step father. The bridge across Williams creek is to be covered in, which is a good thing and it would be better and save expense if the new bridge across Applegate was treated in the same way. Salmon are going up the river in abundance and many of them are being caught by the waiters. The parties on Christmas were not as good as of yore, for the rain, high water, and mud caused many to remain at home and those that did go do not report a pleasant time; but old folks that staid at home, had a good social time having plenty Christmas treats. Since the rain but little travel to the new town, but as soon as the new ferry at the Applegate ford is completed there will be more than ever, as people do not like to ford Rogue river at any time. I do not like the location of the town for there is too much of a mud hole for it to make a new London. The best merchant woman lives in Grants Pass precinct. I heard her tell a merchant that she would not allow her hens to lay eggs for less than three bits a dozen—this will be bad news to egg eaters. He was thought to be a nice man, but like old Tray, he was caught in bad company thusly: "A neighbor had a fine sow and fine pigs, which he had just fed and started back home, but had gone only about 1/2 mile when he heard a dog bark and then a gun fire. As it came from the direction of his hog he went back and there he found his good neighbor and a bad boy busy butchering his sow. Twenty dollars settled the bill for the sow but does that clear the thieves and does he not throw himself liable for Rogue's Harboring!"

Almost every person has some form of scrofulous poison latent in his veins. Piles! Piles! Piles!
A SURE CURE FOUND AT LAST!
NO ONE NEED SUFFER!
A sure Cure for Blind, Bleeding, Itching and Ulcerated Piles has been discovered by Dr. William (an Indian Remedy), called Dr. William's Indian Ointment. A single box has cured the worst chronic cases of 25 or 30 years standing. No one need suffer five minutes after applying this wonderful soothing medicine. Lotions instruments and electuaries do more harm than good. William's Ointment absorbs the tumors, allays the intense itching, (particularly at night after getting warm in bed), acts as a poultice, gives instant relief, and is prepared only for Piles, itching of the private parts, and for nothing else.
Read what the Hon. J. M. Coffinberry of Cleveland says about Dr. William's Indian Pile Ointment: I have used several of Pile ointments, and it affords me pleasure to say that I have never found anything which gave such immediate and permanent relief as Dr. William's Indian Ointment.
For sale by all druggists or mailed on receipt of price, $1.00.
