

OREGON SENTINEL.

JACKSONVILLE
SATURDAY, MARCH 8, 1884.

The bill to allow the Oregon Pacific road to build one or more bridges over the Willamette river has been favorably reported. Slater expects to pass the bill soon.

The case of the "New Northwest" against the "Northwest News," to prevent the latter paper from using the heading "Northwest News," was decided in the Supreme Court at Salem this week in favor of the daily "News."

The Democratic papers are watching John Sherman very closely. They say he has made three million dollars, and is waving the "bloody shirt," preparatory to his caucus for the presidency. Tilden and Payne will have to gush hard to beat this in Ohio.

High license is making progress. The Supreme Court of Illinois has affirmed the Harper act, which requires a license fee of $500 a year. In Nebraska a high license is accomplishing so much in the way of temperance reform as to compel silence on the part of its opponents. In Lincoln and Omaha the license is placed at $1,000 per year. In the country and smaller towns the fee is $500. Since the adoption of high license Omaha has lost half of its saloons, while the decrease in the country is still greater. Legislation of this sort is wise, because it is legislation that the people will enforce.—Oregonian.

From Ayer's newspaper annual for 1883 we gather a large variety of interesting information about the news papers of the so called southern states. The scarcity of Republican publications in the south is simply amazing. Mississippi takes the lead with one Republican and ninety-one Democratic. Alabama comes next with two Republican and eighty-eight Democratic; then follow South Carolina with two Republican and sixty-one Democratic, Georgia with five Republican and 138 Democratic, Texas with eleven Republican 165 Democratic, Arkansas with six Republican and eighty-six Democratic, etc. In view of this showing we agree with Editor Gorham, of the Washington Republican, that what the south needs is a greater variety of political information.

The people all over Oregon, so far as ascertained, says the "Corvallis Gazette," are invariably in favor of sustaining the mortgage tax law substantially as it now stands, except the few money mongers and their sticklers in and about Portland. They would also be in favor of sustaining it if it was not that heretofore they have been loaning money throughout the country and afterwards placed the notes and other evidence of indebtedness out of the way of taxation and thus they escaped paying any taxes upon such loans. But as the mortgage tax law defines the mortgages as real property and makes them taxable in the county where they are recorded and where the land is situated, these sharks and blood suckers are no longer able to swindle the public out of the burden of taxation which they should pay. If these semi outlaws do not desist from their oppressions of the people, the people of every county should organize loan associations for the purpose of bringing in and handling eastern capital to loan to the people of the interior.

The Tariff Question.

There is discord in every fibre of the Democratic party, as was represented in Congress the other day. So much distrust never prevailed among any class. Like a pack of hungry curs they are snapping at each other's heels, and howling "coward," "sneak," "ingrate," etc. The protectionists say the free traders have no political sense; that if they were given full reign they would wreck the party within a fortnight. The free traders declare the protectionists have not the courage to express their sentiments, and that they are too cowardly to improve the opportunity afforded them by a majority in the house. So it stands. There is discontent and backbiting on every hand. This condition of affairs was brought about by the announcement that Randall proposed to lead a sufficient number of protection Democrats over to the Republicans to out of debate on the Morrison bill, knowing that it will meet with sweeping defeat in its present shape.

The refusal of the party to take up Converse's resolution to restore the duty of 1867 on wool was galling to that class of Democrats who favored it, and Converse is now among those who say the tariff idiosyncrasies of the party have already branded defeat on his brow, so far as the coming campaign is concerned.

Land-Grabbers.

The "Oregonian" publishes an article exposing a vast scheme for land robbery under the Legislative Act of 1870, entitled "An Act, providing for the selection and sale of swamp and overflowed lands belonging to the State of Oregon." By the terms of this Act land was to be sold at $1 per acre, 20 per cent to be paid in 90 days after the date of a public notice of selection and the balance in 10 years thereafter. Any person is authorized to file an application for land, and there is no limit on the amount any single purchaser could take. It charges that H. C. Owen of Eugene, familiarly known as "Hen" Owen, who lobbied the bill through and had the support of the Grover administration, took advantage of it and filed on 4,000,000 acres in advance of the selection of such lands by the State and approval by the general Government. Much of the land was excellent for grazing purposes and was neither swampy nor overflowed. The State officers were ready and willing to concede Owen's claims, but the Government had to approve.

R. V. Ankeney was sent out from Washington as a special agent to make an examination. Owen selected 122,000 acres in Lake county and borrowed money to pay the 20 per cent. He then gave bonds for the $42,000 to certain parties provided they would sell 115,000 acres at $1 25 an acre. Up to this time the Government had not approved of the selections. One of the parties named in the bond for $42,000 was Ankeney and he approved the selections. The land was bought by an English company. It was also stipulated that Ankeney was to receive one half of the proceeds of the sales of all new filings. The "Oregonian" charges Ankeney with being bribed, and states further that Owen selected 150,000 acres in Grant county, which have been recently approved by the general Government, and that certificates of sale were granted by the State in October and November last.

THINK OF IT NOW!

Although much is said about the importance of a blood-purifying medicine, it may be possible that the subject has never seriously claimed your attention. Think of it now! Almost every person has some form of scrofulous poison latent in his veins. When this develops in scrofulous Sores, Ulcers, or Eruptions, or in the form of Rheumatism, or Organic Diseases, the suffering that ensues is terrible. Hence the gratitude of those who discover, as thousands yearly do, that
