A SURE CURE
AT LAST
NO ONE NEED SUFFER!
A sure Cure for Blind, Bleeding, Itching and Ulcerated Piles has been discovered by Dr. William, an Indian Remedy, called Dr. William's Indian Ointment. A single box has cured the worst chronic cases of 25 or 30 years standing. No one need suffer five minutes after applying this wonderful soothing medicine. Lotions, instruments and electricities do more harm than good. William's Ointment absorbs the tumors, allays the intense itching, (particularly at night after getting warm in bed) acts as a poultice, gives instant relief, and is prepared only for Piles, itching of the private parts, and for nothing else.
Read what the Hon. J. M. Coffinberry of Cleveland says about Dr. William's Indian Pile Ointment: "I have used scores of Pile Cures, and it affords me pleasure to say that I have never found anything which gave such immediate and permanent relief as Dr. William's Indian Ointment.

Do Girls Swear?

Philadelphia "Progress" says: "Most any girl who is frank will tell you yes, that most girls do swear on occasions. Their swearing is not shocking, except as all swearing is shocking, and that any bad done by the weaker sex is worse than if done by ours. Girls swear as they smoke cigarettes, when nobody is about, and because they think it does them good. They keep their swearing as a secret gratification, or no one is better satisfied than themselves how badly the habit would fit them. The swearing of girls, such as it is, is a mere declaration of power and independence; we can swear if we choose, and we swear when we want to. But they are careful, very careful, as to when and where. No girl ever swears when real angry. Then she cries. Swearing is a weapon she does not know how to use. Her swearing means nothing. It never even goes up as high as the big D. It is all small, very small d's, and a combination of genuine oaths so mixed that all their vigor is gone.

ALASKA'S CIVIL GOVERNMENT.—The bill providing for a civil government of Alaska has passed both branches of congress and is now ready for the signature of the president. The bill provides that the territory of Alaska shall constitute a civil judicial district, the temporary seat of government of which is established at Sitka. A governor shall be appointed, with authority to see that the laws enacted from the district are enforced, and who shall be ex officio commander-in-chief of the militia, with power to call it out when necessary to due execution. A district court is established, which shall hold at least two terms each year, one at Sitka and one at Wrangell. A clerk, district attorney and marshal are also provided for, and authority given for the appointment of four commissioners, with the power and jurisdiction of judges of the United States courts. The general law of the territory may be applicable. The officers to be appointed for a term of four years and receive the following salaries: Governor $3000, district attorney $2500, marshal $2500, judge $3000 and clerk $2500.

Kissing in England, was certainly known and practiced in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, and practiced with an easy familiarity which shows the custom was general. Indeed so general was the use of the kiss that it was as usual as the bow. A gentleman taking a lady to her seat from the dance invariably kissed her, and if he had not would have been voted a very badly-bred fellow.

The literature of kisses is curious. The is a story retailed in the "Broad Stone of Honor" of an English knight riding through France to the Field of the Cloth of Gold. His horse cast a shoe at a certain village, the seigneur whereof had departed to the same rendezvous, but the seigneur's lady hospitably entertained the traveler. She came out of her castle, attended by twelve damsels, fair to see. "And," said the dame, "forasmuch as in England ye have such a custom as that a man may kiss a woman, therefore I will that ye shall kiss me, and ye shall also kiss all these my maidens." Which thing the knight straightway did and rejoiced greatly thereat. The quantities of the last phrase undoubtedly indicate the young man's feelings at the salute with considerable exactitude.

In Africa, and other parts of the world outside the circle of civilization, kissing is as yet an unknown art. An African traveler once offered a kiss, under favorable circumstances, to a young lady of King Mumbo Jumbo's court, but she recoiled in great alarm, alleging that she was "not yet worthy to be eaten."

The Baker City, Oregon, Revieled gives the following relative to the recent stage robbery near there, already noticed in these columns: "A posse consisting of Geo. Sally, Jacob Clark, John Lemors and John Furman has arrived in town with W. S. Horrell, who confesses to the crime of robbing the stage. It seems that his home is in Indian valley, and that the man who was with him was his uncle. He seems to be a young man, is slender and very tall, and possessed of just enough brains to enable him to answer every question the officers ask him. His partner escaped.

Good Health.

The following, interesting extract from a French periodical we copy from "Health." "It would be impossible to deny the vast influence which the condition of the teeth exercises upon the general health and many stomach affections. Dyspepsia, for instance, which is so often supposed to spring from remote causes, is, in reality, most frequently one result of swallowing imperfectly masticated food. Reaumur's experiments have long since proved that food cannot be digested unless it is properly broken up. He caused some sheep to swallow tubes full of grass, saturated with saliva, but not chewed. Two days afterward, examination showed that this food had not undergone any digestive change. Spallanzani still more conclusively proved this by causing a sheep to swallow two tubes, the one full of masticated, and the other of whole grass. The chewed grass was digested; the other remained unchanged.

"The state of the teeth not only affects one's bodily health, but also influences character. A bad condition of the teeth, by the prolong suffering it occasions, which are aggravated by the most trivial causes, ends by rendering the disposition morose, irritable, and therefore inclined to see only the dark side of everything.

"But if it be true that the character can be influenced by the state of the teeth, it is also true that the teeth rapidly decay under the influence of overwork! Two English doctors, Messrs. Leithwood and Harlan, believe that they have noticed that the teeth of those who devote themselves entirely to study undergo rapid change, and that a period of rest retards the evil. They then put the further question: Are these occurrences attributable to an over-excited brain, whose excessive stimulation makes it assimilate to itself those phosphatic elements which would otherwise go to nourish the teeth? Or is this decay of the facts which have been culled from different isolated observations, Messrs. Leithwood and Harlan find themselves compelled to admit that if the brain be overstimulated by work, the excess of phosphorus which it then consumes can only be gained at the expense of those organs which require this substance for their development, as the bones and the teeth. He advises that the studies of children shall be carefully watched, and so regulated as to be increased or lessened in accordance with the condition of their teeth.

Solfatara.
The following description of the solfatara, or "hot earth" in the vicinity of Linkville, is taken from the "West Shore":
On Maj. Q. A. Brooks' land near Linkville, Klamath Co., is about an acre of ground which is kept hot by vapor that ascends from some mysterious source of heat below. Just beneath the surface this earth is too hot to hold the hand upon, and at twelve inches from the surface in some places it sends the mercury up to 205 deg. Fahrenheit. Whether this heat is of chemical origin near the surface or is from direct connection with the vast molten interior of the earth, is as yet a matter of pure speculation; but the theory of chemical derivation seems the more rational. How that may be, the hot earth, which is a kind of red loam in composition, has been found to have astonishing curative properties in cases of rheumatism, lame back, diseased and stiffened joints and many other affections. A number of remarkable cures are reported already, two of them being of acute affections of the back.

Prospective brides may be interested to learn that there are thirty-two days in the year on which it is unlucky to marry, according to the authority of a manuscript dated in the fifteenth century. These days are January 1, 2, 4, 5, 7, 10, 15; February 6, 7, 18; March 1, 6, 8; April 6, 11; May 5, 6, 7; June 7, 15; July 5, 19; August 15, 19; September 6, 7; October 6; November 15, 16, and December 15, 16, 17. Consequently January is the worst month and October the best month in the year for marriage.
