

Progress Of Electricity.

Several announcements of remarkable discoveries in the electric field of science have quite recently been announced. The London "Times" of a recent date informs us that a new electrical contrivance has been perfected by A. St. George the inventor of the telephone which bears his name. This invention, which is really supplemental to the telephone, will enable every description of conversation carried on through the instrument to be not only recorded, but reproduced at any future time. Briefly stated, Mr. St. George's invention may thus be described: A circular plate of glass is placed with collodion and made as sensitive as a photographic plate. This is placed in a dark box, in which is a slide to admit a ray of light. In front of the glass is a telephone diaphragm, which, by its vibrations, opens and closes a small shutter through which a beam of light is constantly passing and imprinting a dark line on the glass. Vibrations of the shutter cause the dark line to vary in thickness according to the tone of the voice. The glass plate is revolved by clock work, and the conversation as it leaves the telephone is recorded on the sensitive plate, the imprinted words spoken being fixed as is done in photography. The plate can be brought forward afterwards, and when replaced in the machine and connected with a distant telephone will when set in motion, give back the original conversation.

Russian Longevity.

From a correspondent who has spent some time in Russia we learn that in the village of Volkotti, in the St. Petersburg government, an old woman is living who has just attained her one hundred and thirtieth birthday. The old lady is in the enjoyment of good health, but complains of deafness (and no wonder). Her hair is still long and plentiful, considering her age. She spent her youth in great poverty, but is now pretty well off. She has outlived three husbands, and had a family of nineteen children, all of whom have been married and are now dead, the last one to die being a daughter of 93. She lives with one of her great grand children, a man of 50. Our correspondent also informs us that a few months ago an unusually curious wedding took place in Mkaterevskaya, in Russia. The bridegroom was 65 years old and the bride 67. By former marriages each of them have children and grand children, and even great grand children living in the same town. The bridegroom's father, now in his 103d year, and the bride's mother, in her 96th year, are still alive, and were at the wedding.—"Chambers' Journal."

The Helena (M. T.) Independent says: "Miners in the upper district of Mill creek, Gallatin county, say that never in their experience of many years have they seen in that locality such terrible snowslides as have occurred there during the past week or two. The snow lay in great masses on the mountain sides until the late warm weather, and now it comes down in the form of avalanches, carrying everything before it, stripping bare the sides of the mountains and filling the ravines with mingled masses of snow, rock and broken timber."

The Corvallis Gazette says: Reports from different sections of this county are to the effect that the recent rains have been greatly favorable to the growing grain, and it is almost safe to say that the crop this fall will be the largest ever harvested in the State. Reports from other counties and parts of the State are to the same effect, and with a wheat crop of 18,000,000 bushels, a wool clip of 10,000,000 pounds a large hop crop, and an immense fruit crop, the Pacific Northwest will rapidly overcome the effects of the short crop of last year.
