Bravery of Andrew John-

"Just preceeding the war," said Tennessee man, "Andrew Johnson had many enemies in Tennessee, and once when he was billed for an evening speech at Nashville, the report was spread that if he dared to speak he would be either mobbed or egged, and perhaps assinated. When the bour for assembling came the house was already thronged, and Andy Johnson was on the platform. He promptly arose, and going to the front took a pistol from his pocket and cocked it. He then opend the metting by saying: Gentlemen and fellow citizens: It is meet that when free men assemble for the discussion of important business interests everything should be done decently and in order. Now, I have been informed that a part of the proceedings on the present occasion is the assassination of the individual addressing you." "Here he grasped the pistol firmly with his right hand, threw open his coat with his left hand and continued: 'I propose that this little matter be the first business taken up. If any man comes here to-night for that purpose let him not speak, but shoot.'

"At this there was a pause, and no one replied. 'Ah' said Mr. Johnson, 'I see I have been misinformed. I will proceed with the meeting.'

"And there was not a ripple of dissent in the hall that night. Johnson was applauded at every period, and he had not an enemy present who dared to grean above his breath."-"Cleve-In short, a complete and first-class line of land Leader."

Worthless Young Men.

83 PER YEAR

But aside from the part of the college question there is the utter worthlessness of thousands of young men with a college education. No young fellow who goes through college will demean himself by learning a trade, or setting down to any rough kind of business. All want to be "gentlemen" and wear good clothes and have little to do. Except in special cases it is mere waste of boy's time, possibly the ruin of his future, to send him to college. There are many who went through college, but who connot make a decent living.

I could count some of them myself.

Some time ago a woman who had sent one of her boys to college said to me that she would rather see the others working in the streets than spoil them the same way. A college graduate who, after almost starving, got employment in a New York grocery, felt dreadfully mortified to find himself working for a man who could not write his name; but he held on to the place. In the opinion of thousunds of New Yorkers, this city college of ours, for which everybody is taxed, is a positive evil. It makes young aristocrats out of the sons of men who have to work hard for a living, and in many cases it makes them ashamed of their humble parents. When the average boy has passed through a good grammer school he has done well enough, so far as education at the expense of the public is concerned. Hardly 5 per cent. of the eminently successful men of New York, outside of the professions, ever set foot in college as students, and the average business man will not employ young fellows from college while he can find others. One day soon after Pope's defeat at second Bull Run and Chantilly, a private soldier belonging to an Ohio regiand undoubtedly drowning, as there ment sought an interview with his would be little chance of getting out captain, announced that he had a plan of that swift stream, under the cir- for military campaign, which must cercumstances. How to Read A Novel.

Open it in the middle; glance at a page; catch the names of the characters; turn to the last page to see whether he married her er she died with angels hovering around the headboard; turn to the beginning and see what the matter was with the old man. and why he didn't approve of the match. You have thus acquainted yourself with all the essential facts of the novel, and can imagine the moonlight walks, the sylvan dells, the afternoon teas, the cuss words muttered be" tween the teeth of the male characters, and all the other "hog wash."-"Hartford Post."
