

Blaine's Great Popularity.

The snarling of the insignificant squad of soreheads over Blaine's nomination, have discovered themselves to be so few in number, that they have become either sick, dead, or hid away from sight, as nothing appears to be heard of them any more save an occasional squeak from the N. Y. "Times," whose editor will soon be requested by a majority of the shareholders of the paper, to take a walk.

Blaine was the popular second choice of over two thirds of the delegates at Chicago, and the desperate efforts of the Democrats to secure an available opponent, shows that he is regarded as the most popular candidate yet nominated by the Republican party.

Edmunds, the candidate of the soreheads, who stand by Blaine, never had strength enough to get one-third of the convention, as the Arthur men had the same objection to him as Blaine's friends had. Blaine is gaining strength every day, and his election is destined to be a "walk over," with a certainty of not only carrying New York, but every Northern State, and possibly two or three Southern States, so that the Plumed Knight will be the slayer of the Democratic party, an organization deserving of political death by reason of its principal bulk insinuating the rebellion, with the balance or most of it lending aid and sympathy.

The Independents threatened at one time to give trouble, but it was all noise, and it is too late now to effect any opposition worth noticing. They charge Blaine with corruption, which charge they do not believe, or would state it in plainer language, in place of insidious innuendoes. In the language of a California delegate who visited him, "Blaine has been forging ahead ever since the investigation of the Mulligan letter affair, and has since then been elected Senator from Maine, and has been appointed Secretary of State, and it is absurd to suppose that who was corrupt could get such advancement. The men who opposed Blaine, outside of a few that are led by Curtis, are now his warmest friends, such men as ex-Governor Long, of Massachusetts, and I tell you his opponents are becoming smaller and beautifully smaller every day."

OUR FOREIGN MARKETS.—Too little attention is paid by our manufacturers and producers, in regard to the kind and quality of goods, which are in demand abroad. A more careful study of our consular reports, would be of advantage to our exporters. These reports contain a large amount of valuable information, in the dissemination of which the government is doing a good work for the country, if the people will only accept, and make a proper use of the information so given. In this connection we would add the following from a late Chicago paper: "With all our activity in production, and our seeking for foreign markets, we buy much from, and sell little to the countries, lying south and nearest of all the world to us; and that little, moreover represents our least skillful industries. For instance, we sell provisions, lumber, petroleum, etc., and buy of them principally, coffee, hides and skins. At the same time these Southern countries, unskilled in manufactures, purchase all kinds of fine and coarse goods, and household articles, almost entirely from Europe. We endeavor to put our products of skilled labor upon the countries which produce already the surplus which supplies our southern continent, Mexico and the West Indies, from a double distance, at what ought to be a greater cost of freight. We also, with the balance of trade greatly against us in those southern countries, furnish through that paid-up annual balance the money that pays for those purchases of European goods."

A detachment of soldiers and Indian scouts have been sent out from Fort Assiniboine to intercept thieves who are reported to be driving horses into Montana from the Canadian side.

The widows and orphans of the miners killed in the late Wellington colliery disaster are in distress. Lebanon, Oregon, sends a couple of tons of honey to market.
