OREGON SENTINEL.

JACKSONVILLE:
SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 13, 1884.

REPUBLICAN TICKET.

For President,
James G. Blaine,
of Maine.

For Vice President,
John A. Logan,
of Illinois.

Nominees for Presidential Electors,
D. P. THOMPSON, of Multnomah,
WARREN TRUITT, of Polk,
J. C. LEASURE, of Umatilla.

The Outlook.

The abounding falsehoods and unlimited boasts of the Democrats lead some Republicans to ask for candid statement of the prospect. The only objection to such a statement is that it may encourage over confidence and neglect of needed effort. It must be clearly understood, as a basis and necessary condition of every estimate, that the supporters of Mr. Blaine are to work as earnestly and faithfully as if each doubtful vote might turn the scale; that their organization, already the best ever seen in a Presidential campaign, is to be perfected at every point, and that their viligence in detecting and exposing Democratic frauds and forgeries is to know no relapse.

No Democrat really hopes for success in any New England State. Butler will probably get more votes in Massachusetts than Cleveland and a great many in Connecticut and New Hampshire, but there is no sense in doubting that Mr. Blaine will have a clear majority in every New England State.

The clatter of free-traders about supposed uncertainties at the West need not disturb anybody. With anything coming near like a full vote the Republicans have a clear majority over all forms of opposition, as past returns indisputably prove, in every Western State except Ohio and Indiana. The last full vote in Indiana was in 1880; the Democrats have not since polled as many votes as the 225,000 cast for Hancock, and President Garfield then had 6500 majority. The last full vote in Iowa was for Governor—Republican, 164,000; Democratic, 139,000; Greenback, 23,000. The last full vote in Michigan was in 1880; the greatest vote since polled for a fusion candidate falls 12,000 short of the votes then cast for Hancock and Weaver, and those together were 19,000 short of the vote cast for Garfield. Finally, in Ohio the Democrats succeeded by a bare majority of 1300 last year, with the liquor interest, the wool growers and much Republican indecision of purpose to help them. Everybody who helped them then has been cheated and resents it. In brief, as to all those States, the Republicans start with a clear head and in all they are more united and enthusiastic than they have been in any other campaign for many years, while the open support of Mr. Blaine by thousands of Democrats in each of these States gives them increased assurance of success. Add to this the fact that that General Butler is a candidate and that Mr. Cleveland is personally repugnant to his own party and the situation is not unfavorable.

The contest turns, as was known from the first, upon the votes of New York and New Jersey. There are at least four Southern States in which Mr. Blaine will have a majority of the honest votes. But these votes will never be counted for him if it is possible to defeat him by counting them falsely. In New York and New Jersey the result turns on the opinions of the men who are engaged in manufacturing and mining in regard to the tariff. If they desire to sustain the party by which the Morrison bill was framed and almost passed last spring, they will support Mr. Cleveland. It does not seem to us that there is much free-trade victory in either State but no one can tell what infamous frauds may yet be devised by a party which selects the contriver of the Morey forgery as its manager.

Cleveland appears to be an exceedingly thrifty sheriff. While the aggregate of the bills of his predecessor was $26,639.81 the aggregate of his bills was $39,906.36, an excess of over $13,000. The vouchers show that in many cases he charged more than the law allowed and the Democratic board which investigated his bills cut them down over $4,000. While sheriff he also operated as lobbyist at Albany, using his influence to get through a scheme which largely increased his fees as sheriff. He appears while sheriff to have made no pretension to being a reformer. He was then engaged in feathering his own nest.

The Maine Election.

A CLEAN SWEEP.

ALL THE REPUBLICAN CONGRESSMEN, STATE OFFICERS AND LEGISLATURE ELECTED BY 18,000 MAJORITY!

The election held in Maine last Monday resulted in a glorious victory for the Republican ticket. From all the returns in the majority for the State ticket is something over 18,000. All of the Congressmen elected are Republicans and the State Legislature is nearly unanimous on the same side of the house. The Democrats made a bitter fight in this State, it being the home of the Republican nominee for President, but the result shows that the Plumed Knight is appreciated by those who know him best. The result is a grand victory, more than was expected by the most sanguine managers of the campaign in that State and Maine can safely be put down for 25,000 majority for her favorite son at the November election. The following telegram explains itself:

AUGUSTA, Maine, Sept. 9.—The following dispatch was sent to General Logan to-day: "The result of the election may thus be summarized: The Republicans have carried every county in the state with the possible exception of Knox, which is very close. They have elected twenty nine Senators, and the Democrats only two, and have chosen four-fifths of the Legislature; they have elected four Republicans in Congress by large majorities, and have given Governor Robie a popular majority of 19 000. The Republican vote will reach very nearly 80,000—4,000 to 5,000 larger than ever cast before. Our majority is the largest we have had since the Presidential election in 1868, and far exceeds our most sanguine hopes."

WALKER BLAINE.

Some Political Questions.

A young voter of Massachusetts who inclines toward the Republican party, but who has been prejudiced against Blaine by certain half English Boston papers of the dude persuasion that are popularly supposed to be, like the New York "Evening Post" and "Harper's Weekly," "edited in heaven," a short time ago wrote to Mr. Hoar for his advice and his views on the Blaine scandals. The reply to his letter was published in the Boston "Herald" of August 26. It is pointed, but too long for notice of all the arguments in this place. It concludes with a few axioms, which we think are as appliable to young voters in this State as to those of Massachusetts, and we reproduce them accordingly:

(1) "In the main, the honesty, purity, intelligence and strength of the nation are in the Republican party.

(2) "The men who saved the nation are more patriotic than those who tried to destroy it.

(3) "The men who abolished slavery love freedom and the laborer better than those who struggled to preserve slavery.

(4) "The men who paid the debt are more honest than those who tried to repudiate it.

(5) "The men who kept the currency sound are better financiers than those who tried to debase it."

(6) "The men who stand for fair elections at the South are more fit to be trusted than those who are hoping to seat their man in the Presidency by murder and fraud.

(7) "The purity of the American home, without which there can be no purity anywhere, is safer with those who are trying to extirpate Mormon polygamy than with those in whose eyes Grover Cleveland is the standard of personal excellence.

(8) "The men who have achieved the independence of American manufactures, whose policy has called our vast industries into life and who would exert every force which Government can rightfully wield to keep up the rate of workmen's wages, are wiser and more far seeing than those who would put these great interests under the heel of England again, and who would let the price of American labor be determined in the British market."

We respectfully ask the earnest attention of the 10,000 young men of this state who will cast their first vote on the 4th day of next November, to the foregoing axioms. If they are, as we think them, indisputable, then a vote for Blaine and Logan is in order. —"Chronicle."

Bassett was caught by Jacobs and is again in the Jackson county jail. SENTINEL please copy.—"Times."

A high protective tariff, no tariff for revenue only, has always been our motto, and if our neighbor thinks he can furnish any further Protection, put more locks on that "flimsy" door.

Pioneer Re-union.

Thursday the 11th, the 8th annual re union of the Pioneer Society of Southern Oregon, took place in Jacksonville. The weather had been unsettled and stormy for several days before, which prevented many of the older members of the society from being present, but the attendance was perhaps the largest the society has ever had in Jacksonville. The procession formed at the City Hall and marched through the principal streets led by the Silver Cornet Band and with Gen. John E. Ross dressed in a suit of buckskin as Marshal of the day. As the procession passed in front of Beekman's banking house the General gave orders to reverse the procession and general hand shaking and greeting were indulged in by the old pioneers as they marched down the column, and many of them were affected to tears as they grasped the hands of old time friends who had stood shoulder to shoulder in the perilous days of our pioneer history. As the day was cloudy and the ground damp the meeting took place in the court room and as the old pioneers ascended the steps with slow and unsteady steps it painfully recalled to mind the great changes since these same venerable men and women gave up the comforts and pleasant associations of youth, to brave the dangers and endure the privations necessary to plant the standard of cizilization in this, their far off western wilderness. The court room seated the large audience comfortably, and the interesting order of exercises began. The music by the Silver Cornet Band under the leadership of Prof. Schmitt, and the vocal music led by E. C. Brooks with Mrs. Bolton as organist, was exceptionally fine. The prayer by Rev. J. A. Slover was solemn and impressive and the reading of resolutions of respect to deceased members by Judge Day followed by the dirge by the band, reminded us that at each annual re-union others of the noble band of Pioneers have joined the innumerable company gathering on the Other Shore to which we are all hastening. The oration by Gen. E. L Applegate, a pioneer of 1844, was one of the most appropriate with which the society has ever been favored with. From out of the vast store of knowledge that he has accumulated in scientific research and pioneer adventure he gathered things new and old, weaving them together with all the thrilling interest of romance and the unmistakable evidence of reality; he carried his audience with him from the time that thought first began to be directed to the then far off Pacific, from the countries of the old and new world, down through the long lines of immigration and conquest, to the peaceful enjoyment of the luxuries of our surroundings at the present day, which were the experiencies and realizations of the old pioneer's dream. His oration abounded in historical and statistical data which will give it a permanent place in literature and at the close of its delivery ex President of the society C. C. Beekman moved the following resolutions. "That the sincere thanks of the pioneer society be tendered Gen. E. L Applegate, for the able and interesting oration with which he has just favored us, and that he be requested to furnish a copy for publication, which was unanimously adopted. One of the remarkable and pleasant incidents of the day was the fact that Gen. E L. Applegate and Mrs. E Kenney, daughter of Col. T'Vault, took dinner together and that they were together present 38 years ago at Oregon City at the 4th of July celebration when this country was ceded to the United States from Mexico. The dinner under the supervision of the lady members of the society in and near Jacksonville was one of the finest ever had in this county; the table was spread with delicious viands and fruits and tastefully decorated with flowers and was a fit offering to the old pioneer of the bountiful proclivities of the land that their valor and primer has given to their children for their homes. The day was one of good will and hospitable cheer to the old pioneers and their friends and will live long in the memory of those who participated with them in its enjoyments

When the Cleveland managers read their last token of Tammany "harmony" in the New York "Star" they will wish their candidate had never come out of the Adirondack woods. Mr. Kelly's newspaper says, blithely under the date of Sept. 1: "The Democratic managers are waiting for some miracle to create a reaction of which no symptom is yet visible."

New York "Dial:" Carl Schurz says, by the bones of his ancestors, if Blaine is elected he will leave America forever. Do you hear that? Now, then, all together for Blaine.
