

OREGON SENTINEL.

JACKSONVILLE SATURDAY, JUNE 27, 1885.

The Queen has accepted Gladstone's resignation and intrusted Lord Salisbury with the formation of a new ministry.

The old liberty bell which has been on exhibition in New Orleans will be returned to Philadelphia on the 17th inst. It will be received with great pomp and ceremony.

In the recent perjury trial growing out of the Sharon divorce case at San Francisco, Miss Nettie Brackett, a former witness for Miss Hill, admitted that she told lies against Sharon, and detailed her arrangement with Miss Hill in the premises. She confessed that she committed perjury when she swore that she heard Sharon admit that Miss Hill was his wife.

Senator John Sherman, who visited this coast, saw for himself the disadvantage of Chinese immigration. He is reported to have stated on his return East, that while he voted against the Chinese bill he says he is glad it is a law, and is satisfied from personal investigation there are quite enough Chinese on the Pacific Coast, and the influx of such aliens tends to degrade labor.

New York, June 24.—The "Post's" financial article says: The Central Pacific company has applied to the stock exchange to list $5,000,000 in bonds of $1,000,000 each, bearing date of June 1, 1885, payable June 1, 1915. The bonds bear 6 per cent. interest. The holders have the privilege, in the meantime, of converting them into capital stock within eight years from date. No such conversion will be made, however, at less than 50 per cent. of par value. Application is made to list the bonds in order that the floating debt may be funded as fast as possible, and also that the Oregon branch may be completed to a junction with the Oregon and California road, so as to form a continuous line from San Francisco to Portland.

Some curious things happen among reformers. The letters of the Harpers about the publication of Blaine's book made many sensible people believe that the failure to get it was the real cause of the opposition of Harper's Weekly to the Republican candidate for the presidency. A curious confirmation now appears in the advertisement of the interior department for Indian supplies in the Weekly, for which the publishers received $310—or $150 a line. The idea of printing such an advertisement in a pictorial paper, and at such a price, has been left for this administration and the great mugwump organ to explain. How will editor Curtis explain this? It goes back to the most obnoxious country printing examples.

Mr. Albert W. Swalm, president of the Iowa press association, as a slight recompense for the attentions shown the association, has volunteered to make two exhibits of Oregon's grains, fruits and vegetables, one at the Okaloosa county fair; the other at the Iowa state fair. He has an office at the latter's ground, and will devote two weeks, each 12x16, for displaying the exhibits; and furthermore, will employ a man to look after it and to distribute such printed information about the state as may be furnished to him. The county fair is held the first week in August, and is second only to the state fair in attendance being from 7000 to 20,000 a day. The state fair will be held the following week, and usually is about 200,000. Of course Mr. Swalm's service is offered gratis, and it will no doubt be gratefully accepted.

The Boston "Herald" thinks that the controlling reason why Bismarck is crossed toward the United States, its institutions, its dogs, its wheat and its people, is furnished in the statistics of immigration. From there it appears that during the ten months ending April 30, last year, there arrived in this country 133,137 emigrants from Germany, and in the corresponding ten months of this year, 98,013. The number was more than thirty per cent of the total immigration of these periods, and largely exceeding that from England, Ireland, Wales and Scotland combined. The emigrants, too, are largely made up of the best and finest of the country—the thrifty young farmers, artisans and mechanics, who do not appreciate the military service, the taxes, and the other hard conditions of life which the imperial government has provided for them. The prince's trade restriction may keep out some of the American food products, but he can not prevent the German people from coming here to raise the products and enjoy liberty for themselves.

The Yank Ledge.

This monster ledge, which is the occasion of so much excitement now, is a Rogue river about twenty-seven miles from Grant's Pass. The only means of transport at present is on the hurricane deck of a cayuse pony, as the last twelve miles is a rough mountain road. After traveling all day we reach the ledge. We can see for quite a distance where it ascends the mountain side, cropping out in higher pieces weighing a ton or more. Arriving at the ledge we are glad to get a lunch, and finding a bed on the soft side of a pine board, we retire to dream of feather beds and other comforts. The next morning bright and early we are rowed across the river, and after an hearty breakfast we turn our attention to the mine. The tunnel on this, the north side, has been run about thirty-three feet. The ore is very hard, and the entire work is done with powder. After inspecting the tunnel we follow Mr. McNair the superintendent, up the mountain which the ledge traverses for a distance of a distance of 1,000 feet. About 300 feet above the river we find a second tunnel run by the Yank Gold and Silver Mining Co. of Jacksonville in 1877. This tunnel was driven about forty-two feet, and the enterprise abandoned. The walls of this tunnel are covered with a blue and white powder secreted from the ore. A taste of this reveals arsenic and sulphate of copper. Ascending about 200 feet farther up the ledge we find another tunnel run by D. W. Courtney in 1876. The length of this is about thirty feet. The ore of these two tunnels is of the same character as that being run now, but is not so heavy. In this upper tunnel there exists a vein of something resembling red lead. It is soft and easily worked with the hands, and we are informed, when mixed with oil makes an excellent paint. After gathering a few specimens, we ascend to the summit of the ledge. Here we find a different character of ore. It is light and porous, and full of cells resembling honey comb. Many specimens are beautifully colored and crystallized. This ore gives a fine assay of fourteen dollars per ton. A mill test of fifty pounds saves eighty per cent. before, and ninety-two after concentrating. After securing more specimens we descend and cross the river to the tunnel on the south side. The ore in this tunnel is not so hard and more easily mined. The tunnel has now been driven about 120 feet and is being pushed day and night. The ore in this tunnel assays twenty dollars per ton. If there is anything, there is something big, for the ledge is 240 feet wide and no one knows how long or deep. R. G. S.

Grant's Pass Items.

Boom. Business is good. Immigrants are still pouring in. The free ferry is in running order now. Thirty-seven new arrivals this week from the East. A Miss Ash from Yakima is sick at the Commercial hotel. Jonathan Bourne, Jr., was in town one day this week looking after his interest here. Mr. J. D. Lanham of Kansas has located a farm here and will bring his family on in the fall. The boat leaves at 6 A. M. for the Yank, tickets for sale by T. P. Judson, corner first and main street. Ex Gov. Chadwick went down to the Yank on business Thursday. He says the Yank is a go and that means a boom for Southern Oregon and especially Josephine county. Our streets on Thursday assumed the business proportions of a city that day being the public installation of officers in the A. F. A. M. lodge at this place. A large delegation from other lodges being present to witness the installation which took place in the Old Fellow's hall at 3 P. M. At five o'clock the banquet supper was served up at the Commercial hotel to over one hundred persons in as fine a shape as Chicago or New York city could produce; in fact we doubt not that it could even be equalled anywhere on this mundane sphere. MORE AXON.

The managers of the recent New Orleans Exposition have decided that it shall be open in November. Enough money has been subscribed, and large numbers of exhibitors promise to return.

Closing Out Sale.

To quit business. Our entire stock of general merchandise is offered for sale, in whole or in part, at cost. If you want cheap goods, now is your time to buy them—as we mean just what we say. REAMES BROS.
