

A CHANGE—Hon. Binger Hermann has secured a change in the mail service on route No. 41177, and an order has been made by the Postoffice Department that the route shall begin at Gold Hill instead of Jacksonville. The Postmasters at Gold Hill and Table Rock have been instructed to advertise for bids, for mail service over the route from Gold Hill, via Sam's Valley, to Table Rock six times a week. This change in mail service has been largely petitioned for by residents of that part of the county, and they will certainly appreciate the prompt action of our honorable representative in their behalf.

THE BUSINESS OUTLOOK.—While there has been no perceptible impetus to trade in Southern Oregon in the last month, the business outlook is decidedly more favorable. The crop prospect which looked doubtful in the beginning of the season, is now so favorable that an average yield of grain is fully assured, and the late rains have made a good yield of corn a certainty. The general business depression that has prevailed everywhere, has affected our country to some extent, but not as it has in other localities where they depended altogether on their export and import trade. Our mines when we have water, yield handsomely, and no season has ever been so dry but that the revenue from this source has met the moderate demands of trade. Whatever is taken from the mines is so much wealth added to the country, and altogether different from commercial exchanges, where what A makes B loses and the general prosperity of the country is not increased by the transaction. The building of the railroad through the valley has for the time being been greatly detrimental to our business interests by reason of the demand for a change in the productions of the country that it has occasioned. The large amount of grain that was consumed in freighting and by the stage company is now left on our hands, and the large number of men employed in that way have been compelled to seek other places. While perhaps a thousand horses were engaged in this way every year, before the building of the railroad, there is now no demand for the horse, and the revenue derived from these sources, goes entirely to the railroad company, without leaving any other compensation therefor than the value of the few cords of wood consumed in running through the valley. The demand now is for a change in the productions of this country. The fact that we occupy a position between two great commercial centers and cannot compete with them in exporting heavy freights, has to be met, and the only way in which the products of this country can be made profitable is by the production of such crops for export trade, as can be shipped in the smallest bulk. The special adaptability of this country to fruit and grape culture has been well attested by the variety and excellence of our productions in that line, and our people are taking advantage of the situation, and many acres have been already added to the area in fruits and grapes, but some time must necessarily elapse before profits can be realized on this investment, and in the meantime of course will complain of hard times. Hops yield largely in this valley and it would require but a short time to start a profitable business in them, but as yet, they are an import instead of a valuable export that would give employment to hundreds of laborers and be easily got on the market. Sheep husbandry is a profitable occupation if carefully attended to, and Southern Oregon has already an established reputation in the outside markets although it has been engaged in, but to a limited extent. Hops are always a profitable investment, and our bacon and lard stands No. 1 in outside markets. There is no embargo on Southern Oregon pork in American markets at least. Another urgent demand of this country is an increase in our manufacturing, and a decrease in our import trade. We have one woolen factory at Ashland in the valley and the quality of its goods is of acknowledged excellence. The Oregon State Penitentiary is using these goods altogether, and heavy shipments are being made all over the coast, and there is no reason why, with our excellent and unlimited water privileges, every article used in that line should not be manufactured here, besides the numerous other articles of commerce that are being shipped to this country. The general outlook for this country was never better, for the so-called hard times, have made people more careful in their investments, and more frugal in their habits, and the change from the open-handed liberality of the "gold fever" days to a more careful, and "penny wise" course is one of the most need lessons that the people of this coast are just learning.

Board of Immigration.

HELD AT MEDFORD, JACKSON COUNTY, OREGON, JULY 21, 1885.

The Board of Immigration was called to order by President J. B. Wisley and the minutes of the two previous meetings read and approved. The secretary read a financial report for the months of June and July which was received and an order drawn on the County Court for sufficient money to pay all bills up to date. The secretary was ordered to make a copy of his statement for each of the county papers and request them to publish the same. A. L. Johnson and Martin Peterson each presented a written description of Jackson County. The Board after listening carefully to the reading of both manuscripts selected the description given by A. L. Johnson; and occupied considerable time in criticizing and revising it. Bills on the printing of pamphlets were received from W. H. Lewis, $88.50; M. A. McGinnis, $90; Chas. Nickel, $89.98 and Himes the Printer of Portland $79 for 5,000 pamphlets. On motion of J. H. Griffin the Portland bid was rejected on the ground that the difference in figures was not sufficient to justify the Board in sending their printing away from home. W. H. Lewis then being the lowest bidder, he was ordered to be awarded the printing. G. E. Pennelaker was appointed a committee of six to superintend the publishing of pamphlets. On motion of Martin Peterson, it was resolved that the secretary do faithfully perform his duty as an officer of the board. It was ordered by motion that A. L. Johnson should receive 2000 pamphlets for distribution; and that G. E. McConnell and Thomas Raymond be invited to resign their positions as members of the board. The distribution of pamphlets was left to the discretion of G. E. Pennelaker and the secretary of the board. J. B. Wisley, A. J. Daley, G. E. Pennelaker, E. P. Pickens, J. F. Meury, Martin Peterson and J. H. Griffin were present. On motion of B. E. Manry the board adjourned subject to the call of the President.

Below will be found an interesting extract from Brother Swains description of his Oregon trip published in his paper, the 'Okaloosa Herald.'

Returning to Portland on special train, Wednesday evening, the party went to the sleeping cars, and at seven o'clock started on the southward tour of 341 miles, taking in first the great Willamette Valley. Gov. Moody, of Oregon, and other men of prominence, met the party at Portland, and escorted it to Salem, where, after the country was seen by a fine drive, a banquet was spread in the capitol, by the Salem ladies, and it was indeed a feast. The writer has special reason to remember Salem, for it was here that he was surprised by Dr. Magoun, who, on behalf of the Association, presented him with a very handsome and valuable gold watch and chain, suitably inscribed. It was an ovation here; so it was down the valley at Eugene City, at Ashland, at Medford, where Jacksonville came over in force at Grand Rapids, at Albany, at Corvallis, at McMinnville—everywhere there being an unbounded hospitality and generous welcome. It was unexpected in every way, and came with a continuous outbreak that captured the whole outfit. We passed three days of great pleasure in the country covered by the Oregon and California company's line; saw some of the loveliest valleys that the sun shines upon, abounding in prosperity, growing with great crops of grain, and fruit such as would have made the hearts of our prince of horticulturists rejoice; towns rich in prosperity; homes of comfort and elegance; churches and school-houses for all—such is the picture as we found it, and if you add rapid streams, towering pines, snow-capped mountains, a balmy climate, and cheerful, open-hearted hospitality, you have an impression of Southern Oregon as we saw it—with nearly two hundred pairs of eyes.

We have received a copy of the 'Okaloosa Herald' of which President Swain is editor in which he gives a very interesting general account of the journey of the excursionists, and their reception on this coast. He promises in the future to give each town and city local mention and to give a general outline of the industries and products of this Northwestern country. The account of the trip is well written, without extravagance of expression, and is evidently an honest description of the country and its prospects—just as he saw it. It is an interesting sketch of the trip.

Some thirty odd years ago, an eccentric old man would bring in to the mining camps along Rogue river from time to time, some very rich quartz which he would crush and extract considerable gold. Though frequently importuned, he would not disclose the whereabouts of his ledge and not much attention was paid to him. He was finally killed by the Indians, and the location of his ledge has always been shrouded in mystery. During the famous Gold Hill quartz excitement, quite a number of persons hunted for the old mans ledge, but without success. Last Sunday, John Owens, while walking across a dry gulch just above the Hayes & Magruder place claim, was suddenly precipitated into a hole, and on investigation it proved to be a narrow cut, the top of which had been covered with timbers and dirt, from appearances work had been done long years ago. Mr. Owens soon moved the debris, and followed the cut a distance of thirty feet when he came to a magnificent quartz ledge which had been cut in two, the lead is about 5 feet in width the ore contains gold in considerable quantities which can be plainly seen with the naked eye. This is doubtless the murdered mans ledge, and it will prove a bonanza. A. J. B.
