My teacher tried to encourage me by telling me of other poor boys who had grown up to be president of the United S ates, and he tried to get me to consent to having my name used as a candidate; but I refrained from doing so. I knew that although I was deserving of the place I could not endure the bitterness of a campaign, and that the illustrated papers would enlarge upon my personal appearance and bring out my freckles till you could hang you hat on them.

So I grew up to be a stage robber. When I have my wask on my freckies do not show. I lectured on phrenology at first to get means to presecute my studies as a stage robber. and when I had perfected myself as a burglar, I went abroad to study the methods of the Italian banditti. I was two years under the teachings of the old masters, and acquired great fluency as a robber while there. I studied from nature all the time, and some of my best work was taken from life. I had an opportunity to observe garroting maestro and stiletto virtuoso. He was an enthusiast and thoroughly devoted to his art. He had a large

We did not polished lines, the Seattle Chinese we got a lick at some mighty fine scenery.

But all this is only incidental What I desire to say was this: Fame and distinction come high, and when we have them in our grasp at last we find that they bring their resultant sorrows. I worked long and hard for fame, and sat up nights and rode through alkali dust for thousands of miles that I might be known as the leading robber of the age in which I lived, only to find at last that my great fame was the source of my chief annovance. It made me so' widely known that I felt, as Christine Nilsson savs, "as though I lived in a glass case." Everyone wanted to see me Every one wanted my autograph. Every one wanted my skeleton to hang up in the library.

Il could have traveled with a show and drawn allarge salary, but I hated te wear a boiler-iron overcost all through the hot weather, after having lived so wild; and free. But all this attention worried me so that I could not sleep, and many a night I would arise from the lava bed on which I had reolined, and putting on my dressing gown and? slippers, I would wanabout under the stars and wish that I could be an unknown boy again in my far-away home. But I could not. I often wished that I could die a natural death, but that was out of the question.

Finally it got so I did not dare take a chew of tobacce, unless I did so under an assumed name. I hardly dared let go of my six-shooter long enough to wipe my nose for fear that some one might get the drop on me.

That is the reason why I came to Canada. Here among so many crimi male, I do not attract attention, but I
