American Home

Andrew Carnegie of Pittsburgh, is of Scotch lineage, a practical business man, who has grown very rich manufacturing, in a generous and unselfish manner, a man of high character in his political principles that freest residence in Great Britain for long periods and critical observation of her institutions has made him an ardent friend of Gladstone and Home Rule.

In fact Carnegie believes that England within another century will cast of the house of lords, with some painful contortions as a snake does his skin, a crab his shell, but will cast it surely to be succeeded by a happier and more comfortable working dress in Government. He believes with Laboucher that the union of church and state; the law of primogeniture and entail; the hereditary legislature are doomed and that home rule will ultimately be granted not only in Ireland, but in sections of Great Britain that care to ask for it.

In a recent article on the "Labor Struggle," Mr. Carnegie does good service to a clear notion of its consequences when he points out that the elements of disorder, trouble and revolution in the United States are very small, compared with the exaggerated and sensational accounts of the wild-eyed pessimists who wrote of the labor question for the heavy periodicals. Mr. Carnegie says that, at the height of the labor troubles, May 14th last, out of 20,000,000 of workers, that include 7,000,000 in trade and transportation alone, not more than 250,000 had ceased to labor; three days later it was 80,000; and four days after 47,000 Mr. Carnegie remarks: "It is fair to assume that the number reports on the 14th of May included all those who were dismissed."

Second--The judicial decisions in favor of law and order have defined "the difference between liberty and license of speech."

Third--The people sympathize with all reasonable demands of labor.

Fourth--Care should be taken by employers not to needlessly irritate striking employees, and to do all in their power to win them back and keep them.

Fifth--The trades unions natural ly become more conservative than the masses of men they represent. "Leaders of the stamp of Mr. Powerly, Mr. Arthur, of the Brotherhood Locomotive Engineers, and Messrs. White and Martin, of the United Mine Workers and Steel Association, will gain and retain power, while such as the radical and impulsive Mr. Irons, if at first clothed with power and will soon lose it."

Mr. Carnegie, a man of large experience as a great employer, concludes that "the workmen of this country can no more be induced to sanction riot and disorder than can any other class of the community. Isolated cases of violence and strong provocation may break out upon the surface, but the body underneath is sound to the core, and resolute for the maintenance of order." (Oregonian.)

Four men have been arrested at Chicago charged with connection in the post office robbery at Minneapolis. One of them offered $5,000 worth of postage stamps for sale at a banking house, which led to the arrest. One of the men was implicated in a former robbery, amounting to $2,000.

Who Wins? The boy or the man who spends all his evenings away from home, attending lectures, club-room, theatre, billiard hall, beer saloon; playing chess, checkers, pool or cards; smoking or chewing tobacco, drinking liquor or gambling, to any extent whatever; or the one who is entirely free from all that we have named; whose determinations and tendencies are in the direction of home, industry, sobriety, self culture in the literature of the past and present, of right, the truth and of God? We have in mind a most worthy gentleman, of Chicago, who stands high in business circles, because, when but a boy on the streets of Chicago he chose the right and maintained it. At eleven his father died, leaving a wife and four children. From that time for seven years that boy sold papers and blacked boots, all the while supporting the family out of his daily profits. At eighteen he commenced business for himself as a merchant, and to-day is highly respected by his many friends and acquaintances.

Who wins? The boy or man of bad habits? No! The boy or man who can swear, cheat, lie or steal without being found out! No! But he wins who is not ashamed to pray to God in the hour of temptation for help--for strength more than human when adversity overwhelms. He who reads Gods Word and trusts it, who is not governed by the motive--is it expedient, but it is right. He wins.

CIRQUE DE COLE

To Shortly Appear at Medford.

DR. CARVER'S FAMOUS WILD WEST Will Form one of the Features.

MAGNIFICENT ROMAN REVIVAL.

The announcement that W. W. Cole's consolidated shows will visit MEDFORD, SEPT. 6th, will bring joy alike to the juvenile heart and to sire that has reached the "yellow leaf" of life. The constituency of the circus includes a more comprehensive range of people than any king, emperor or president can count as his subjects. For more than two thousand years the circus, with its glamor of romance, has held undisputed sway in the realm of amusements. Other forms of entertainment have risen, thrived for a time, and then passed away, but the charms of the sawdust arena have never lost their potency from Caesar's day down to the present. This circus is universal, all-embracing--a truly regular ruler of all ages, climes and phases of life. After all, perhaps, the clew to perennial popularity of the circus here. It touches the spring of immortal youth, and serves as the connecting link and habbing childhood and querulous old age. Thus may--but enough of this philosophizing, and let us return to our original subject, the coming of Cole's big show. At no time during his long managerial career has Mr. Cole presented so much that was new, novel and brilliant as is seen under his ten-acre tents this season. Both Europe and America have contributed their most expert bareback riders, acrobats, aerial marvels, vaulters, clowns, jugglers, boxers, wrestlers, fencers, and that show in its all kinds, so wide and complete departure from the conventional circus. The most important of Manager Cole's recent acquisitions are a real Roman hippodrome and a "Wild West" exhibition. The latter is headed by the illustrious wizard rifleman, Dr. W. F. Carver, [Evil Spirit of the Plains] and one of the most prominent figures in Western history. The [Wild West] combination includes many noted scouts, cowboys, Sioux, Cheyenne and Pawnee Indians, all of whom appear in thrilling scenes illustrative of wild life on the plains. Manager Cole is said to have the best equipped and most realistic Roman hippodrome ever seen in this country. The horses used in the races are of the finest English and Kentucky stock, and their contests for supremacy are pronounced as exciting as those seen at the great turf meetings of St. Louis, Long Branch and Saratoga. That Cole will be warmly welcomed, here goes without saying.

Who Wins? The boy or the man who spends all his evenings away from home, attending lectures, club-room, theatre, billiard hall, beer saloon; playing chess, checkers, pool or cards; smoking or chewing tobacco, drinking liquor or gambling, to any extent whatever; or the one who is entirely free from all that we have named; whose determinations and tendencies are in the direction of home, industry, sobriety, self culture in the literature of the past and present, of right, the truth and of God? A Musical Treat.

The "Yankee Doodle Band" from Roseburg favored the music loving people of our city, last week with a musical concert and variety entertainment which was highly appreciated by the lovers of music and minstrelsy.

Their concert was held at the afternoon which was conducted with military exactness, awakened the enthusiasm, and challenged the admiration of all who gazed upon the ranks as they marched, finely uniformed, through the principal streets of the city, to the tune of a superb quickstep; a beautiful composition and arrangement, which was brilliantly played. Before marching to the hall, they played a few selections at the junction of Front and Main streets, after which the boys were at rest, so to speak, until evening.

A conspicuous figure which attracted much attention, was that of one of our former Jacksonville boys, Fred. M. Zigler. It was not alone the tall commanding figure and military bearing that was particularly attractive, but rather the masterly manner in which he handled his instrument. In the execution of some of his difficult baritone solos, he was "great," considering the fact that he has recently taken up the study of music, and more recently that speciality.

The open air concert in front of the hall in the evening was a pleasant surprise to those who were pleased with their former efforts. It was simply "Grand." A large audience greeted their performance with well merited expressions of delight. One selection in particular--an overture--was rendered in magnificent style; each part being admirably sustained throughout. One of our townsmen who heard the celebrated "Alvin Joslin" ten thousand dollar band in Portland last winter, declares that the music played by the professionals, although that celebrated band is composed almost entirely of solo players. With little strengthening of some of the parts, and a careful avoidance of some errors that amateur players habitually fall into, the Y. D. boys under the tutorage of Prof. Gilliam, will have attained a degree of proficiency second to no band in the State.

A variety entertainment was given in the evening in the hall by the members of the band, to a good sized audience, the major part of which enjoyed the fun. The local hits were immense and produced much merriment. The orchestra work inside the hall, was interfered with to a great degree, on account of the steaming condition of the atmosphere in the worst of ill ventilated halls. The violin strings were continually breaking or "fraying out" which rendered impossible any successful attempt to keep the instruments in harmony. The opening overture, however, taken from the "Mikado," was exceedingly well rendered; that piece being performed before the instruments were seriously affected. Taking it altogether our people were immensely pleased, and the most sincere praises were bestowed particularly upon the musical part of the programme. We hope the boys from Roseburg are satisfied with their excursion, and we trust that this, their first visit to our part of the coast, will not be their last one.

An attempt was made on the 4th to assassinate the Grand Vizier of Turkey, by a crazy Tartar, who fired two shots which missed the mark. He then chased the Vizier, who was riding in his carriage at the time, with a sword. He was arrested, and will, in due time have his head cut off in regular Turkey fashion.

An Austrian engineer gives the following method for restoring burnt tool steel, which melt in a crucible three parts by weight of pure colophonium, and, slowly stirring, add two parts by weight of good boiled linseed oil. Particular care must be taken in doing this, because at a high temperature the mixture is easily ignited. Finally, a dark brown mass of the consistency of syrup is obtained, which, after a cooling, is kept near the smith's fire, in a closed pot for use. Any piece of steel, however burnt, dipped red hot into the liquid, is restored to its original quality, and if the operation is repeated is even improved. The steel is hardened best in a dark-red heat in rain water.

Advices of the 6th, from Kansas, state that a cyclone struck the town of Hartland and demolished twenty houses and did great damage to crops. Sixteen cars were blown from the track of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe railroad, also telegraph wires were prostrated. Other towns in the vicinity were injured.

The Oregon Pacific R. Co. engineers started out last week to survey eastward toward the Minto Pass. The party consists of Mr. Eckleson, chief engineer, and nineteen others, evidently the O. P. Co. men in business and these operations strongly indicate another transcontinental road to the Pacific Ocean at an early day.

Comrade Washington Galland, of Iowa, has written a G. A. R. song entitled Let the Bear Roop how.

The secretary of the interior has rendered an important decision upon the application of Governor Moody, requesting the department to order the dismissal of all contests to determine the character of lands which have been heretofore approved and certified to the state of Oregon, as swamp and overflowed, under the swamp land grant. The secretary declares that after the approval and certification by the department and land office the character of such lands cannot again be called in question upon an affidavit of the contestant, which merely alleges that the land is not of the character granted, unless the application further alleges fraud or mistake in the procurement of the decision of the secretary; and acts constituting the fraud must be specifically stated. He further holds that a party may contest a right to such lands prior to approval and certification, by alleging and proving settlement prior to such approval, and that the land is not swamp and overflowed, but is fit for cultivation without artificial drainage.

All lands approved and certified to the state as swamp and overflowed, covered in this decision, are embraced in what is known as list No. 5, Lakeview district, and contains about 90,000 acres of land. It is claimed by the state that the remaining lands not approved and certified amount to about 300,000 acres which will be reported to the land office for approval and certification under the old rule laid down in this decision.

Resuscitation of the Drowned. The moment the body is taken from the water it should be stripped to the waist. The clothing having been made into a roll to raise the pit of the stomach above the level of the mouth, all fluid should be forced out by pressure, just below the shoulder blades, and the other on the chest at a point directly opposite. Having proceeded thus far, with as little delay as possible, turn the body upon its back, place the roll of clothing under the small of the back, and practice artificial respiration as follows. Grasp the chest on either side of the pit of the stomach, gradually pressing forward and upward until the whole strength is used, and then suddenly letting go; continue to repeat this operation with the regularity of natural breathing. As there are cases on record when the respiratory function has been re-established after having ceased for more than an hour, it is well not to be impatient of results; any time within two hours your efforts may be crowned with success, without there being any previous sign to indicate it. The instructions are adopted and published by the United States Life Saving Service.

A living machine has been invented by a French aeronaut, and proven by a trial trip to be a success. The aeronaut dropped miniature bombs on some fortifications as he passed over them, to show what might be done in case of war. This is just what our war department needs, and we recommend that they immediately purchase one for Gen. Miles. It is just the thing to catch Geronimo. He can't swoop down on the old man in some cactus thicket, drop a lasso about his neck and hoist away. The expense of hanging would also be saved, and Gen. Miles could do the who's job himself, there would be no dispute as to the division of glory. We are indebted to the French for many things besides a Barranquilla consul and a Bartholdi Status of Liberty.
