The Oregon Central Railroad.

Take pleasure in stating that there may be a portion of the railroad to be opened hereafter in the State of Oregon as soon as the Capital City of the United States, at the request of the Governor of the State, and the railroad stock can be disposed of to the public. In fact, there may be a portion of the railroad now being completed which will be open for the public use in the near future. The railroad company intends to make the road as far as possible along the line of the Oregon Central Railroad, and it is one of the most important improvements in the State.

The Oregon Central Railroad is situated in the State of Oregon, and is under the management of the Oregon Central Railroad Company, which has been formed for the purpose of building and operating the railroad. The company has been authorized to construct a railroad from the Missouri River to the Pacific Ocean, and to extend the line northward to the Canadian provinces. The completion of the railroad will be a great benefit to the people of the State, and will facilitate the transportation of goods and passengers. The railroad will also be a great benefit to the growth of the State's economy, as it will enable the people to transport goods and materials more efficiently and at lower costs.

The Oregon Central Railroad will be of great importance to the State's economy, as it will facilitate the transportation of goods and passengers. The railroad will also be a great benefit to the growth of the State's economy, as it will enable the people to transport goods and materials more efficiently and at lower costs. The completion of the railroad will be a great benefit to the people of the State, and will facilitate the transportation of goods and passengers. The railroad will also be a great benefit to the growth of the State's economy, as it will enable the people to transport goods and materials more efficiently and at lower costs.

The Oregon Central Railroad is situated in the State of Oregon, and is under the management of the Oregon Central Railroad Company, which has been formed for the purpose of building and operating the railroad. The company has been authorized to construct a railroad from the Missouri River to the Pacific Ocean, and to extend the line northward to the Canadian provinces. The completion of the railroad will be a great benefit to the people of the State, and will facilitate the transportation of goods and passengers. The railroad will also be a great benefit to the growth of the State's economy, as it will enable the people to transport goods and materials more efficiently and at lower costs.

The Oregon Central Railroad is situated in the State of Oregon, and is under the management of the Oregon Central Railroad Company, which has been formed for the purpose of building and operating the railroad. The company has been authorized to construct a railroad from the Missouri River to the Pacific Ocean, and to extend the line northward to the Canadian provinces. The completion of the railroad will be a great benefit to the people of the State, and will facilitate the transportation of goods and passengers. The railroad will also be a great benefit to the growth of the State's economy, as it will enable the people to transport goods and materials more efficiently and at lower costs.