Charcoal will be made on the company's land, and the hills now resound with the chopping and blows of next spring, as early as our wet elimate will permit. The cost of the coal will not exceed Eastern prices, and so favorably are the ore beds signated, that $1.50 7 ton will cover the cost of mining and de livering the same at the farnace. Nature has so thoroughly oxydized and disintegrated the ore, and it is so free from admaxime with earthy or other foreign ingredients that little or no washing and roasting will be required to fit it for the fursice. Smelting operations will be commenced by July 1st, 1867.
