J. H. JOSSELYN, M. D., Resident Physician. THE DIRECTORS OF THIS CELEBRAT. ed Medical Institute wish to thank the public for the generous manner in which they have sustained the Resident Physician with their patronage. It is now six years since the Institute was established; during that time there has been over thirty thousand consultations, and in all cases, where the disease was curable.

A perfect and permanent cure has been performed. Malicious charlatans have opened traps in close proximity to the Institute adopting similar names, hoping to attract the unweary; but their failure to do so is perfectly apparent—for the business has not been effected in the least, but has gone on increasing its usefulness and profits in regu-lar ratio. The Resident Physician has by careful study and experience within the last few years been successful in discovering new most pleasant, the safest, quickest and most reliable ever devised. Below are a few of the opinions of the press of California, which are submitted to the Public

·ELECTROPATHY .- The readers of this article are particularly requested to read the ad-vertisement of the "Electrophatic Institute," 645 Washington street, San Frans cisco, to be found in another column of this paper. The remarkable cures that have been effected by Dr. J. H. Josselyp, the Resident Physician of the Institute during the past six years, has gained for this establishment a reputation that has never been equalled by any medical establishment on this coast. In cases of female irregularities herself. If you take a walk toward Tingwall, you will meet or pass dozens of women going for or returning with peats from the hill, all busy knitting-one a stocking, another a stout shawl or cravat. The finer articles-scarfs, vails, and lace shawls, which are often exquisitely fine-cannot be worked in this off-hand way, and are reserved for leisure hours at home. The "keyshie"-a straw basket, like a large inverted beehivemay be full or empty, but you never stail to find the busy fingers. This carrying of peats is an almost daily task, and you often see a woman with strongly-marked features and large frame, who, from constant exposure to sunshine and shower, and rendered gaunt and wiry by hard work, recalls 8:1y Sir Walter Scott's description of "Norna of Fitful Head." The poor classes generally wear no shoes, but "rivlins," a kind of sandal made of untanned cowhide, or sometimes sealskin, with the hair outside, and lashed to the foot with tongs. All the wool of the pure Shetland sheep is fine, but the finest grows under the neck, and is never shorn off, but "rooed"-that is, gently pulled. It is said that an ounce of wool can be at 6 A. M. spun into upwards of 1,000 yards of three-ply thread. Stockings can be knitted of such fineness as to be easily drawn through a finger-ring. The annual proceeds of the industry are Transportation Company. said to be not less than £10,000. It is quite common for a servant, when making an engagement, to stipulate that she shall "have her hands to herself," meaning that all she can make by knitting is to go into her own pocket. The industry of the women is to be accounted for by the fact that by their knitting they sup ply themselves with dress, and especially with tea, of which they are intemperately found. It is a perfectly ascertained fact, that the value of tea annually consumed in Shetland far exceeds, the whole land rentalabout £30,000. Very large quantities of eggs are sent south, bringing in, it is said, some thousands of pounds annually, a great portion of which finds its way into the teapot. ----CORK .- The uses of cork are numerous. There is necessarily waste in cutting wine corks, which was formerly of no value; now this waste, says the Ladies' Treasury, ground very small and mixed with India rubber, forms "Kamptullicon," On Wednesday of each week, for Ground to powder, it is used in the process of vulcanizing India rubber, which can then be molded into the most delicate form. Mattrasses fill. ed with fine cork cuttings will resist damp, and emigrants should take care that such form a part of their On Monday, Wednesday and Friday, outfit. Pillows, or belts, stuffed with cork shavings, or cork jackets, should also be included in their list of necessaries?; all these are useful as helps in gaining a near shore in case of shipwreck. Slabs of thick cork are much used in England for standing upon in shower baths. The rough cork of the first year's gathering, which has been hitherto useless, is now converted into rustic work for gardens. The fine Spanish black used by artists is prepared from burn ing cork shavings in close vessels. THE CATTLE PLAGUE .- The rayages of the cattle plague are getting "small by degrees and beautifully less." We observe, it is stated, that since the beginning of the disease fifty one out of every thousand of the stock of cattle in Great Britain hand on a scorpion, which immediately re-sented the insult by thrusting its sting into the palm of my hand. The instantaneous have been attacked.

Dr. Bourne takes the liberty to publish the above as many persons had prophesied his relapse into his former condition, on returning to his duties, of the writer of an "Inter esting Letter," whose statements concerning the cure of a well defined case of consumption have recently attracted so much attention to the Water Cure, as improved upon and practised by Dr. Bourne. This additional testimony must prove satisfactory to all reasonable minds.
